Japs Report U. S. Landings on Ryukyu Isles

HUGE AMERICAN TASK FORCE OFF ISLANDS: TOKYO

15 Carriers There, Says Radio.

San Francisco, Cal., March 25 (AP).—Japan's Domei news agency reported without confirmation tonight that American troops, supported by intensive bombardment, had "attempted a landing" in the strategic Ryukyu Islands Sunday morning [Japanese time] and fierce engagements were taking place.

Domei said the landings began at 7:30 a. m. on Aka and Tokashiki Islands near the main Island of Okinawa.

"The enemy landing attempt was made," Domei said, "after continuous aerial bombing attacks and navy bombardments by the enemy task force since the morning of March 24 against Okinawa, main island of the Ryukyu group, as well as Miyak and Kerama Islands."

15 Carriers in Force.

Tokyo radio reported that a large American task force was in the waters just southwest of Okinawa, and described the fleet as containing 15 aircraft carriers, 11 battleships, 10 cruisers, 32 destroyers, "as well as innumerable other auxiliary vessels."

Domei said the Americans tried the invasions in "approximately 100 barges," and the Nipponese garrisons were "now fiercely intercepting" the Yanks.

The National Broadcasting company picked up a Tokyo radio announcement that 2,000 American troops had attempted to land on Okinawa itself.

Aka and Tokashiki Islands, both tiny, are about a mile apart and four miles or so west of the southern tip of Okinawa.

Okinawa is the main island in the Ryukyu chain, which stretches between the southernmost Japanese mainland Island of Kyushu and the big Island of Formosa to the south. It has air fields and several good harbors. Okinawa is 325 air miles southwest of Kyushu and 365 miles northeast of Formosa.

Pacific Aflame.

U. S. PACIFIC HDQ., Guam, March 26 [Monday]—(AP).—Radio Tokyo reported today that United States troops were "attempting" a landing in the Ryukyu Islands just south of Japan.

The report highlighted a weekend of developments in the Western Pacific in which carrier planes continued strong attacks and B-29s blasted Nagoya with a heavy tonnage of demolition and incendiary bombs.

Without allied confirmation, Tokyo asserted landing attempts were made at 7:30 a. m. Sunday [Japanese time] after earlier reporting that United States warships three times Saturday bombarded Okinawa with their big guns.

Today, he reported destruction of an eight ship Japanese convoy west of Amami Island in the northern Ryukyus.

The Tokyo broadcast said Okinawa was bombarded three times by part of a task force which sent aircraft against it Friday. These actions followed carrier strikes Vice Adm. Mitscher began against the southern Japanese homeland's air fields and navy bases March 18.

Three large cargo vessels, two destroyers, and three other escort vessels, possibly destroyer escorts or gunboats, were sunk in the Ryukyus.

Seventh Day of Attack.

Avenger Torpedo planes and Helldiver bombers from Mitscher's task force 58, escorted by Corsair and Hellcat fighters, destroyed the convoy.

The action extended Mitscher's concerted bombing of the Japanese homeland and adjacent Okinawa and Ryukyu Islands to the seventh

Slays Child, 7, Shoots 3 and Ends Own Life

Richard Stakenas, 32, an ex-soldier who had been suffering from high blood pressure, shot his sister-in-law and her three young children, one of them fatally, and then shot and killed himself in his brother's home at 8331 Kerfoot av., last night.

His sister-in-law, Mrs. Anna Staken, 32, said Stakenas' fiery temper precipitated almost daily quarrels in the five years he lived with his brother, John H. Staken, 38, a bridgetender at La Salle st.

Plays Radio Loudly.

After Staken went to work his brother turned on the radio to listen to a symphony concert. Mrs. Staken said he was playing the radio so loudly she remarked to her daughter, Jean, 12, "He must be crazy."

Stakenas thereupon ran to his back bedroom and got a revolver. When Mrs. Staken saw him armed she ran to a bathroom, where her sons, Edward, 7, and John, 9, were bathing together in the tub.

Stakenas belabored her on the head with the revolver, then began shooting. After she fell to the floor he shot her in the jaw and shoulder, then shot her daughter, nearby, under the heart and in the shoulder.

Breaks Window to Escape.

Mrs. Staken grabbed the girl by the arm, broke a storm window, and jumped from the house, fleeing to a neighbor's home to summon police.

Stakenas entered the bathroom and emptied his revolver at the two boys, killing Edward and wounding John near the heart. Returning to his bedroom he got another revolver and fired a bullet into his brain.

The bridgetender said Stakenas appeared normal when he left for work and had been playing with the children.

LEGISLATURE DISSOLVED IN ONTARIO CRISIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., March 25.—Premier George A. Drew announced yesterday that the 21st Ontario legislature has been dissolved. He said the dates for a general election would be fixed as soon as possible and would be so arranged that every member of the armed forces from this province would have an opportunity to vote.

"Now that there must be an election, our main concern is to bring it on as soon as possible," said Drew. He added that a special house session could be called after the election to deal with unfinished business.

SHOTS BY GUARDS QUELL RIOT OF 2,500 CONVICTS

San Quentin, Cal., March 25 (AP).—Twenty-five hundred San Quentin prison convicts rioted at Sunday afternoon mess, hurling cups and silverware wildly for one-half hour in a demonstration Warden Clinton Duffy ascribed to initiation of a plan to permit Negroes and Caucasians to intermingle at meals.

One convict was stabbed in the neck with a fork and three others suffered head cuts from flying crockery. Six guards overseeing the meal fired over the milling convicts' heads to bring the riot to an end.

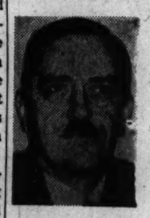
WONDER IF HE WILL SEE THE LIGHT

HAILS RED BOOM UNDER NEW DEAL

Browder Claims Credit for F. D. R. Election.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—Earl Browder, president of the Communist political association, in a pamphlet just published entitled "America's Decisive Battle," hails the advances made by the Communists under the Roosevelt administration. The pamphlet contains the text of a report delivered before the national committee of the Communist political association, which is the successor of the Communist party, on March 10, 1945, in New York City.



Earl Browder.

Claims Election Credit.

Browder claims credit for President Roosevelt's election, stating that communist "policies and work contributed essentially to the victory of Nov. 7." Hailing this as a sound investment for his organization, he continues: "Our political influence within the labor and progressive organizations and communities has grown far wider and deeper than it ever was before."

Browder boasts of communist "guidance" of these movements, which, of course, includes the political action committee.

"Marxism," he declared, "is the only school of political thought which is emerging from this greatest of all wars with strength not only unimpaired but increased manifold."

Still Has International Ties.

Browder gave Communists assurance that his organization has by no means severed its international ties, despite the announced dissolution of the Communist international. "We always were and remain internationalists," he said. "There is an inevitable kinship and identity between Marxists of all lands which is not abolished."

Acknowledging the widespread communist threat to the solution of the world's post-war problems, he emphasized that no government in the liberated countries "can make the slightest claim to stability unless it includes the Communists."

Burocrats Expect V-E Day to Signal Birth of New NRA

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—With the war in Europe in its final stages, official attention in Washington is being directed more and more to the shape of things to come in the post-war world.

Out of the pattern of discussion, the exchange of proposal and counter-proposal and the usual flood of capital rumors, what the New Dealers are evolving is gradually becoming clear.

First and foremost the New Dealers have no intention of relaxing controls and priorities after the fall of Germany or even after the fall of Japan.

Rationing, priorities, and regulations will be continued after Germany's defeat on the ground that they will be necessary in order to assure a flow of supplies to the Pacific battle front, to maintain a stream of food and essential supplies to needy nations, and to guard against a scramble for materials and labor by civilian goods industries.

Regulation to Continue.

Government regulation over some industries will continue, it is reported, until late in the year and into 1946 even if the war in Europe should end in April or May as is expected. Public utilities, transportation and communication industries as well as those producing the most essential civilian goods are expected to be subject to the continued regulation which protects them against a scramble of competition for men and materials.

New automobiles will probably go into production a month after the fall of Germany, but will not be available for perhaps six months. Gas and tire rationing will continue.

It is expected that war orders will be cut from 35 to 40 per cent. This will bring some unemployment at once—perhaps 2 to 3 million will be out of jobs in 30 days after Germany's defeat and 4 to 5 million in the first six months.

Program of the Planners.

To fight off this anticipated slump government planners are working on a program. The chief points of the program at this date are:

1. Establishment of an over-all planning agency which may be known as the national production control council, which will be charged with responsibility of controling national economy similar to the national recovery administration in the early days of the New Deal.

2. Under the NPCC the volume of production will be set with a view toward insuring full employment at levels to be fixed by various industrial authorities for each industry similar to NRA code authorities.

3. The authorities will be composed of representatives of labor, management, and the government, which will be charged with dictatorial powers over the industries they are to control thru directives.

Wage and Price Fixing.

4. The authorities will fix prices and wages.

5. The authorities will probably be empowered to keep any new company or individual firm from entering any field whatsoever.

6. A huge fund is to be created which can be employed for government purchase of surplus farm and factory goods in order to stabilize markets and insure farmers and companies from any loss on goods which cannot be sold on the open market.

7. A colossal government spending program is contemplated which will outstrip the public works program of 12 years ago. This program will stress housing, education, transportation, resettlement, and rehabilitation and a number of projects of the TVA type.

8. Enforced pooling of all patents under federal control so that no one company may possess an advantage over others in the same field by holding key patents.

New Dealers do not expect all this can be achieved at once or even in years. This is the long range objective. Heavy battles are expected in congress particularly on the dictatorial control of the economic life of the nation, with resulting control of the individual and on the pooling of patents, which would upset the present patent structure and introduce a new concept into American life.

At present an inventor is entitled to the fruits of his genius. The New Dealers would make him give his invention to all and pay him a lump

FIRST DIVISION HALTS 14 NAZI ATTACKS IN DAY

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, March 25.—Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army is now attacking day and night, turning on power for the knockout blow. Blasting thru the German crust, Hodges' infantry divisions were driven along in the wake of the armor in the north, center, and south.

Resistance was light in the south but in the north, where the 1st division was shoving along the southern side of the Sieg river, the Germans had massed their armored divisions, but they were not enough. For veteran tankers, with doughboys riding on the tanks, slugged thru German strong points to register six mile advances.

Leave Field Silent.

Our artillery and Thunderbolts, which were pacing the armored spearheads, broke up the German artillery and flayed their tanks and motor vehicles trying to hide in woods or move along roads. Under this pressure the German field guns started hurrying to new positions in the rear, and the threat of their shells dropped away to unaccustomed silence, leaving every one with that strange, eerie sensation of a battlefield devoid of noise.

One officer estimated it would require an advance of 5,000 to 6,000 yards to break the German crust before the army could really roll. In half a dozen places that distance already has been gained.

The Germans were fighting in knots, most of them around village strong points. So far no other type of defense has been encountered, only dug-in infantry supported by self-propelled guns and tanks. It is not the type of defense involving huge concrete bunkers and well designed positions which could hold up the attacker.

Like Drive in France.

The advance is characteristic of the 1st army's race across France, and the 1st division's pursuit which trapped and killed 30,000 Germans between Maubeuge, France, and Mons, Belgium.

Yesterday the 1st division put in a day of combat which one veteran, Maj. John H. Lauten of Berkeley, Cal., described as the toughest encountered. The Germans threw 14 major counter-attacks against two regiments and followed with many other minor ones. But these men of the 1st did not yield ground. They stopped every attack and by night had advanced two miles.

"Every time we moved they hit us," said Lauten. "Sometimes our companies were hit from four sides. Most attacks were with 200 infantrymen and three or four tanks or self-propelled guns."

Lauten said the Germans had massed all their available strength opposite the 1st division. It was too much in one place, he said, for a defensive role and indicated the Germans had intended a big attack against a bridgehead.

Nazi Dashes for Home, but He's Out by 20 Yards

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, March 25 (AP).—One German prisoner bagged by the 9th army today was particularly doleful. He was captured 20 yards from his home—where he apparently had been rushing to get out of the war by getting into civilian clothes.

Hodges Smashes Out of Remagen Bridgehead.

PARIS, March 26 (Monday)—(AP).—Three United States armies surged toward Berlin in break-thrus yesterday, with 3d army tanks setting the pace in a 27 mile sweep that carried 40 miles beyond the Rhine and across a captured bridge over the River Main possibly 235 miles from the enemy capital.

[The German armed forces radio reported today that new allied air borne landings were made yesterday on the east bank of the Rhine. This report said landings were made "north and southeast of Wesel" and described the air borne forces as strong.]

The United States 9th army broke out into the open thru the enemy's Rhine line, crashed eight miles or more beyond the Rhine, was within reaching distance of a Berlin superhighway, and was only 10 miles from Essen, industrial heart of the reich.

Two New Crossings.

The United States 1st army burst the bonds of its Remagen-Erpel bridgehead between these two fronts in a general assault on a 35 mile front that ground nine miles east in a massive attack on the road to Berlin and was roaring on unchecked.

The 3d army sprang at least two new crossings of the Rhine south of Coblenz and was nearing a junction with the 1st army forces beyond the river. They last were reported only 11 miles apart.

British Gain 8 Miles.

The British 2d army heightened the power of the grand western front offensive by pushing eight miles north of the Rhine onto the German plain, hurdling one river barrier on the Berlin route and slashing across a superhighway running to northern Holland. The British cleaned out the stronghold of Rees.

Elements of the Canadian 1st army were 12 miles west of Wesel and battling beyond Rees.

With four firm lodgments along 200 miles of the Rhine's east bank from Rees to Worms, German resistance was disintegrating almost everywhere in this spectacular day of gains.

4th Armored Wins Bridge.

It was Lt. Gen. Patton's famed 4th armored division which speared the break-thru along Germany's waist, and cut across the formidable River Main by capturing a bridge intact somewhere southeast of Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

[This might have been the bridge at Aschaffenburg, which is 20 miles southeast of Frankfurt and about 38 miles east of the Rhine.]

The 4th was divided into two lightning-fast combat commands, and at last reports it still was going strong under a security black-out to keep its movements from the bewildered enemy.

A front dispatch said the surge beyond the Rhine was going even faster than Patton's drive up to the Rhine, and it was sweeping up German soldiers by the thousands.

People Fleeing Frankfurt.

Frankfurt itself was only 10 miles in front of the 5th infantry division and the industrial city was reported being evacuated tonight of its 546,649 population.

The Paris radio reported a high Nazi official had announced over the German radio that all civilians in the Ruhr between Duesseldorf and Dortmund would have to be evacuated immediately. That might include Essen, since the Duesseldorf-Dortmund sector embraces most of the Ruhr industrial valley.

The 3d army from its Mainz bridgehead seized the German industrial city of Darmstadt, while its new Rhine crossings were made at several points be-

SEE FOE WASHED UP AS AMERICANS SPEED UP DRIVE

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY ACROSS THE RHINE, Germany, March 25.—While German forces east of the Rhine river are fleeing in panic tonight before 3d army tanks and infantry, the whole attitude of the American forces is one of eager expectancy, peculiarly like that which prevailed just before Paris fell. Optimists — including most members of the press camp—are openly declaring the war is over and that only large scale mopping up remains. Even the pessimists admit the Nazis can't hold out more than a matter of weeks at the most.

Swift expansion of "Patton's bridgehead," a story on every one's lips, and matters such as today's capture of Darmstadt by the crack 90th division, or the fabulous 4th armored's seizure of a Main river bridge are among reasons for the optimism.

Warn Civilian Snipers.

The attitude of German civilians is a curious mixture. While the 90th division reports that its men were fired on by civilians it also reports other civilians have pointed out Nazi infantry and tank concentrations in wooded areas.

The civilians are being warned that any caught sniping at American troops will be shot without trial. The warning, of course, does not apply to the volkssturm [home guard] who are considered members of the German armed forces by virtue of wearing a uniform with distinguishing marks.

When truck loads of German prisoners toll thru east bank towns, there is an odd similarity to scenes when the Yanks rolled thru France and Belgium. Only this time the scenes are a bit in reverse. Civilians wave greetings and when the trucks pause, they hand up black bread and wines to the captives as tho they were the conquering instead of the conquered.

Flyers Describe Scene.

Pilots say the scene from the air on both sides of the bridgehead is incredible, with long lines of all sorts of vehicles waiting to cross, huge dust clouds marking where others are moving up. There is a similar panorama on the east side once the bridge bottleneck is passed.

tween Coblenz and Boppard, which are seven miles away.

One force had pushed two and a half miles inland, but a second struck a hard core of resistance and was held to a foothold little more than a mile deep.

The 3d army, brushing past scattered resistance, expanded its Mainz-Worms bridgehead to a width of 14 miles.

Farther south, the United States 7th army drove up all along its front to the Rhine, putting a firm period to Gen. Eisenhower's orders to destroy every enemy soldier west of the river by liquidating the last German stand. Only enemy stragglers remained on the west bank.

Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th army was driving east with the same blazing tactics in the Ruhr that broke German power west of the Rhine in the Roer river offensive. Infantrymen clambered aboard tanks in swift pursuit of the retreating enemy.

The 9th's 30th infantry division, breaking the German Rhine line, was nearing the super-highway to Berlin where it swings eight miles east of the river a mile northeast of Bruckhausen.

Field officers declared that the 30th had gone clear thru the organized German defense lines and "broken into the open country of the northern Ruhr," with enemy resistance appearing to be completely disintegrated.

Airmen who during the day destroyed or damaged 99 pieces of armor and 117 motor transport declared German armored forces in the path of the 9th were milling around in a state of confusion.

On the south flank, the 79th infantry, which with the 30th forced the 9th's crossings, had captured the Ruhr city of Dinslaken with a population of 24,000.

Then driving four miles east of the Rhine, they pushed a mile beyond Hiersfeld, where they were 10 miles northwest of Essen, Germany's sixth city with a population of 659,871. It is the home of the great Krupp munitions works.

Wesel in British Hands.

Northward the British 2d army welded the 30 mile bridgehead firmly with the capture of the Ruhr gateway city of Wesel, and drove eight miles out on the north German plain across six bridges on the Issel river captured by the allied 1st air borne army.

With the crossings now secure, with the enemy yet unable to mount a major counter-attack, and with tanks streaming across the river in growing numbers, Field Marshal Montgomery crossed the Rhine to direct operations, accompanied by Prime Minister Churchill.

The Rhine was alive with naval landing craft pouring men, tanks, and guns into the four-army bridgehead, and allied sky trains landed great stores of freight uninterrupted.

More Bridges Thrown Over.

Both the British 2d army and the United States 9th had thrown bridges across the stream [the Brussels radio said 20 had been completed] and were swiftly building up for a knockout blow. Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey, the British commander, was in the field east of the Rhine.

More than 8,000 prisoners already had been taken, 3,500 of them by the air borne forces which seized nearly every objective and joined up with the British at two or more points.

The first German mobile reserves to enter the battle clashed with Scottish troops in the northern part of the bridgehead, and AP Correspondent William Frye said the enemy obviously was not yet ready to commit the bulk of his forces.

The point of deepest penetration on the British front was nearly eight miles northwest of Wesel. Farther west, the fighting Scots captured Haminkeln, seven miles beyond the Rhine, and pressed on beyond near the Issel.

Yanks, Britons Link Up.

A junction of the British 2d and United States 9th armies came near the Lippe river, south of Wesel, where the locks of the Lippe canal were taken.

Among the towns falling to the 9th army were Lohnen, Mollen, Overbruch, Walsum, Linden, Lipperdorf, and Slockum.

The massive 1st army drive breaking out of its bridgehead on the road to Berlin battered into German lines before dawn, and shot forward three miles in the first six hours with whooping, dust-covered doughboys riding on tanks.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' men captured Asbach, controling an important road network, and Kircheip, 13 miles east of the Rhine on the Henef-Altenkirchen highway.

Famous 1st in Action.

Supported by a heavy artillery concentration, the 1st army troops shattered the crust of enemy resistance built around the bridgehead, and rolled eastward on roads leading to the heart of the reich.

Censorship permitted disclosure that the famous 1st infantry division was in action on the bridgehead, along with the 9th, 78th, and 99th infantry divisions.

One armored division, pushing east six miles today, captured Flammersfeld, 14 miles east of the Rhine. On the south flank, troops speared thru Bensdorf and captured Vallendar, three miles from Coblenz and about 11 miles from the 3d army's new crossings.

The Germans were knocked back all along the line. The lunge caught the Nazis as they were building up to launch a major counter-blow against the northeastern flank of the bridgehead.

Endless columns of troops and armor pushed ahead in a series of leapfrog attacks.

Total Gains Untold.

Due to the confusion in enemy ranks, total gains for the day were blacked out by censorship.

It was permitted to disclose, however, that 3d army elements had moved 12 miles northwest of Darmstadt, and the 5th infantry in advances up to two miles was 10 miles southwest of Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

Forces pushing out south and west of Darmstadt widened the bridgehead to more than 14 miles, capturing Eberstadt, Pfungstadt, Goddelau, Juggenheim, and Hann.

Patton's troops processed a new record bag of 18,818 prisoners Saturday, raising its total since last August to 297,950—the greatest number captured by any western front army.

In one town, Erfelden, captured Saturday, German civilians and policemen fought the Americans with bazookas and rifles.

With seizure of Ludwigshafen, Patton got the biggest plant yet to fall in allied hands—the three mile long I. G. Farben establishment which is a center of chemical production and research and a major source of the reich's synthetic oil. It was one of five main Farben plants. Three others already are destroyed or in allied hands.

SUPER-HIGHWAYS MAY BE USED TO TRAP NAZIS

Hitler's own super highways, built in the late 1930's under the guise of public works, but designed secretly by and for the Nazi war machine, can spell doom for Hitler's armies in western Germany. Already, American armies have crossed two of these arteries, and use of the super highways may enable two American forces to join 50 or 100 miles back of the Rhine, sealing off the Nazi defenders in a giant pocket.

Beyond the Rhine, on the north, the United States 9th army is entering the great German plains, softly rolling countryside, ideal for tank warfare. The 9th is reported to be about 10 miles from Essen. North of Essen lies one of Hitler's super highways leading eastward toward Berlin. The United States 3d army has captured a bridge on the Main river, apparently by-passing Frankfurt, and now is reported 40 miles east of the Rhine. Just north of the 3d army is another super highway, which leads north at that spot but farther on veers toward the east.

If the 9th army races eastward along the super highway north of Essen, it might reach a position 50 to 100 miles nearer to Berlin. Meanwhile, control of the super highway near Frankfurt-on-the-Main, could enable Gen. Patton's 3d army to drive to the northeast, eventually joining with the 9th army miles behind the German front.

BURNED GLIDERS LITTER FIELDS —VICTORY PRICE

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

XANTEN, Germany, March 25.—Supplies, men, and guns of Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st army group were pouring across the Rhine on the road toward Berlin today, while German prisoners were being herded in the opposite direction, at this battered town which was once a Roman garrison protecting civilization against the Hun. Cross traffic shuttled in motor ferries and amphibious craft at this bridgehead, secured in yesterday's air and water borne assault.

A jeep tour of the battle area where parachute and glider troops won the crossing indicated that the victory was substantial but was not attained without paying the price anticipated in such operations. The one British and one American division which made the jumps or glides were badly hit by flak but kept crack German troops from moving up to counter the landings. Burned and smashed gliders littered open fields.

Dead Lie Where They Fell.

The number of casualties has not been announced for either side. On the tour, correspondents noted four or five thousand prisoners, some tough looking panzers but others too young or too old to fight, according to allied standards. The German dead were lying where they fell. Allied dead and wounded were being moved to the rear.

In a woods about 10 miles square, British and Americans were hunting prisoners and snipers to clear what is becoming a new base to meet counter-attacks and prepare for a further push. The Issel canal and river, parallel to and about eight miles from the Rhine, have been crossed, and there was some indication this might become a new line until more men and equipment are moved across the Rhine.

A clash in large force was still in the offing. A light German counter-attack was beaten off. While the Germans lost many men, they withdrew most of their equipment and remained as a threat.

Dogfights All Day.

In the air over the Rhine here, one dogfight after another was in progress much of the day. Jerries, singly or in pairs, approached for scouting or harassment bombing, and were driven off by the royal air force and anti-aircraft guns without interrupting the traffic crossing the river. Last night the Germans bombed the bridge approaches, with little damage resulting.

The major general [name suppressed by British censors] who commanded the air borne operation also toured the landing fields today and while regretting his losses was as pleased by its success as were Field Marshal Montgomery and Prime Minister Churchill when they watched the performance yesterday from a bluff on the west side of the Rhine.

ROCKET BURIED IN SOLDIER'S LEG IS EXTRACTED

WITH THE U. S. 7TH CORPS IN GERMANY, March 25 (AP).—Directed by a bomb disposal officer, an army surgeon today successfully removed an unexploded rocket projectile from a soldier's thigh.

The soldier was struck during a test firing of a captured weapon yesterday. The projectile buried itself deep in his flesh about seven inches above the knee. The main explosive charge had been removed, but the rocket still held a booster charge easily strong enough to have blown off his leg.

Germans Captured in British Drive Across Rhine

First German prisoners taken by British forces during allied advance across the lower Rhine river in Xanten area are marched to the rear.

FLYERS SMASH NAZI DEFENSES; AID RUHR DRIVE

Blast Strong Points in Path of Troops.

LONDON, March 26 [Monday] (AP).—Mosquitos and American night prowling planes joined in hammering Germany last night after German strong points and reënforcement centers in front of Field Marshal Montgomery's drive north of the Ruhr were pulverized in daylight by thousands of allied planes. The Mosquitos hit Berlin for the 34th consecutive night.

Striking from bases in England and the continent, American and British planes flew more than 6,500 sorties from dawn to dusk yesterday in support of the ground offensive and knocked out 6,000 enemy vehicles of all types.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the Italy based United States 15th air force struck German air fields near Prague from which the Germans have been operating against Russian troops.

Attack U-Boats.

British planes also ranged against enemy shipping yesterday and Friday night, the air ministry announcing effective attacks Friday night on six U-boats, 12 freighters, and three armed escorts in the western Baltic and in Dutch and Norwegian waters. Eight of the ships received direct hits.

Medium bombers, flying in close support of the allied ground offensives, claimed to have knocked out 40 guns in a 42 gun concentration which had been shelling the allied crossings yesterday.

The 29th tactical air command, in its biggest day of operations, flew 741 sorties yesterday, mostly in support of the United States 9th army's Rhine crossing.

A strong force of British based R. A. F. Lancasters and Halifaxes with a fighter escort—approximately 800 planes in all—smashed Hannover, Osnabruck, and Muenster, main enemy rail centers ahead of the advancing British and Americans. Well over 3,000 tons of bombs were dropped.

Two hundred and fifty United States 8th air force Liberators escorted by an equal number of fighters attacked three underground oil storage depots at Ehmen, 12 miles northeast of Brunswick; Buchen, 25 miles east of Hamburg, and Hitzacker, 50 miles southeast of Hamburg.

The task force was challenged by 10 German jet-propelled planes and fighter pilots shot down four of them. Several got thru and shot down six of the attacking bombers and one fighter.

Upwards of 1,500 other 8th air force heavies blasted 16 scattered enemy air fields climaxing a four day campaign during which at least 25 different German airdromes, most of them jet bases, have been attacked.

[A Reuters dispatch from Paris said four bombers and three fighters previously reported missing from Saturday's 8th air force operations have been found safe, bringing the day's total losses to 22 bombers and four fighters missing.]

Nazis Report Swedish Decision to Stay Neutral

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—A German Transocean broadcast tonight quoted Swedish Defense Minister Per Edvin Skoeld as saying in a speech at Malmoe, Sweden, that Sweden would remain neutral despite "some criticism" from abroad. "There is no sense, by taking part in the war at the last moment, to change Sweden from a country able to help others into the state of wanting help itself," Transocean quoted Skoeld as saying.

HAIFA, Palestine, March 25 (AP). Nine hundred Jewish refugees from central Europe who were liberated in Italy in 1943 arrived in Haifa today by ship. Some had started for Palestine as early as 1940 but were shipwrecked and interned by the Italians.

PATIENT GERMAN THOUSANDS WAIT LISTING BY U. S.

COLOGNE, Germany, March 25 (AP).—Thousands of Germans stand patiently in long lines in the American occupied Rhineland, waiting to register and be finger printed for the American military government.

The registration is being managed by surprisingly few Americans. At each center a couple of helmeted M.P.'s attend to the finger printing. They say nothing, and are neither brusque nor familiar. A few military government officials supervise the German clerks, mostly women, in noting answers to the short questionnaire.

The registration catches some Nazis of dubious records and they are held for closer scrutiny for possible war crime guilt. It also traps numerous deserters from the German army, who are hustled off to war prisoner camps. Also, it almost automatically catches many young women. Virtually all had been members of the BDM [Society of German Maidens]. Boys of the Hitler Youth are mostly in the army or east of the Rhine but many girls stayed home. The girls' usual explanation is that the German girl had no choice in membership.

Reports U. S. Saboteurs Land in Sweden by Error

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 25 (AP).—Reports here tonight said five American saboteurs mistakenly dropped into Sweden instead of Norway Saturday night. Early Sunday Swedes found quantities of munitions and explosives which had been parachuted onto a frozen lake. In the neighborhood five men were hiding in the belief they were in Norway. This was the first indication that American sabotage experts were being dropped in Norway.

GROUND FORCES LINK UP WITH AIR BORNE UNITS

Troopers Whoop It Up as Comrades Arrive.

BY HOWARD COWAN.

WITH THE 17TH AIR BORNE DIVISION, March 25 (AP).—A linkup between Field Marshal Montgomery's ground forces and troops of the 1st allied air borne army was accomplished this morning when three big tank destroyers rumbled into the pine woods hiding the air borne's command post.

British crews operating the 90 millimeter dreadnaughts didn't stop long—just long enough for the hilarious air borne troops to do some back pounding and handshaking. Then they thundered on eastward to lend a new voice of authority to the allied drive beyond the Rhine.

The bridgehead this morning extends along the east bank of the Rhine from Wesel to a point about two miles downstream from Rees.

G. P.s Repel Germans.

A valiant band of glider pilots—doughfoots call them G. P.'s—held off the biggest counter-attack the Germans could muster last night and in the hours before dawn today.

That was down on a sector held by the 194th regiment. They stood firm, as a lone Mark IV. tank and about 150 German infantrymen approached. The moon was still bright and it was easy to see except in the shadows. That's where the G. P.s were concealed with bazookas, anti-tank guns, carbines, grenades, and any other weapons they could find.

When the head of the enemy column was a little more than 100 feet away, the pilots cut loose with a deafening barrage. The smoking tank turned tail and the Jerries followed suit.

Thereafter it was strictly a race between German tanks and daylight. We knew and they knew that swarms of Mustangs and Typhoons would be up with the dawn, scourging German targets. With a much appreciated assist from the G. P.s daylight won.

Night Fighters Out.

Today the skies are slightly hazy, but there is the constant drone of fighter planes overhead and we are getting almost no trouble from German artillery and none at all from the German air force.

Nazi night fighters were busy last night. One was shot down by ground gunners of the 194th. A Junkers 88 crashed into a field jammed with wrecked gliders and set the whole lot blazing.

Now we are waiting for more ammunition, more jeeps, and more chow. They have promised us some by air and more should be coming overland since the junction with the ground forces.

I landed with the 17th air borne yesterday at 11:30 a. m. Our glider ran smack up against a fence and within easy reach of a nest of German sharpshooters.

More Troops Land.

Thirteen of us, including two men wounded after landing, lay in a shallow ditch with red water and slimy weeds up to our chins for more than an hour until additional glider infantry came down and helped clean out the hundred Germans scattered near by.

Just outside this command post a splintered glider hangs from the top of a sturdy limbed oak. The bodies of two men still lie in the wreckage—one of them that of the pilot.

Every vacant field for miles around, however, is littered with craft, and few show more than a bashed in nose or a cracked fuselage. Casualties have been low.

FEAR INCREASES FOR MILLIONS OF NAZIS' CAPTIVES

BERN, Switzerland, March 25 (AP).—Fear for the ultimate safety of allied war prisoners and conscripted foreign workers in Germany is increasing as the eastern and western offensives clamp a pincers tighter on the reich.

The international Red Cross has lost contact with hundreds of thousands among the 15 million prisoners and workers in Germany. Altho the Red Cross recently used allied army trucks for a dash to some camps with food parcels, the general situation is confused and critical.

Thousands are believed to have been rescued by the Russian advances, and others to have been rescued or to have escaped as the British and Americans pushed across the Rhine. What happened to many will not be known until long after the war.

The estimated 15,000,000 foreign workers and prisoners of war in Germany include about 2,000,000 French and about 3,000,000 Poles, with the remainder largely Russians. Red Cross negotiations on treatment of prisoners have not yet obtained solid results.

BERLIN 20% GONE, LONDON ONLY 2½, EXPERTS REPORT

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLOGNE, Germany, March 25.—Examining the results of bombing on Cologne, Krefeld, and Muenchen-Gladbach, it has been discovered the damage inflicted is 10 to 15 per cent below the estimates based on aerial photographs and other sources of intelligence, thus establishing an accurate yardstick for statistics.

It is revealed that, whereas 4,000 acres of Berlin's built-up area, totaling 20,000 acres, has been wiped out [or 20 per cent destruction], Greater London, covering 250,000 acres, suffered 5,600 acres destroyed [or about two and one-half per cent], including 334 acres destroyed in the "city" which is the heart of old London, including parts of the dock area and portions of the slums.

These figures do not include damage from flying bombs and rockets, the former of which chiefly break glass and slate roofs and cause many casualties from flying debris, but inflicted little demolition.

Hamburg 74 Per Cent Gone.

Cologne observations confirm the estimates of Hamburg destruction as 6,200 acres of the 8,200 acres in the built-up portion of the city, or 74 per cent, and in the Ruhr cities, Bochum, 83 per cent; Mulheim, 63 per cent; Essen, 50 per cent; Duisburg, 44 per cent; Dortmund, 48 per cent; Elberfeld, 97 per cent, and Barmen, 57 per cent.

Royal air force estimates on casualties, based on experience in England and information obtained in Stockholm, show Germany suffered 2,000,000 casualties from bombing up to last June, compared with 200,000 in Britain during the six months' blitz of 1940-41, which was to be expected in proportion to tons dropped and areas demolished.

It is also revealed that incendiary bombs inflict the greatest damage thru conflagration, but it is necessary to inject a certain proportion of high explosives to disrupt fire fighting organizations, smash water mains and gas lines, and wreck certain buildings to start the fires raging.

Few Landmarks Damaged.

The figures confirm my observations that post-war tourists in England will be amazed at the small amount of damage from raids discernible, and visitors familiar with pre-war London will be dumfounded to find so few familiar haunts and landmarks damaged. During the blitz, Americans received the impression that about one London building out of three was rubbled or badly shattered.

But the concentrated blitzed area, 134 acres of the old city, where damage is greatest, is an area which few tourists or residents visit except to inspect the Bank of England, as it is far removed from the fashionable West End theaters, hotels, restaurants, night clubs, and other attractions.

R. A. F. officials state that despite repeated reports the Nazis long ago dispersed the Ruhr's industries to other areas of Germany, there are no indications they even attempted to move heavy industry, relying instead on immediate repair to resume production.

These experts also scoff at statements the Germans put factories underground to escape bombing, and cite figures and facts to prove the utter impossibility of creating subterranean industries in five years, and the fact that nowhere in the regions wrested from the Nazis have they discovered quarries, caves, or other subsurface areas utilized for industry.

"Ask Henry Ford how long it'd require to put his plant underground," is the way they dismiss the subject.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lt. Col. E. E. McClish with his wife and two children, Patricia Ann, and Richard, in reunion yesterday.

Lt. Col. Ernest E. McClish, 35, who led a guerrilla force on Mindanao after the fall of Bataan, saw his 3 year old son, Richard, for the first time yesterday.

The meeting took place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Humphrey, 105 W. 35th av., Gary. Mrs. Humphrey is a sister of Col. McClish's wife, Eleanor. Also present was the McClish's daughter, Patricia Ann, 8.

Col. McClish arrived in San Francisco March 16, and arrived in Gary yesterday for the reunion with his family. After reporting to Fort Sheridan, he plans to visit his mother, Mrs. R. E. McClish, in Okmulgee, Okla.

ENGINEERS SET WORLD PONTOON BRIDGE RECORD

ON THE RHINE, March 25 (AP).—The general estimated it would take 48 hours. The colonel said maybe it could be done in 36. The lieutenant colonel thought it might be done in 24. But a bunch of determined engineer G. I.s and their junior officers, sweating and swearing, did it in nine hours.

They built the longest treadway pontoon bridge in the world, 1,146 feet across the Rhine south of Wesel, breaking every existing bridge building record to do it.

SHELL EXPLODES NEAR CHURCHILL ON RHINE BRIDGE

Premier Insists Upon Crossing Stream.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, March 25.—Prime Minister Churchill, Field Marshal Montgomery, and Lt. Gen. Simpson crossed the Rhine this afternoon in a navy landing craft in the American 30th division sector.

The party remained 15 minutes, and Simpson dissuaded the prime minister from walking into the nearest village, because mines had not all been swept up.

Churchill climbed out on the debris of the wrecked bridge at Wesel for a closer view of the ruined town. As he peered thru binoculars, a salvo of German shells whistled in and projectiles exploded in the Rhine 50 yards away. Churchill was unruffled. Two more shells fell in fields west of the river, and Simpson hurried the party rearward.

Eats Fried Chicken.

Maj. "Barney" Oldfield, in charge of the 9th army press camp, invited me to accompany he party, as a representative of American and British newspaper correspondents. It was considered inexpedient to permit a large number of reporters and jeeps to accompany the party.

Gen. Eisenhower, Simpson, and Lt. Gen. Bradley met Churchill and his party, including Gen. Alan F. Brooke, chief of the imperial staff, at the headquarters of Maj. Gen. John Anderson, commanding the American 16th corps. The party enjoyed a luncheon of fried chicken, potato salad, deviled eggs, cheese sandwiches, and chocolate cake on the lawn as anti-aircraft and machine gunners posted on the grounds scanned the skies.

Enjoys His Highball.

The prime minister enjoyed his usual whisky and soda with the meal, and teetotaler Monty stuck to water. Churchill wore the uniform of a British colonel.

The party climbed into Rolls Royces, Lincolns, and jeeps, protected by mobile anti-aircraft and machine guns, and scooted eastward along dusty roads. Vehicles bearing stickers "Bridging construction—priority" had the right of way, and they hammered forward.

The party dismounted at a battered roadhouse facing the Rhine. From a second floor balcony, Churchill stared across the Rhine.

"The last time I was on the Rhine was in the Cologne bridgehead after the last war, when we cruised 50 miles up the river in a British gunboat," said the prime minister. "I should like very much to go across."

Eisenhower shook his head disapprovingly. So did Monty. But Ike had to leave, and after his departure Churchill coaxed Gen. Anderson into agreeing to the excursion.

Churchill was first ashore on the east bank of the Rhine, where a few yards away a couple of Yanks played catch. The prime minister climbed to the top of the first dike and started toward a village a mile away.

"This area is not entirely swept of mines," warned Gen. Anderson. Monty whispered a further admonition. Churchill dejectedly abandoned his promenade and the party returned across the Rhine.

Monty Looks Worried.

Monty looked worried and even the debonair Gen. Simpson showed concern when Churchill clambered on the girders of the demolished Wesel bridge.

I heard several cracks and pings and asked Military Policeman Pvt. Larry Kelly of Cleveland, O., on road duty at the bridge, what they were.

"Jerry snipers in the buildings by the river front have been potting at our lads crossing all day," he said, indicating Yank formations on the west bank.

"We got some fellows cleaning them out," said Pvt. James Fortuin, 936 W. Marquette rd., Chicago. "See the boys snaking along by that busted church? They're mopping up."

From a distance I heard four detonations, and seconds later a quartet of geysers 50 feet high erupted in the middle of the river, evenly spaced, with the nearest about 50 yards from the bridge where Churchill perched.

"Better take cover; they're laying them in again," advised Staff Sgt. James Scott, a Negro, of 723 E. 40th st., Chicago, pointing to a foxhole in the bridge embankment. Two more shells fell in the fields, 100 yards behind us.

Montgomery and Simpson abandoned diplomatic language and insisted Churchill leave the area immediately. They bundled the prime minister and party into cars and dashed westward. Every one breathed easier.

Ex-Cuban President Visits Chicago

Gen. Fulgencio Batista (front, center), his wife, Elsa (right), and niece, Dulce Acerevo, arriving at North Western station yesterday.

Plans 3-Day Stay

Gen. Fulgencio Batista, former president of Cuba, arrived here yesterday on the Overland Limited of the North Western railroad with members of his family and other former Cuban officials for a three day visit in Chicago during a tour of the United States.

They will travel today to Springfield, where Batista will place a wreath on Lincoln's tomb.

"I have admired Lincoln as the representative of the highest ideals for mankind since I was a boy and I have looked forward to the time when I could pay such homage to him," Batista said.

Commenting on the recent report of a plot against the government of Cuba, Batista said he "condemned any movement to break up Cuba's constitutional form of government."

NAZI PRISONERS DROWN AS RHINE BARGE TIPS OVER

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IN THE U. S. 3D ARMY BRIDGEHEAD, on the Rhine, March 24 [Delayed].—Three hundred Nazi prisoners being ferried across the Rhine this afternoon were suddenly thrown into the water when the barge they were on sank beneath them.

Altho the American LCVP [landing craft vehicles and personnel] crew made every effort to pick up the struggling men, most of whom were hampered by overcoats, mess gear, and other equipment, many drowned.

We watched from the west shore while the bobbing heads became fewer as the current bore them down stream and racing boats hurried toward the scene. Survivors brought ashore were shivering from their icy bath and many were sick from swallowing quantities of water. We counted more than 100 saved, and the count was incomplete since all the rescue boats were not in.

Two Yanks Rescued.

Among the survivors were two Yanks—Pvt. Paul Clem of Harlan, Ky., and Pvt. Robert Lewis of Malone, N. Y., who were helping to run the barge, which was of the pontoon type.

Clem said the LCVP which was helping to nudge the ferry across tipped one end of tne ferry, and the prisoners became panicky and all rushed to one side, which caused it to tip and sink.

Pull Each Other Down.

"They struggled and shouted," Clem said, "hanging to each other and pulling each other down." Clem managed to get himself into the boat and then pulled Lewis in after the latter had sunk twice beneath the struggling mass.

One amazing thing about the scene was the fact that all the time the men were drowning, the Yanks kept moving steadily across a bridge into Germany.

5TH DIVISION SET UP PATTON BRIDGEHEAD

EAST OF THE RHINE, March 23 [Delayed by censor] (AP).—The 5th [Red Diamond] infantry division under Maj. Gen. Leroy S. Irwin was the United States 3d army outfit that established the Rhine bridgehead between Mainz and Worms.

The doughboys who touched the first assault boat against the east bank of the Rhine the night of March 22 represented a roll call of seven states. They included Lt. John A. Mannaw of Rensselaer, Ind.; Corp. Richard E. Rose of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Pvt. Virgil Miller of Connersville, Ind. Another in this early wave was Sgt. Lawrence A. Wilcox of Chicago.

REDS THROW NEW ARMY INTO BIG DRIVE ON VIENNA

Reach 77 Miles from the Austrian Capital.

LONDON, March 26 [Monday]—(AP).—Red army tank spearheads raced within 36 miles of Austria and 77 miles southeast of Vienna yesterday as a second mighty soviet army joined Russia's Vienna bound offensive sweeping across industrial western Hungary on a 90 mile front.

While Marshal Tolbukhin's 3d Ukraine army gained up to 16 miles overnight, Premier Stalin announced that the 2d Ukraine army under Marshal Malinovsky had joined the battle and gained 28 miles in the initial phases of an offensive along the south bank of the Danube.

The two armies were within six miles of Komarom, Danube river key to Vienna and Bratislava, had outflanked the great rail city of Gyor, and were battering Nazi defenses only four miles from a key communications center, Moscow disclosed.

Capture Ancient Capital.

Malinovsky's army, which until its present offensive had been poised on the north bank of the Danube, joined Tolbukhin's forces on the south bank after recapturing the ancient Hungarian capital of Esztergom, 19 miles northwest of Budapest. The Germans had retaken Esztergom in their January attempt to relieve Budapest.

Malinovsky's army, under 27 generals and a rear admiral of the Danube river naval flotilla, swept over all territory lost to the recent German counter-offensive, regained rich oil and coal deposits in the Vertes mountains west of Budapest, and swept forward 28 miles. More than 200 communities and 7,000 enemy troops were captured, boosting to 83,000 the enemy's losses in the two army offensive.

Close In on Rail Center.

Pushing west on a 20 mile front, the 2d Ukrainians swept along the Danube's bank as far as Duna-Almas, 11 miles east of Komarom, while spearheads a few miles south of the river drove on farther to win Mocsa, six miles southeast of the key stronghold which lies astride both banks of the river.

These forces were 59 miles southeast of the Slovak capital of Bratislava and 24 miles east of Gyor, great 16-way road and rail center considered an outer fortress of Vienna. Beyond are the mountains in which the Nazis may attempt to make their last stand.

At the south end of his front Malinovsky's troops captured Csaszar, 16 miles south of Komarom and five miles east of Kisber, rail center menaced by Tolbukhin's troops only two miles on the southeast. At this point the two armies linked to build up a solid 90 mile front stretching from the Danube to the west shore of Lake Ballaton.

Cut Vital Road.

Tolbukhin's tanks and infantry captured Papateszer, 20 miles south of Gyor, cutting the Kisber-Papa railroad and highway protecting Gyor, on the south, while 10 miles to the southwest his advance elements tore out a 16 mile gain that carried them within four miles of Papa. The Russians at this point were closest to the Austrian frontier and to Vienna. They also were 62 miles southeast of Wiener Neustadt, aircraft manufacturing center.

Enemy broadcasts said Marshal Konev's 1st Ukrainian army was attacking in southwest Poland an a 10 mile front toward Moravska-Ostrava, industrial city guarding the Moravian gap. The Germans conceded that Konev's forces had torn deep breaches in Nazi lines between Zary, 23 miles northeast of the Czechoslovak guardian city, and Strumien, 21 miles east.

The eastern front appeared to be blazing into a full scale offensive. Berlin spoke of a new soviet drive in southwestern Poland aimed at the Moravian gap leading into Czechoslovakia and on to Prague and Vienna.

Premier Stalin announced the fall of Heiligenbeil, last big enemy stronghold in East Prussia southwest of Koenigsberg. The Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia, shelled and bombed by Russian artillery and planes, faced capture as the Russians took a suburb of Danzig and pushed closer to Gdynia.

GERMAN LARDER HELD YARDSTICK OF RESISTANCE

BY CHRISTER JAEDERLUND.

[Berlin correspondent of Stockholms Tidningen, who has just returned to Stockholm.]

[Copyright: 1945: By the Associated Press.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 25 (AP).—Revolution from below still looks highly improbable in Germany, unless starvation drives the people into the streets or a beaten army floods back in a state of disintegration.

The first signs of a real collapse of the Nazi food system will cause more panic in the reich than the worst military defeat. So far the German food rationing and supply systems have functioned extremely well, altho rations, particularly fats, have been short.

Rich Farm Lands Lost.

But allied bombing of food factories and storehouses and crippling of the transport system plus the loss of Germany's richest agricultural lands in the east have changed the situation. The Germans now associate the duration of the war with the food supply.

"The war will end," Berliners say, "when Goering can put on Goebbels' trousers."

[A new German order forbids planting of flowers even for use in cemeteries. The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported that parks and sports fields were being plowed under for planting of vegetables.]

Deserters Underground.

Altho foreign agents have attempted to form so-called troicas after the Baltic pattern—groups of three men each as a basic cell for a wider resistance movement—it was not until the Red army invaded Germany that Berliners began inquiring about the chances of joining an "organization."

In addition to war prisoners and Jews who have gone into hiding there are army deserters. Remnants of the beaten Vistula army were the first to go underground in Berlin. It was estimated their number reached 40,000.

The first serious breach of the rationing discipline occurred with well informed party men and wholesalers informing one another of extra sales several days before the public was notified. When the public lined up all the best things were gone.

Food Stocks Withdrawn.

When the Russians reached the Oder and Berliners thought the capital might be besieged within hours they suddenly found tradesmen no longer had anything to sell.

On the following day goods reappeared. This was the most serious sign of disintegration on the rationing front. When everything begins to collapse and the people of Berlin see nothing ahead but siege or flight, then not even the strictest measures will prevent the remaining stocks from vanishing among relatives, friends, and favorite customers, then the less fortunate, faced with starvation, will take to the streets in search of food.

PRAVDA REPORTS BRUENING BID TO BE 'HITLER HEIR'

Tells of Plan to Build Catholic Regime.

MOSCOW, March 25 (AP).—Ilya Ehrenburg, writing in Pravda, asserted today that Dr. Heinrich Bruening, Hitler's predecessor as chancellor of Germany, has put forth "his candidacy as the heir of Hitler."

Dr. Bruening.

"In East Prussia," Ehrenburg wrote, "I met a Catholic vicar who explained a plan to create 'a strong Catholic German power.' Other priests spoke of the same thing. We have before us not dreamers but representatives of a disciplined organization.

Speaks About Past.

"The salvation of German imperialism has been turned over to the Catholic center. The fuehrer of German Catholics, Bruening, now living in the United States, has spoken, now that the route of Zhukov and Eisenhower has become clear. In articles for German Social Democratic newspapers he speaks about the past but thinks about the future. He puts forth his candidacy as the heir of Hitler.

"It is easy to understand, if the fuehrer of German Catholics can peacefully express such abominable opinions in the United States. This means he has supporters and defenders.

"Bruening is not a dreamer. The Catholic newspapers of the United States are busy now with the rehabilitation of Germany. If one could forget these newspapers were published in the English language one might take them to be German newspapers.

No Relation to Religion.

"Like the Germans living in America or the Americans who think in German, the Roman pope is also busy with the one thing—how to save Germany from retaliation. All this has not any relation to religion—this is politics. The Vatican does not want to save German children but the German army from the Stormoviks.

"The Catholic religion as such is not at fault. The Catholics of France, Belgium, and Poland courageously fought against the German invaders. These Catholics can only be surprised at seeing how the Vatican is attempting to whitewash the criminals. The Vatican is afraid that with the doom of fascism there will be a rebirth of light, wisdom, and freedom."

'Nonsense,' Says Bruening.

Boston, Mass., March 25 (AP).—"Utter nonsense," was Dr. Heinrich Bruening's comment tonight on a story published in the Moscow newspaper Pravda, asserting that he had put forth "his candidacy as the heir of Hitler."

Dr. Bruening, who now is professor of government at Harvard university, read the Moscow dispatch, and said:

"From beginning to end, it is all utter nonsense."

Bruening, a staunch Catholic who was a foe of Hitler's policies, was German chancellor from March, 1930, to May, 1932.

What Science Has Done For Ugly, Ageing Skin

Science has discovered that a vital Hormone helps revive the youthful appearance and texture of the skin.

This revitalising influence is similar in effect to the natural substance which is plentiful in youth but which diminishes with increasing age. That's one reason why skin grows dry, thin and wrinkled as age gradually creeps in.

That is why women over 30 are using QUEENOL each night because it contains the Hormones which help to restore the firm, smooth, freshness and beauty . . . the youthful texture of the skin that age steals away.

This helpful, revitalizing Hormone substance is thoroughly absorbed through the skin to where its activity helps stimulate the building of new cells, new tissue.

Each bottle of QUEENOL contains 36,000 Int. units of this estrogenic Hormone substance—providing an adequate 30-day supply.

Reporter Discovers Task to Be Tough Pull.

BY GAYLE WARNOCK.

Chicagoans, hard pressed to find pork, beef, lamb, or poultry for the next day's menu, are turning to sea food for an entree, unaware that the chances are they're buying fish from their own front yard.

Five fishing boats in Chicago and 26 in Waukegan, operating five and six days a week, are supplying the metropolitan area with 16 million pounds of fresh fish each year. In addition, individual sportsmen, who drop their lines from any one of five available piers on Chicago's lake front, pull in an estimated 500,000 pounds free for home consumption.

In "Illinois Waters."

This huge supply comes from the sharply defined "Illinois" waters of Lake Michigan, in an area not more than four hours travel [40 miles] from Navy pier or two hours from Waukegan.

By brute strength and perseverance—and it takes a goodly amount of both—the normally easy-going skippers of Lake Michigan are providing Chicagoans with more than one-half of all the fresh water fish consumed by a city suddenly conscious of trout, perch, and herring.

The easy, lazy life on a 45 foot lake boat is something for post-war planning. You can't have it now. It's only something to dream about.

One of these boats is the H. Waterhill, powered by a six cylinder, dual ignition gasoline engine, capable of hauling 21 tons. It's never had that many fish on it, but the skipper, Stanley Post, 32, of 1406 Superior st., is an optimist. Once he caught 8,500 pounds on one trip—and another time he caught 80 pounds. But he averages 600 pounds a trip.

Up at 4:30 in the morning, Post works hard at getting everything in readiness to leave the dock at 2120 Canal st. at 6 a. m.

Yesterday the boat set out for trout. The lake was blanketed with steam. Chicago's skyline dropped out of sight within five minutes and thruout the day the sun shone brightly only once.

72 Year Veteran.

The skipper said he would head northeast by north, one-quarter north, for two hours. One hour and 59 minutes later he sighted one of his buoys. It wasn't the one he had in mind, but it would have to do, because visibility was only "one minute" and the chances too great that No. 8 buoy would be missed. So he took No. 9 buoy instead.

On the boat deck, Post's stepfather, Robert Keuther, 72, of 1327 Walton st., a grizzled veteran of 50 years on the lakes, and Andrew Budish, 57, of 2120 Canal st., who had worked as a fisherman's helper for 38 years, hurriedly set up the "lift," a motor driven mechanism which pulls in the gill net at the rate of 8,000 feet an hour.

A side of the boat mysteriously opened where no door had been before, the buoy was pulled in, and the lift began grabbing for the gill net, a thin, strong mesh about 6 feet wide. Standing alongside the lift, Post guided the boat from a second and smaller wheel, reversed the motor when necessary, and stood ready to hook any struggling trout which might be winning freedom while being pulled into the boat.

Birds Forecast Weather.

While Budish kept the nets from tangling, and stored them carefully into wooden boxes, each of which held 1,800 feet, Keuther untangled the trout which whipped around the cream separator-like lift, and threw them into large boxes. Trout have needle pointed teeth, so the angry ones were stunned with blows on the heads. The mallet looked like half a rolling pin.

The monotony of the return trip was broken somewhat by the gulls which followed the boat into the river. Small fish, which had been caught in the net but which were not marketable, were tossed overboard and the gulls fought for them.

The big-winged birds are well liked by the fishermen, because they serve as a weather forecaster. When a storm is in the offing, Post said, the gulls dive into the water, wash themselves thoroly and then head high into the sky, only to return and repeat the bath.

Trip Costs $100.

Post estimates that each trip into Lake Michigan costs $100. Figuring yesterday's catch of 300 pounds, minus a 25 pound shrinkage, the day's work was worth a gross of $132. Depending on the whims of the market, your family may eat one of Post's trout in the restaurant today. But they all will be sold no later than Monday.

Or if they aren't, Mrs. Housewife shouldn't buy them. Fish is the most perishable of all meats, Post declared. And you can tell an old fish by looking him in the eye! If it's cloudy, or milky, don't buy it. Ask the butcher for the more limber one—one with a gleam in his eye.

MANILA COLLEGE OF HOLY GHOST NOW A HOSPITAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., March 25.—Holy Ghost college, which is affiliated with the Society of the Divine Word at Techny, Ill., is one of the few undamaged educational institutions in Manila.

At one time during the battle for Manila, its three buildings housed 1,600 refugees. Later it served to confine approximately, 140 German internees. Now it has been taken over by the Catholic Welfare organization of the Philippines, of which the Very Rev. John F. Hurley of New York City is secretary general. Until the emergency is over, its space will be devoted to relief and hospital needs.

The Society of the Divine Word also operates Christ the King seminary in new Manila. This institution is now being used as an army hospital.

JAPS THREATEN ANOTHER YANK AIR BASE IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, China, March 25 (AP).—Two Japanese columns striking west in the new Hupeh province offensive have gained in the direction of Laohokow, important United States 14th air force base 200 miles northwest of the central China city of Hankow, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Enemy spearheads have thrust 49 miles southeast and 55 miles south of the base, the high command said. United States planes were hurled against positions and bases of the advancing Japanese over a wide area.

The enemy was pushing westward in the adjoining province of Honan, aimed at eliminating air bases and seizing the crop harvest.

SOMETHING NEW ADDED: BATTERY LEADS INFANTRY

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TERESA, Luzon, P. I., March 25.—Front line infantrymen frowned and wondered if the artillery had lost its senses when they saw C battery of the 152d battalion going out ahead of the front lines on a sector southeast of Manila.

"Sure, it looked like we were nuts," said Corp. Robert Whalen of Springfield, Ill., a gunner. "But it was an experiment, and it worked well. Maybe we'll do it again."

Searches for Soft Spots.

The artillery rolled along with a reconnaissance unit—a mobile, heavily armed column which spends most of its time in enemy territory, searching out soft spots.

Sweeping down a highway on the little peninsula which juts into Laguna bay, C battery paused along enough to destroy three barges in the bay with 105 millimeter howitzer fire. At Tanay, seven miles ahead of our front lines, the reconnaissance spearhead was pinned down by enemy fire.

Take Town Next Day.

"We just established positions and fed those Japs in Tanay some bursts," said Corp. Russell Parker of Kalamazoo, Mich. "Pretty soon the whole town was blazing, and a spotter in a plane overhead said he could count 200 Jap dead. We had ourselves a field day. The next day we rolled into that town."

Numerous Chicagoland fighters are locked with the Japs in tough hill fighting in this area. They include Pvt. Eugene Seuberli, 9014 Exchange av., Pvt. Fred Meyer, 1320 N. Central av., Corp. Rudolph Stepnick, 4657 N. Harding av., Pvt. S. G. Nelson, 1218 E. 64th st., and Pvt. day of the last eight, the most damaging and extended carrier action of the war against the enemy's homeland.

Reports from pilots indicated that 53 enemy ships were sunk or damaged in the carrier raids on Kyushu Island and the inland sea from Sunday thru Wednesday.

A large concentration of the imperial fleet fled for new hiding places, unwilling to risk an engagement, reported Associated Press Correspondent Hamilton Faron, with Mitscher's task force.

MacARTHUR BAGS TEN

MANILA, March 26 [Monday]—(AP).—Nine freighters and a destroyer escort were sunk or damaged in the China sea by patrol bombers Saturday, while Liberators with 145 tons of bombs wrecked a big hydroelectric plant on Formosa and softened up Cebu, in the central Philippines, with 210 tons, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

Bombers patrolling the blockaded China sea sank a 3,000 ton freighter transport and probably another of the same size, sent four smaller freighters to the bottom, and damaged three other small freighters plus a destroyer escort.

Liberators concentrated on Formosa's Jitsugetsu hydroelectric plant, the main source of power for the island's industrial areas. The power plant was wrecked. Water was observed pouring from broken penstocks of the main dam. One American plane was lost to anti-aircraft fire.

Reconnaissance photographs showed all transformer stations wrecked and generator buildings demolished. The blow directly affected two large aluminum plants at nearby Takao and Karenko. Their estimated 40,000 ton capacity is believed 15 per cent of Japan's aluminum supply.

"All southern Formosa will suffer an enforced blackout and its industry an enforced layoff," said the spokesman for Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead.

Cebu City Attacked.

The attack on Cebu was centered on targets in the vicinity of Cebu City, midway along the east coast of the narrow island, one of the two major Philippine Islands still in enemy hands. Attack planes strafed and bombed the area from low level.

Bombers and fighters also attacked coastal defenses and supply dumps at Legaspi and Infanta on the southeastern tip of Luzon, and supported all ground operations on the island.

On Luzon, six Japanese counter-attacks were repulsed as the 25th and 33d infantry divisions converged on the important Balete pass.

LUCKIEST MAN IN BRIDGEHEAD AREA—UNTIL

Pilot Lands Safely, Then Takes a Wrong Turn.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY, Germany, March 24 [Delayed].—A Thunderbolt pilot yesterday was the luckiest man in the bridgehead — but not for long. He kayoed a German tank near Frankfurt, but the plane was crippled by anti-aircraft fire. It managed to reach Trebur before it pancaked into a field, skidded onto a cement highway, turned over, and began to burn.

Lt. Eugene L. Goodrich, 631 N. Sawyer av., Chicago, a former clerk of the Cook County Circuit court, saw the crash, raced to the scene, and put out the fire while others ripped open the canopy and dragged out the pilot who was unhurt.

Captured by Germans.

A short while later as the pilot, an infantry captain, and three enlisted men were returning to the scene of the crash to get the .50 caliber machine gun, ammunition, and some plexi-glass for souvenirs, they took the wrong road, and were captured by Germans.

Another lucky fellow was Fireman 2d Class Claud Gregory of Lebanon, Mo., who today took us across the Rhine in an LCVP [landing craft vehicles and personnel], also manned by Pvt. William H. Dwiggins of Little Rock, Ark., and Corp. Bob Walker of Lockney, Tex.

We asked Gregory if anything had come close to him since he had been ferrying across the Rhine, and he said quietly, "Only a few 88s." We asked how close, and he said one had exploded in the room he was sleeping in last night, ripping off both hands and a leg of a fellow in a near-by bunk.

Other Midwesterners Seen.

Among midwesterners seen across the Rhine today was Pvt. Edward E. Dolak, 8111 Evans av., Chicago, a regimental switchboard operator. Others were Corp. Sydney J. Colvin, a former Chicago music teacher whose home was at 943 W. Ainslie st.; Lt. Russell Sprague of Moline, Ill., who was strafed but uninjured last night by German planes; Pvt. John Skowronski, Detroit, Mich.; Pvt. Mike Kachman of Minneapolis, Minn., and Pvt. Joseph A. Pantanella, 1117 Cambridge st., and Pvt. Dominic Patti, 818 S. Marshfield av., both of Chicago.

Kachman and Skowronski were playing cards and acquiring a sun tan when seen, while Pantanella was brushing his teeth. It was not known what Patti was doing. He just appeared when Pantanella yelled for him. All are members of a cannon company.

The last midwesterner we saw was Lt. Leonard Duston of Muncie, Ind., who was in charge of 500 German prisoners near the river.

WOMAN ROBBED BY TWO.

Mrs. Edna Flanagan, 3604 36th st., reported to police that she was robbed of her fur coat and hat, a watch, two rings, and $11, all valued at $377, by two young Negroes at 36th st. and Maplewood av. early yesterday.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

March 25, 1945.

THE Wheaton farm was forced to send 26 of its steers to market last week—much earlier than usual—because the shortage of help made it impossible to continue caring for them and still get the spring work under way. The shipment provides a good illustration of what is happening on many farms in the nation and helps to explain why there is a shortage of meat.

The farm has only two field workers and there is much work to be done. Feeding and looking after the Hereford cattle requires a good deal of time and labor. As the pressure of spring work grew it became apparent that the cattle would have to go. Aside from the lack of adequate help the farm corn supplies dwindled until it would have been necessary to purchase more to finish out the animals.

Bought Last June.

The steers were bought last June weighing an average of 480 pounds and costing $13.35 a hundredweight. Their bill came to $1,620.58, including all charges. For five months they ran on pasture. On Dec. 10 they were moved into the feedlot weighing around 722 pounds each. They then were put on a full feed of ground ear corn, soy bean oil meal, silage, and hay.

When they arrived at the market, they were only half fat. They needed another 100 days of feeding to bring them into good slaughtering condition. Because they were not fat enough, the nation lost some good beef. The cattle almost were bought by a farmer who planned to feed them some more, but a packing company bid too high in an effort to get something to slaughter.

Many Similar Cases.

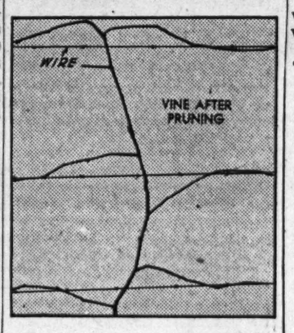
Similar cases are happening in the stock yards every day. This is one of the reasons there is a scarcity of meat. Cattle are going straight from the range to the packing houses or are not being fattened completely because of high cost of feed, low ceiling prices at market, lack of adequate farm help, and the great demand for beef.

Bidding was slow on the steers because of their condition. They finally sold for $15.60 a hundredweight with one steer going for $14.60 because it was bloated. The check totaled $3,463.77. They were purchased by a small packing firm.

Adding to the original cost of the cattle was the feed bill amounting to $1,082.29. The cattle were charged $1.50 a month for their pasture. They consumed $45 worth of oil meal, $126 worth of hay, $695.50 worth of corn, and $20.79 worth of silage. The final cost of the animals when they went to market was $2,702.87. This gave the farm a profit of $760.90 for a nine month project.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GRAPE vines in the farm vineyard were pruned Friday. This is the recommended season for this annual job, because the sap has not started to flow too freely. The old idea that grape vines are killed by being pruned too late in the spring has been disproved, but it is advisable to prune in late March to insure against severe "bleeding" from the pruning wounds.



The Kniffin system of pruning is generally recommended in this area. The method calls for severe cutting of new wood, leaving only a few well matured canes, each about the size of a large lead pencil, to each vine. On well established adult vines six canes are attached to the trellis; on 1 and 2 year old vines only four canes usually are left.

JUDGES TO NAME WHEAT CHAMP OF 1944 TOMORROW

The United States wheat champion for 1944, among entries of 14 wheat producing states, will be chosen tomorrow at the Union stock yards and receive the Philip W. Pillsbury prize. Judges also will pick a reserve champion and special awards will be given for varieties of wheat accorded special recognition.

The champion will receive a trophy, a cash prize, and an all-expense tour to Minneapolis, Minn., as the guest of Pillsbury, head of the milling company which bears his name. A plaque and cash prize will be awarded the reserve champion.

All of the entries are first and second place winners in the fourth annual contests conducted by state organizations of the International Crop Improvement association. The judges will be: J. C. Hackleman, University of Illinois; R. F. Crim, University of Minnesota; A. L. Clapp, Kansas State Agricultural college, and K. E. Beeson, Purdue university, president of the association.

HISTORIC SITES OF GENT INTACT; FOOD PLENTIFUL

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 25.—Historic Gent, first stop on my Belgian tour since leaving Antwerp, is undamaged by war. Its places of interest are intact and will be available for tourists after the war.

The country from Antwerp to Gent is Flemish. Tow headed children predominate. My driver managed to find his way by asking directions of policemen in the native tongue.

I was struck with the amount of food on display in Gent. Shops everywhere had endive, meat and eggs. For 100 Belgian francs I got excellent soup, a thick beefsteak, potatoes, a glass of beer and fruit. There seemed to be no restrictions.

Bruges Cathedral Safe.

From Gent we went on to Bruges, which is intact except for bridges which have all been blown up and replaced by wooden structures. Bruges' cathedral and its city hall were untouched. From Gent a magnificent road goes on to Ostend and down the coast to Nieuport and the French frontier.

Just over the French frontier in Dunkerque is another one of those curious pockets which the Germans have been able to maintain on the Atlantic coast.

Many thousands of Germans still remain in Dunkerque. British troops contain them as they do in the St. Nazaire and Lorient sectors. Once in a while our air forces fly over Dunkerque and forget it is German held and get a powerful blast of anti-aircraft fire, I was told. Otherwise, the Dunkerque front is quiet except for patrol and artillery duels.

Not Worth the Cost.

Little publicity is given to the fact that the Germans still hold Dunkerque and correspondents' visits are not encouraged.

Submarines apparently bring in supplies to the German garrison and they are allowed to remain there because the operation of throwing them out would be more costly than its worth.

IKE ASKS FOE TO HELP PEOPLE EVACUATE RUHR

LONDON, March 25 (AP).—In another of a series of broadcasts of messages by Gen. Eisenhower to Germany, soldiers of the German army were urged tonight to help civilians in evacuating the Ruhr, the Frankfurt, and the Mannheim areas and to protect them from Nazi party and SS [elite guard] persecution. The broadcast reminded the troops of Eisenhower's earlier warnings for evacuation of battle zones and admonished them, "as soldiers you know that instructions of the supreme commander are no idle threat."

STEAL LIQUOR VALUED AT $490.

Thirteen cases of whisky and two of wine, all valued at $490, were stolen in a burglary of Les Pinkas' tavern at 1846 Blue Island av., Saturday night, Pinkas told police yesterday.

PATCH UNIT'S 60 MILE RACE TO RHINE REVEALED

Sixth Armored Division Hits Worms in 19 Hrs.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, Germany, March 25.—The brilliant dash of the 6th armored division, carrying it 60 miles from northeast of Saarbruecken to Worms on the Rhine in less than 19 hours, can be told today, now that some of the black-out on the blitz progress of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's forces is lifted. The division commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow, Washington, D. C., was the first in the 7th army to reach the river in the Saar break-thru.

The 15th tank battalion, led by Lt. Col. Embry D. La Grew of Lexington, Ky., drove into Worms at 10:30 Wednesday, and met the elements of the 4th armored division of the 3d army, which had arrived shortly before from the north.

Races Thru the Night.

All thru the night the battalion raced. Opposition was only spotty; it was a pursuit most of the way. La Grew's route was north of and roughly paralleling the superhighway from Kaiserslautern to Ludwigshafen.

Above La Grew, a combat command A task force, led by Lt. Col. Frank K. Britton, Hartford, Conn., was operating, and early Tuesday afternoon it occupied Rhein Durkheim on the Rhine four miles north of Worms, and also Osthoffen one mile west of Rhein Durkheim.

Britton's first concern in Rhein Durkheim was to find an American flag. Strangely enough, in a civilian residence he did locate a Stars and Stripes 32 feet long. In a brief ceremony it was raised on the town's highest building. The Germans across the Rhine didn't like that, and threw in shell fire.

Under Elgin Colonel.

Meanwhile, the 6th armored's combat command B, under Col. Harry F. Hanson, Elgin, Ill., was smashing the last enemy defenses in the Siegfried belt between Zweibruecken and Landstuhl.

Hanson had to contend with more than a chase. The Germans in front of him were still fairly well organized and were using four rearguard actions with artillery and self-propelled guns and tanks. He split his command into a task force under Lt. Col. Chester E. Kennedy, Detroit, Mich., and another under Lt. Col. Charles E. Brown, Tacoma, Wash. Kennedy's task force knocked out 300 vehicles and wagons, a Panther tank, and 17 big guns, including one of 230 millimeters and a 210 millimeter howitzer.

Kept Knocking Them Off.

"Late Tuesday afternoon we saw nearly 500 German vehicles attempting to get away by three lateral roads running across our zone of advance," related Maj. Walter G. Smith of Ada, Okla., of Task Force Kennedy.

"We had a bright moon that night and we had enough fires started to silhouette other German vehicles trying to flee. We kept on knocking them off. Once one of their hay wagons caught fire and the horses went galloping down the road, illuminating the whole countryside."

The light tank in which Smith was traveling was knocked out by a German 88 shell, but he and his crew got out safely before the tank went up in flames. He sent an infantry platoon against the enemy nest, and Pvt. Gregory Katnas, New York City, with four bazooka rounds, destroyed the 88 and a machine gun near it.

Task Force Brown, on Kennedy's right, came up against three road blocks between Niederhausen and Knopp, on the axis of the advance. It took Brown's men most of Tuesday night to smash the blocks, but when that was accomplished the whole Siegfried defense in the sector had collapsed, and the task force went on to Gruenstadt at the northern edge of the Hardt forest.

FRANCE TO GIVE COLONIES POWER IN OWN AFFAIRS

Indo-China Model for New Union.

PARIS, March 25 [Reuters].—Far reaching constitutional changes in the relations between France and various parts of her empire were announced in a broadcast today by Paul Giacobbi, French minister of colonies.

Indo-China, when liberated, is to be granted political and economic autonomy within a federation of the five countries of Tongking, Cochin China, Cambodia, Laos and Annam, he said.

Parliamentary institutions will be set up for each country and the federal government, which will be presided over by a French governor general, will consist of ministers chosen from Indochinese and French residents and responsible to him.

"French Union" Envisaged.

It is intended to integrate this new Indochinese federation in a "French union" to which other parts of the French empire, such as Madagascar, French West Africa and probably countries in French North Africa, will belong on lines similar to those adopted for Indo-China, Giacobbi declared.

Diplomatic relations between the empire and other countries will be conducted by France proper.

Indo-China will have full economic outonomy and will be encouraged to develop her industries, agriculture and foreign trade. She also will have complete freedom in currency matters. Local currency will no longer be tied to the franc.

Not Like British Plan.

"This conception of a great French union differs from that of the dominions inside the British commonwealth," Giacobbi said after the broadcast.

"The fact that Indochinese are fighting alongside French troops in resisting the Japanese army appears to make it an opportune moment to proclaim this plan now.

"To say that we have been actuated by talk in some quarters of a so-called international trusteeship for colonial areas is to overlook the simple fact that this is a long nurtured plan towards which French authorities have been working for years."

ROBBER HOLDING GUN KICKED BY VICTIM, AGED 70

While one man seized Peter Olofson, 70, of 3402 Sunnyside av., from behind in front of 955 Huron st. last night, another pointed a gun at him and demanded his money.

"Go ahead and shoot," Olofson, a watchman for a shoe store at 671 N. Sangamon st., told the man with the gun. Then, his arms pinioned, he kicked the bandit in front of him in the stomach.

The other man beat Olofson over the head, after which both men fled. Olofson told police. He said he was wearing a $50 wristwatch and had $55 in his pocket.

Lisbon Trolley Workers Get Pay Rates and Bonus

LISBON, March 25 [Reuters].—Minimum wage rates for each grade of workman and an additional 20 per cent bonus to meet increased living costs have been fixed by the Portuguese government commission appointed to investigate wages and working conditions in the British owned Lisbon street cars. Similar provisions were made for the municipally owned Oporto street cars.

JEWISH BRIGADE FIGHTS WITH 8TH ARMY IN ITALY

ROME, March 25 (AP).—The first and only completely Jewish brigade is operating with the British 8th army in Italy, allied headquarters announced today as patrol raids continued along the stalemated front.

Brig. Gen. Benjamin.

Lt. Gen. Clark, commander of allied ground forces, said he "was delighted" to have the Jewish outfit fighting under his command and pleased that "the Jewish people, who have suffered so terribly at the hands of the Nazis, should now be directly represented by this front line fighting force."

Members of the brigade wear blue and white arm insignia with the Star of David superimposed on a shield.

Many Once Held by Nazis.

The brigade is led by Brig. Gen. Frank Benjamin, a Jew in the regular British army. It has been involved in patrol actions since the early part of March, and several Germans were killed recently by a patrol leader who is a German refugee whose family disappeared after being deported to Poland.

Many of the brigade's members previously were held in Nazi concentration camps in Europe. Their family origins are spread over 37 different countries and at least 50 per cent have lost parents or other relatives thru German persecution.

The brigade is a self-contained unit consisting of artillery, infantry, engineering, signal, transport, ordnance, and medical units. The men were drawn from 35,000 volunteers. Altho it is estimated 1,000,000 Jewish soldiers are fighting on the allied side, this outfit is the only group specifically designated as a Jewish unit.

One Born in Berlin.

Typical of the men's background is that of one 24 year old soldier. He was born in Berlin, where he lived until 1938. A brother and sister were seized by the Gestapo and deported to Poland.

He fled to Vienna, where he was arrested by the Germans. He managed to escape down the Danube and eventually arrived in Palestine, where he volunteered for the brigade.

The brigade also includes Jews who fought with the French Maquis.

Headquarters announced a German raid in company strength was turned back by the 8th army southeast of Cotignola with the enemy suffering numerous casualties. Along the central sector south of Bologna, American patrols encountered heavy enemy machine gun and mortar fire.

BURGLARS' LOOT TOTALS $2,595.

Burglars took household appliances worth $1,545, a Persian lamb coat valued at $700, and a lynx cape worth $350, Mrs. Alice O'Brien, 5101 S. Wolcott av., reported to police yesterday.

EXPECT V-E DAY TO BRING H-HOUR FOR SUPER-NRA

Last Gunshot to Unleash New Deal Spenders.

sum or perhaps an annuity for the life of the patent. Many New Dealers feel that a man should not amass a fortune for himself and his heirs thru one or even a series of inventions.

Concerned Over Deflation.

The wage and price fixing phase of the program is considered the most important post-war problem by the New Dealers. They are concerned over bridging an anticipated 125 billion dollar deflationary gap when the war ends.

The planners hold that there must be no cut in wages and even that workers must receive as much for 40 hours as they now receive for 48 including over time pay. They acknowledge that this may be inflation, but hold that it must be the goal if we are to balance post-war budgets.

Interest charges on the war debt are to run 7 to 9 billion dollars annually after the war or about the cost of government in the heaviest New Deal spending years. This will bring the annual cost of government at between 15 and 20 billions a year under the program being formed. High wages will have to be maintained, planners argue, in order to meet the anticipated cost of government.

Wage Freeze Expected.

It is planned that wages shall be fixed and frozen for a year at a time. This, it is said, will be necessary to prevent any upset of the price structure to be determined by the various industrial authorities.

Under the program being contemplated by administration planners, a returning war veteran who might wish to open a small machine shop would be required to appear before the local representatives of the appropriate industrial authority. If the authority decides the shop is necessary, the veteran would be given permission to go ahead.

But it was explained, if the authority found that there were too many machine shops in the area, the veteran would not be given an opportunity to compete with the others and stake survival on turning out a better product or as good a product more efficiently. He would be forbidden to go into his chosen business and would be prevented from doing so by exercise of federal, state and local police powers, it was said.

The veteran might argue that he had just come back from fighting this sort of planned economy under nazism and fascism, but he would be forced to bow to the edicts of the authority or go to jail, it was grudgingly acknowledged. Planners insisted, however, that their program is one of industrial democracy under which individuals will readily recognize their interests are the primary consideration, rather than the brutal force of force for force's sake of fascism.

SUPREME COURT CRITICISM TOLD ON ROUND TABLE

Recent criticism of the Supreme court by the legal profession on the ground that its decisions create uncertainty about the law is based primarily upon the assumption of legislative functions by the court, Carl B. Swisher, professor of political science at Johns Hopkins university and visiting professor at the University of Chicago, said yesterday.

He appeared with Walter F. Dodd, former professor of law at Yale university, and C. Herman Pitchett of the university's political science department on the University of Chicago Round Table broadcast.

Swisher noted that the court recently has "virtually assumed" the constitutionality of the acts of congress, basing its rulings upon interpretation of the statutes rather than their constitutionality.

The 33d annual Easter and spring flower shows at Garfield and Lincoln park conservatories opened yesterday and will continue until April 8. Thousands of lilies were in bloom but many of the plants are still in bud and will bloom next week. Other plants in the two exhibits include tulips, cinerarias, hydrangeas, and rhododendrons. Hyacinths, which have been absent since the war, are still missing. Other bulbs, formerly secured from foreign sources, such as lilies and tulips, are now supplied from domestic sources but hyacinths still come from Holland.

INDEPENDENCE DAY MARKED BY ATHENS PARADE

ATHENS, March 25 (AP).—All Athens turned out today in cheerful crowds to watch ceremonies marking the 124th anniversary of Greek independence.

The regent, Archbishop Damaskinos, and Lt. Gen. R. M. Scobie, along with members of the diplomatic corps, reviewed a two hour parade of Greece's renewed military strength.

It was the first full-fledged celebration here in five years. One newspaper marked the occasion with a front page picture dated two years ago which showed mounted police scattering crowds which had gathered for the anniversary.

VOLUNTEER UNIT FIGHTS WAY OUT OF JAP AMBUSH

Yanks Go Back to Bring Wounded.

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTA MARIA, Luzon, P. I., March 25.—Deep in the hills west of Fort Stotsenburg is a broad, multi-armed amphitheater where the Japs parked hundreds of cars and trucks stolen from the Filipinos. In days and weeks of fighting, this area proved one of the best defended on Luzon.

Part of the motor pool area had been cleaned out, but one recess was left. It bothered the regimental commander, for the next day the regiment was to move out and be replaced by another outfit.

He called for volunteers, and a strange outfit was scraped together. The story of what happened to it did not leak out until today, when survivors were located here.

Chicagoans Go Along.

Two M-7 tank destroyers were found to give punch to the attack group, which didn't expect to run into much trouble. One was driven by Tech. 4th Grade George Zulke of Milwaukee, Wis. Sgt. Robert Kennedy of Albany, Ill., walked alongside the other. Pvt. Joseph Trent of Anderson, Ind., and Sgt. Richard Meade of Vandalia, Mich., volunteered to go along. So did two company clerks—Corp. Howard Contarsy, 6548 Glenwood av., and Corp. Arthur Morrison, 518 N. Clark st., both of Chicago.

The regimental intelligence officer, a major, assumed command of the group, and at the last minute two dentists and a Congregationalist chaplain swung aboard, making about 40 men in all.

Walking behind, between, and alongside the M-7s, which were armed with 105 millimeter howitzers, this brave but motley group advanced three-fourths of the way into the disputed area before it met a sudden hail of 20 millimeter cannon, machine gun, and sniper fire.

Officers Are Wounded.

The men, unprotected by the ironclads, started dropping. The major, out ahead, lay dying. Both dentists were mortally wounded and the chaplain was hit, as were about 15 enlisted men.

The little force started to withdraw, but Corp. Contarsy screamed to the M-7 driver and pointed to the wounded men ahead. The withdrawal continued, but a plan was worked out. In a moment the M-7s were in again. Between them was a truck driven by Pvt. Marcus Hazel of Greenwood, S. C. Contarsy, with the help of another man, loaded the dying officers into it, and the group withdrew under a concentration of artillery ordered by radio.

PRESS WIRELESS HELD ESSENTIAL TO FREE SYSTEM

Wheeler Urges Continued Independent Service,

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] said today in an interview that facilities for bringing foreign news to the American press should operate independently of any post-war international communications monopoly.

Wheeler, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, asserted preservation of Press Wireless, Inc., is essential to American policy in the field of communications. His committee began hearings last week with a view to laying the groundwork for a legislative program. Sessions will be resumed Tuesday.

"The committee is getting all the factual information and all the recommendations it can," he said.

Opposes Navy Proposal.

Wheeler added he was opposed to a navy proposal calling for a private communications corporation with five of its 20 directors drawn from the cabinet, with inclusion of Press Wireless in the American monopoly.

"Press Wireless was set up as a nonprofit organization to handle news for the newspapers of this country," Wheeler said. "A continuation of its independent service is important to our free press."

He said inquiries so far raise the question whether the demand for post-war radio frequencies by the various companies will be so great that there will not be sufficient for all.

Problem Called Technical.

"That is a technical problem," he continued. "If it is apparent there aren't enough to meet demands for government and commercial uses, the question arises whether it is desirable to do away with competition and consolidate existing service organizations."

Both the navy and the federal communications commission insisted last week that unification is necessary, but FCC Chairman Paul V. Porter said he was not ready to offer definite proposals.

He, like Wheeler, opposes cabinet members on the board of directors of a private corporation.

Lack of Vote Control Cited.

"It seems to me that under the navy's proposal the government would be held responsible for the actions of a monopoly over which it had no voting control," Wheeler said today.

He said he would favor government ownership over a private monopoly if the government had to subsidize the latter.

"I am doubtful whether we should turn over the government's war time investment of 251 million dollars in communications facilities abroad to a private monopoly," Wheeler said.

NAVY CAPTAIN, 58, SHOOTS WIFE, 20, AND KILLS SELF

Divorce Move Blamed for Tragedy.

New York, March 25 [Special].—A navy captain, 58, today walked into an apartment in the sedate Hotel Park Plaza, shot his 20 year old British bride of less than a year, and a half hour later, ended his own life in the Downtown Athletic club.

The wife, Molly Wolfard, will recover. Physicians extracted a .32 caliber bullet from her back.

The husband was Capt. Oliver Lodwick Wolfard, Annapolis graduate, veteran of World War I., and a convoy commander who has ranged both the Atlantic and the Pacific since Pearl Harbor.

Had Asked Divorce.

The shooting, police said, occurred in the apartment of Mrs. Mary V. Jacobsen, a friend of the Wolfards, who told detectives Mrs. Wolfard had informed her husband a week ago she wanted a divorce.

She said Mrs. Wolfard spent Saturday night with her and that the captain called at noon today and had been drinking. He rushed into the bedroom where his wife was dressing and fired three shots, one striking her.

Then, according to police, he ran out of the building and took a taxi to the Athletic club. He went to his room on the 18th floor and fired a bullet into his brain.

Told Maid of Plan.

Capt. Wolfard had informed a maid and an elevator operator at the club before the shooting that he was going to "shoot my wife and kill myself."

Wolfard, who was brought out of retirement in 1940, met the young, attractive British girl on one of his trips to England in 1944.

His first wife, Ethel Martin Wolfard, whom he married at Annapolis on his graduation day in 1911, died in May, 1944.

Hollywood, Cal., March 25 (AP).—Clark Gable of the screen, injured slightly in a traffic accident, was in Cedars of Lebanon hospital today for treatment of a laceration on the right leg and chest bruises, his studio announced.

A studio spokesman said Gable drove his car over the curb and into a tree yesterday to avoid collision with another car proceeding in the wrong direction on a traffic circle. Gable's automobile halted against a tree, throwing him against the steering wheel, the studio said.

UNION VOTES TO STRIKE IN SHELL PLANT

Members of the United Stove Workers union employed by Cribben & Sexton company, 700 N. Sacramento av., met yesterday at 1042 N. Damen av. to approve plans for a strike in the plant scheduled for this morning. The firm manufactures 105 millimeter shells.

Frank Powers, president of the union, which is affiliated with the Independent Confederated Unions of America, said the union is seeking a 5 per cent wage increase, or an extension of a pension plan now available to office employes, to shop workers in the plant.

Capt. George Barnes of the police labor detail said he will detail men to the plant today to protect employes who desire to work. The union is reported to have a membership of about 900.

BOY TO FIGHTING MAN: IT TAKES ARMY 17 WEEKS

Replacements Are Given Intensive Training.

BY JOSEPH HEARST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Bragg, N. C., March 25.—Boys who, when they celebrated their 18th birthdays last fall, had never handled a weapon bigger than a target rifle, today manned a 105 millimeter howitzer, slapped a shell into the breech, and sent it screaming to the target four miles away.

Looking on with pride was Maj. Gen. Donald C. Cubbison, veteran artillery officer of the World war, who trained the 1st division in this war and who now is commanding general of the field artillery replacement training center here. He was showing a group of newspaper men over the 160,000 acre camp, with its numerous artillery ranges, and demonstrating that a raw recruit can be turned into a competent fighting man in 15 to 17 weeks.

20 Replacement Camps.

That's the time the army now allots for preparing a man for combat in the 20 replacement camps the army ground forces maintains. Where two years ago an inductee received months of training with his regiment and division, he now goes to a replacement camp and from there direct to the overseas combat areas. It is a fair bet that six months after he is inducted he will be in action.

There has been criticism of the method—assertions that the time of preparation is insufficient—but Gen. Cubbison and his staff insist the men they send to replace battle casualties are proficient in the use of their weapons, well grounded in how to protect themselves, and ready for battle.

"A veteran gun crew could lose 50 per cent of its men, take the men needed from these replacements, and be just as effective as ever," Gen. Cubbison asserted. "Nearly 200,000 artillery men have been trained here and we have had only one complaint from an overseas commander. He named the 10 men he thought were not sufficiently proficient as a gun crew and we checked and discovered they had been trained as cooks. But even so, in their six weeks of basic training, before we gave them specialized training as cooks, they had learned enough about the guns to be fair cannoneers."

Last Week of Training.

In the crew firing the 105 howitzer—the successor in our artillery to the old 75 fieldpiece—were five men 18 years old, one 21, and one 29. The eighth member, Gerald Schroepfer of Sleepy Eye, Minn., is 20. They were in their last week of training, living in the field under simulated battle conditions. Around the battery of four camouflaged guns were sentries hidden in fox holes, armed with bazookas and Garand rifles.

The training of every man starts with instruction in drill, hygiene, physical exercise, the use of the Garand rifle, the carbine and the bazooka, digging trenches and foxholes so they'll know how to protect themselves.

"We teach them, in the first six weeks, the basic things they must know to take care of themselves," Gen. Cubbison said. "Then we start their specialized training, picking the men for the jobs for which they appear best qualified. The training has been intensified, but it is thoro. There is no question that it is better than that received by the men in the earlier training periods of this war and it is so superior to that given in the first World war there is no comparison possible."

Men Are Specialized.

When the specialized period of training starts, certain men are assigned to work as gun plotters, range computers, and fire directors. Others form the gun crews—the cannoneers—and others begin intensive studies as signalmen, using the radio and telephone, laying wire, manning observation posts, and learning to send and receive Morse code. Others are assigned to heavy truck units as mechanics and drivers, and others to the cooks' school.

"We are very particular in selecting the plotters and computers and the radio and phone men," Gen. Cubbison said. "We do not depend upon the army signal corps for signalmen. We've always insisted on training our own, for without proper signal and observation men our guns are blind."

At the infiltration course, where the men crawl for 100 yards over logs and thru barbed wire while machine gun bullets whistle two or three feet over their heads, members of the 4th training regiment, commanded by Col. John C. Bohan of 6920 Chappel avenue, Chicago, inched their way along in the dark or froze in their places when star shells lighted the area.

"This is part of the mental conditioning we give every man," said Col. Bohan, who in civilian life is a construction engineer. "In this way we try to accustom them to the sound of bullets and to show them the safety they can find close to the earth. For the same reason we send them out to advance under artillery with the shells dropping 300 yards ahead of them. We want them to hear those shells whine and to teach them there is safety in their own artillery, which is pinning down the enemy and knocking out his guns."

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION REJECTS 'CON-CON' PLEA

More than 500 members of the International Typographical union, local 16, at a meeting yesterday in the Skyline Athletic club, 188 W. Randolph st., rejected by an overwhelming majority a recommendation of the legislative committee to indorse a state constitutional convention. The membership is made up of printers engaged in all newspaper and commercial printing shops in the city. Their action is in accord with the stand of the Illinois State Federation of Labor.

The Joint Committee for Calling a Constitutional Convention, with offices at 225 N. Michigan av., said it would launch a statewide drive for passage of the "con-con" resolution by the state legislature.

"The 31 organizations now coöperating and the many others expected to join our fight ask no special favors," the committee said. "They are simply asking that the people of Illinois be given opportunity to bring their constitution up to date."

LOSS OF POLICE JOB BY JOINING ARMY STUDIED

Walter L. Gregory, president of the city civil service commission, said yesterday he would see what could be done in regard to the reinstatement of ex-Policeman William P. Lanagan, who quit the department in December, 1941, to join the army, and recently was given a discharge. Lanagan had been unable to regain his police job because he resigned outright, instead of taking a military furlough. He said he did so in order to be able to withdraw the money he had paid into the police pension fund.

"There were about 800 city civil service employes who went to war and took steps to protect their jobs, and five or six who did as Lanagan," Gregory said. "The rights of the 800 naturally come first."

If Lanagan had been drafted, it was explained, federal law would have safeguarded his job. However, because he had been an army drill sergeant before becoming a policeman, Lanagan enlisted the day after the attack on Pearl Harbor and spent three more years as a drill sergeant. Legion officials advised him that if the police commissioner, civil service board, and the pension board give consent, he can be restored to duty as a policeman. He said he would call on Gregory today.

THE REXALL DRUG STORES

This Liberator shut down a factory

1. These explosions mark the site of an Axis armament factory deep inside Germany. The plant was operating full blast, until the Liberators came over and dropped their tons of demolition bombs. Now this factory won't be doing business at the old stand for a long time to come, if ever. This story could be repeated over and over again.

This Liberator kept one running

2. Here you see a United States radar equipment factory. Lacking a certain rare mineral, obtainable today only in India, this plant faced a temporary shutdown. But the threat never materialized. Several tons of the precious ore were loaded into a Liberator Express, which flew it direct to the factory from India in just 60 hours.

3. Air Express now brings to us about 40,000,000 pounds a year of such vital cargoes as tin, mica, tantalite, drugs, and industrial diamonds. After the war, still bigger planes, developed from such giants as the Consolidated Vultee Liberator Express, will fly global skyways, linking nations together in trade and mutual understanding.

4. Another peacetime job awaits the airplane. We know that the desire for peace, without the strength to defend it, is not enough. Air Power is a force that aggressor nations respect. If America maintains an invincible Air Force—and a strong aircraft industry to keep it at peak efficiency—we shall have in the airplane a potent guardian of the peace.

No spot on earth is more than 60 hours' flying time from your local airport.

EVER SIP A $2,000,000 OLD FASHIONED?

Here's the recipe below! We call it a $2,000,000 "dream of a drink"—because that's what Fleischmann invested in grains, skill and research before we released one golden bottle of this rich, luxurious, straight bourbon whiskey. We make it in limited amounts. We have to—it's so delicious!

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND THEN DO THIS!

1
Place ½ level teaspoon of granulated sugar in Old Fashioned glass! Add 2 or 3 dashes of Angostura bitters, and just enough water to dissolve the sugar!

2

3

SCHENLEY DISTILLERS CORP., NEW YORK

Americana

This recorder has a friend here at Schenley who some years ago visited quite a number of old historic taverns in England. Recently he presented us with a book replete with illustrations descriptive of some of the more interesting old places. He said, "Why don't you write a piece about some early American taverns? Do a little digging and you'll find it a fascinating pastime." So we've done a bit of "digging" and true enough, one can find enough material to write a dozen articles like this because surely the tavern played an important part in the social life of the Colonies for many years before and during the Revolutionary War.

Since there is a first time for everything, we tried to find out something about the first tavern in what is now New York. Well, we find that the first one was built in 1642 in New Amsterdam—before its name was changed to New York. It was located not far from what is today Bowling Green, by the then Dutch Governor Kieft. It seems that the Governor tired of entertaining guests in his own home, so he built a tavern for the West India Company. Then he leased it to one Phillip Girairdy (sometimes called Gerritson), with the stipulation that only such liquors as were traded in by the West India Company should be sold therein. It was known as the Stadt Harberg or City Tavern. Later it graduated and became the Stadt Huys or City Hall.

Way back in those days the tavern was not only hotel and refreshment place, but frequently it was also the meeting place for the City Fathers or City Council. It was the center of social functions in the community. It was hotel, restaurant, town hall, club and country club all in one.

And this is most interesting. Even in the dawn of our American civilization, taverns were rigidly regulated and licensed, even to the hours and days of their operation. Licenses were issued by the local administrative body. The early Colonial tavernkeeper was among the most highly respected members of the community. In fact, in early New York, only voters (landholders) and men of exemplary character were able to obtain tavern licenses.

And so this is just a little nibble. We hope to follow with several other pieces about taverns and their famed proprietors during the Revolutionary period. . . . The deeper we dig, the more interesting the revelations.

HUNGRY YANKS DENIED FOOD BY CURFEW IN N. Y.

M. P.s Make Them Leave Meals at Midnight.

New York, March 25 [Special].—Hundreds of hungry service men were driven from legitimate all night restaurants by military and shore police early today as the strictness of army and navy enforcement of the Byrnes midnight curfew reached a new high.

The army and navy police squads took the position that any restaurant with a bar was out of bounds to a man in uniform, even tho the bar was closed, and in many cases forced service men to abandon half eaten meals to get out on the street.

Among the better known places hit were the Childs 42d st. restaurant, between Vanderbilt and Madison avs., the Toffenetti restaurant, Broadway and 43d st., and Reuben's in E. 58th st., just off 5th av.

Resentfully Protest.

Many of the soldiers and sailors chased out of, or barred from, eating places protested volubly and most of them were bitterly resentful. They quit their food reluctantly and moved away sullenly.

Enforcement procedure varied. At Childs, the military police sought and obtained the coöperation of the management in refusing food to service men. At Toffenetti's the officers formed a picket line before the entrance and barred men in uniform from going in.

An attempt to shut off food for service men at Reuben's was made by Arnold Reuben at the request of the military, but soldiers and sailors ignored his request that they leave and demanded food. Those who evaded ejectment by military police were served.

Major Defies Arrest.

Maj. Robert Lawton, just back from a 16 month tour of duty with the 12th army group in the European theater, succeeded in getting a plate of eggs and toast at Childs by invading the kitchen after a waiter refused him service at 1:15 a. m. Military police followed him to the kitchen and ordered him to leave. "You can't put me out," he told them. They called a captain.

"The captain said, 'You can't eat here,' and I said, 'You stop me,'" Lawton related. "He kept arguing and I said, 'You can arrest me if you want to.'" The captain contented himself with taking the major's name, rank and serial number. The major finished his meal.

Restaurant men said the army and navy ban on the serving of food after midnight came as a complete surprise to them. On the civilian curfew front a survey showed that midtown bars were observing the midnight closing rule, but that elsewhere in the city, particularly in Greenwich Village and Queens, 1 a. m. seemed to be the rule.

NOT ENFORCED HERE.

Military police and the shore patrol are not enforcing the midnight curfew in Chicago on service men who are patrons in legitimate all-night restaurants and cafes, army and navy public relations officers said yesterday.

MIDNIGHT SUN TELLS THE TIME IN TOM'S TAVERN

Yonkers, N. Y., March 25 (AP).—Thomas McKenzie, tavern proprietor, was pleasant but firm when two policemen, checking midnight curfew closings, entered his place at 12:35 a. m. today. McKenzie, reported Sgt. Bernard McGinn, pointed to a sign hanging over the bar which said: "This place is operating on solar time." "Solar time," McGinn quoted McKenzie as saying, "is one hour behind daylight saving time. It will close up at 11:55 p. m. solar time." Pending study of a report submitted to the city manager, police made no complaint.

Clutching a jonquil bouquet, Charles Johnson sits in Hudson avenue station after arrest on a burglary charge.

Charles Johnson, 8, of 3224 N. Clark st., was arrested yesterday by Hudson av. police as he stood huddled in the rain in front of 2012 N. Clark st., clutching a bouquet of yellow jonquils in one hand and a cocoa can containing $190 and jewelry worth $450 in the other.

Policeman Conrad Larson said the boy admitted taking the money and jewelry from the apartment of Miss Ethel Pastor, 5206 N. Lakewood av., owner of the Coed theater, 1330 Morse av., but said that a man known only as Joe had "put me up to it."

Miss Pastor said she had known Charles since he was 2 years old and that he had frequently run errands for her. A neighbor saw a boy answering his description fleeing from the apartment after the burglary.

At the police station Charles gave police a momentary start when he yanked a revolver from his pocket, but it proved to be a toy. Asked why he had bought the flowers Charles said they were for his mother, who is expected home today from Kentucky, where she had been visiting another son in an army hospital.

2 in Stolen Auto Caught in 75 Mile an Hour Chase

State highway police yesterday captured two young men in a stolen car after a chase at 75 miles an hour in Skokie highway from the Cook-Lake county line to Skokie. Policemen Walter Potempa and Samuel Page, who made the arrest, said the captives identified themselves as Russell Coleman, 18, of 845 N. 22d st. and Robert Pulpz, 16, 2102 N. 28th st., both of Milwaukee. They admitted having stolen the car in Milwaukee, the officers said.

MOVIE CURFEW DEFIER REPORTS BUSINESS BOOM

Toledo, O., March 25 [Special].—Jack O'Connell, theater owner who has been defying the midnight curfew since Monday by operating his Loop theater, a movie house, from midnight to 5 a. m., said his audience this morning was the largest in the theater's eight year history.

Between midnight and 1 a. m., he said, 279 admission tickets were sold, and business continued brisk for the next three hours. He estimated that more than 500 persons saw the post-midnight show.

Ralph O. Snyder, area director for the war man power commission, said he may have a statement tomorrow in regard to O'Connell. After the theater owner refused to abide by the curfew at a formal hearing last week, Snyder recommended to Washington WMC officials that such sanctions as cutting off the theater's electricity be applied. No action has been taken.

THE WINNER—RUSSIA.

Russian influence in Europe, altho probably not near its peak, is greater than ever before in history and it is the influence of revolution. It has been imposed by force on some neighboring countries whose subjection is accepted by the planners of the new world. These people are the disinherited. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt recognize that nothing can be done about it and much of the subject they prefer not to discuss at all.

In other countries Russian influence has taken advantage of conditions which produce revolution—fear, want, misery, broken families, feebleness of authority, the demoralization of industry, and the disrepute of private property. Russian influence has spread where British influence was paramount and where for British security it should be dominant. Communism is strong in Belgium and Holland. Its precepts and practices undermine French conservatism. De Gaulle thinks more of his Russian alliance than he does of the world security organization.

Mr. Churchill defended his conduct in Greece by attributing to the Communists a volume of atrocities worse than the German. Stalin was given his head in Yugoslavia and he has taken it in Romania. Italy, like France, tends to communist expropriations. As Italy and France were cleared of Germans, Moscow trained nationals of these countries, such as the French Thorez and the Italian Togliatti, returned home to direct political action. Mr. Churchill on his own turf must denounce crackpot Utopias which are offending his common sense.

Russia in our relations with it and its people is two things, a military ally with a good reason for fighting the war to the finish and a communist state long suspicious of the other nations, long antagonistic to them, and now for the first time as a dictatorship able to dictate outside its own boundaries. The gospelizing of the new order in this country which accepts Russia as a land of free people is propagation of delusion. There never has been a time when a misconception of the soviet union was a safe investment.

We do not want to think of what the war in Europe would be like if the Russians were not fighting and if there were no eastern front, but even in the war Stalin's government has been distrustful. It has maintained a blackout even against its allies. Apparently no one at the conferences with Mr. Stalin has been bold enough to ask him why he made his deal with Hitler. Without a confession there is enough to explain it. Europe was his enemy. He underestimated what Hitler could do and he overestimated the resisting power of Great Britain and France.

He may have foreseen another four years' war with central and western Europe fighting to exhaustion, the Nazi states against the bourgeois states. He having partitioned Poland with Hitler and having gained new territory and stronger frontiers would gather strength, enjoy prosperity, and in the end look down upon the wrecked world of the enemies of the soviet union. Such a war was to be enjoyed and profit taken from it. The miscalculation was nearly fatal. Stalin could not have believed that western Europe would hold out only sixty days. The war in the west was only a warm-up for Hitler's attack on Russia.

If Mr. Churchill has not asked Mr. Stalin any embarrassing questions he probably has not told him any embarrassing truths, such as that he owes his safety to England. If England had made peace in 1940 on the assurance that Germany did not want to destroy the empire but did want to drive Russia out of Europe, Hitler would have been relieved of the blockade, he would have had access to materials, he could have taken the Netherlands Indies and then he would not have made near-misses at Leningrad, Moscow, and Stalingrad. Mr. Roosevelt would not have been interested in a war from which England had withdrawn. English obstinacy, based on the full expectation of the American divisions now fighting in the Rhineland, saved Stalin.

Russia as an ally has this background, and if it is forgotten the misfortune will be that of the absent minded. There was no kinship of ideas, merely one of danger. In that furnace there was a fusion. It has served for the purposes of the war now drawing to its close. The same men who would have been satisfied if their strategy in 1939 had committed the rest of Europe to a war of complete demoralization control Russia today and it is the same Russia which since the Lenin revolution has regarded the bourgeois countries as natural enemies.

Russia, almost miraculously saved by the nations whose destruction it had contemplated, comes out of the war with great prestige and power. No one has been able to say no to Stalin as yet, altho he is under obligations for the supplies which enabled his men to move and fight. His need of his allies soon will diminish; their need of him, in the war against Japan, will increase.

His hand is aces, all aces. And we might all now begin to wonder what will happen if Germany, with its own background of communism and socialism, should decide that its only way out of its darkness is to lie down on Russia's doorstep as a Marxist foundling.

DRAMATIS PERSONAE AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The conclave convening at San Francisco April 25 to ponder the Dumbarton Oaks security scheme has almost as many eccentric characters listed in the playbill as the theatergoer would find in a Saroyan play.

Mr. Roosevelt, the only man in history who ever succeeded in getting America into a two front war, will now show the world how to achieve peace. He has an ingénue role.

Mr. Churchill's delegates will be representing a government which hasn't seen fit to give the British people a general election in 10 years and which has been continuously in power for 14. Nobody knows what the disfranchised British electorate thinks or what it will do when it can express itself.

Mr. Stalin wins the part of the villain by default. He will sell Uncle Tom Poland down the river and foreclose the mortgage on the Baltic states. Nobody has said "nyet" to him in Russia for 15 years and he need not expect that any one will at San Francisco, either. The critics in the fourth row will find that he has a good sneer.

One of the leading supporting parts is that of the Mackenzie King government of Canada. Mr. King is dissolving parliament prior to the San Francisco meeting and will go to the country some time in the next few months. His government may or may not be returned to power.

The government of Gen. de Gaulle in France is just as ambiguous, if not more so. The general appears out of politeness occasionally before the French assembly to remind the members that they exercise no real power, and contemplates no general election until the last French prisoner is pried loose from Germany. There are still at least a million and a half there, so the general isn't worried.

The Belgian, Dutch, and Norwegian governments exist also thru British patronage. No one can guess what the future has in store for them.

Greece, which is under British army rule, will flit in and out of the wings, but Italy, which is equally under British rule, won't be permitted on the stage. Italy is a co-belligerent, not an ally. Besides, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden don't like an Italian named Sforza, possibly because he doesn't like the house of Savoy.

Poland, the country over which the whole war started, won't be there at all. Its lines will be spoken by Stalin.

Eire, Portugal, Spain, and Argentina won't be there because they aren't members of the union. Neither will Syria and Lebanon, which fancy that they are independent. Gen. de Gaulle argues the point.

Switzerland and Sweden, the only free, democratic governments on the continent of Europe, are not invited to be present.

History furnishes no parallel to this absurdity. San Francisco is straight farce. Don't expect anything serious.

WILLIAMS REJECTED.

The senate refused to confirm the appointment of Aubrey Williams to head the rural electrification administration. The vote to reject him was 52 to 36. The 33 Republicans against him were joined by 19 Democrats.

This informal coalition is substantially the same one which insisted on divorcing the loan agencies from the commerce department before approving the nomination of Henry Wallace to the cabinet. The rejection of Williams shows that the senators have not changed their minds in the intervening weeks.

The country will take great satisfaction in this evidence that there still is hope for the preservation of the Republic. It is not going to be surrendered lightly to crackpots, wastrels, and enemies of the Constitution.

Still, it would be a great mistake to conclude that the victory has been won in the sense that the New Dealers will accept it and its implications as a guide to their future conduct. They are not abandoning the field. The proof of their determination to pursue their designs as if nothing had happened is the announcement that Mrs. Roosevelt is to speak at the forthcoming dinner to Aubrey Williams. It is even called a "victory dinner." That means that the White House regards this defeat as no more than a temporary check.

Likewise, the forces to which Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, referred in his recent address in New York are not abandoning their alliance with the New Deal. The business men who are looking for fancy profits from trade with Russia can find nothing wrong these days with Aubrey Williams. Neither can their bankers. Neither can the radical leaders of the CIO. Neither can the Communists. All the influence of all such people is going to be directed toward preventing further coöperation between Republicans and Democrats for the national welfare.

The smear brigade to which Mr. Woll referred has not been disbanded. It worked valiantly for Williams and it will continue its falsifications and character assassinations as occasions present themselves. There will be no lack of money, of newspaper columns, and of radio stations to propagandize for unrest and revolution.

Obviously, the battle to save the Republic from the schemers and manipulators will be long and hard.

SPOOKS WE'RE FIGHTING.

Lt. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi, commander of the Jap garrison on Iwo, sent his regrets to the emperor prior to drawing his sword for the final banzai charge. He expressed hope that he would prove a more successful military leader after his demise than he had been up to then. In death, he promised to "turn into a spirit" and lead the imperial army victoriously back over the trail of past defeats.

Gen. Kuribayashi will find plenty of material for a general staff to preside over his army of spooks wherever he's gone now. His spirit fleet can be entrusted to 94 Jap admirals committed to their ancestors in the last year. There are about a half million Jap soldiers for his army of shades. On the record of Jap military leadership, however, the general would be advised to take on as consulting experts the 18 generals of his ally, Germany, who have been killed on the western front. Of course, they were not altogether successful themselves, or they would not be dead.

We'll bet Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Nimitz are having some terrible nightmares. If they'll kindly get on the receiving end of a ouija board, Kuribayashi will tell them that he's going to knock their brains out.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WEIRD WORDS DEPT.

Tear sheet: A word of fairly recent growth in the language of Big Business and Bellowing Burocracy which has begun to crowd "clipping" [from a newspaper] to the ropes. The plain people still talk of clippings to paste in their scrapbooks, but the B. B.'s cannot be satisfied with less than a full page. "Please send tear sheet," their private secretaries always write.

* * *

The tear sheet craving developed, we suspect, among advertising agencies about the time that press agents became public relations counsels. When these impressive characters made a dent in newsprint, they wanted to see how their stuff compared with adjacent reading matter and if its position was favorable. Therefore, they yearned for tear sheets. Incidentally, a large bundle of tear sheets makes a happier impression, when waved at the client, than a skimpy assembly of clippings. So it has come to pass that there is a great clamor in the land for tear sheets, in spite of the paper shortage, and editors are tearing their hair.

* * *

Know-how: An expression which marks its user as a mastermind of industrialism, maybe even a junior executive. The familiar words, "skill," "method," "ability," are not pretentious enough for him. Perhaps they are not in his vocabulary, which has surprising limitations. "Me heap big chief. Me can do. Me have know-how": Such is his attitude, which naturally finds expression in Basic American.

* * *

Break down: The horde of economists and statisticians who are the camp followers of regimentation dropped this foundling upon the national doorstep. It's a chummy version of "analyze," which perhaps they couldn't spell. Typewriter machines in every line of work are now breaking down because of the terrific speed of their "break down" output. A sports page example: "A break down of these figures [27] produces 9 pitchers, 5 catchers, 8 infielders, and 5 outfielders." We feel that it is time for the break down gang to break up.

THREE GOSSIPS.

Spring advances, Spring retreats—
Keeps us in suspense;
One sure sign
Along the line:
Mrs. A. and Mrs. B.,
Leaning for a gossip spree
Across the back yard fence.

Bargains, colds, ration points,
Family events,
Relatives in the war,
Letters had, waited for—
The neighbors, too,
Now get their due,
Across the back yard fence.

Lord love you, Mrs. A. and B.,
I think you show good sense.
Dirty dishes? Let them wait!
Midday meal? Somewhat late!
Spring, who has her point of view,
Slyly edges in with you,
Across the back yard fence.

Evan S. Tonian.

Let's Sing of Chaos in the Spring.

Spring fever, whose languor alternates with bursts of ambition, explains spring cleaning, which men pretend not to understand. The sunshine shows up dirty windows that went unnoticed under winter's pallid glance. So the housewife scrubs them clean in an ambitious moment. Then the bright fingers of sun explore the farthest corners of her house, and hitherto ignored spots must be tackled with vim and vigor!

Therefore, a man comes home to a living room with the piano and the davenport pushed together and end tables piled atop one another, the easy chair and radio unapproachable. When he makes his way to the dining room, blankness meets his wondering eyes. So he proceeds to the kitchen, there to be greeted by a disheveled woman, claiming to be his loving wife, but unrecognizable under a layer of grime and oddly assorted articles of clothing apparently unearthed from an attic trunk.

When he pleads for supper she orders him to turn on the gas under the soup. He then proceeds to haul furniture under her direction, muttering oaths. For hasn't he slaved all day at the office? After the window cleaners left, hadn't the ambition to clean his messy desk kept him on the go all day?

Anonymous-Lee.

WE'LL NEVER KNOW.

When your last grenade is thrown,
Your bayonet broken and gone,
And Death rides up to welcome you
As you whisper, "Carry on!"
Will your last thoughts be of war
And all its horrible mess,
Or will you remember those you love
And former happiness?
Will there be a last, long moment
As you pause on the Rim Between,
To view our lovely yesterdays
On memory's kindly screen?
And will one name escape you,
Beloved above all others?
Who do men think of first and last—
Their sweethearts or their mothers?

If you care to enlist in the navy medical corps before you are 18, you might be able to select a type of work which would involve training in a number of fields useful to you later in the study of medicine. You can get training in bacteriology, serology, hematology, pathology, medical parasitology, blood and clinical chemistry, microscopy, etc. If you wish further information or want to enlist, go to the nearest navy recruiting station. In Chicago, it is at 321 Plymouth ct.

HAVE YOU A PET WART?

OF the various types of skin blemishes, warts rank high in popularity. Most of us can boast of being a one time possessor of any number of these innocent tumors. They may appear singly or in groups, but sometimes several grow together and form a large mass. What is more, they come in assorted sizes from a pinhead to a pea.

Their "why and how" is not clearly understood but evidence thus far shows that they arise because of infection with a filtrable virus which attacks the surface layers of the epidermis. Hence, many authorities consider them contagious. Strangely enough, the blemishes seem to favor youthful skin.

Ordinarily these "critters" are harmless, and they rarely if ever become cancerous. They seldom produce symptoms, but their presence on the fingers is often annoying. This leads to picking and scratching, which may be followed by bleeding or infection.

The back of the hand is the common site of distribution. All agree that when the face is involved, the lesions are a nuisance—particularly from a cosmetic standpoint. One variety may develop on the soles of the feet [plantar]. These warts may be mistaken for calluses because of the hard, horny layer which covers the region. Pressure on these points may be so painful that walking is impossible.

Scores of methods have been utilized for removal, but spontaneous disappearance—one of the mysterious behaviors of these "pests"—is not unusual. Many have been known to vanish, apparently from mental suggestion. This provides a basis for the success of grandmothers "buying" them from their offspring with a few well spent pennies. I didn't make any money on my crop because, at my mother's recommendation of rubbing potato peelings on the eruptions and tossing the "magic" skins over my left shoulder, they went away. Unfortunately the majority do not respond to this hocus-pocus treatment.

Those who have access to chemicals frequently attempt to dissolve the growths by the application of nitric acid, glacial acetic acid, or salicylic acid. Caution must be taken not to irritate or inflame the surrounding skin. Carbon dioxide snow, fashioned into a pencil and touched for a few seconds with pressure, is a valuable agent in certain types.

When only a few excrescences are present, electrocautery may be successful, but unless the area is well anesthetized discomfort may be noted. As a rule, X-ray or radium will dispose of them readily. Moreover, pain is absent, scarring is less likely, and the possibility of infection is rather remote. Needless to say, expert administration is demanded to prevent radiation burns.

No single remedy will be effective in every instance. If simple measures fail to bring results, skilled attention should be sought. When they are not prominently located or if they cause no trouble, it is better to let well enough alone.

WHITE SPOTS.

N. A. writes: I am 13 years old and have developed vitiligo on my upper arms. Is there any cure?

REPLY.

We do not know why small areas of skin lose their pigment. Hence the condition cannot be cured. Staining the spots is a temporary measure, used by many victims. Sunbathing makes these patches more prominent, as they do not tan.

⊸

INGROWN.

W. writes: My husband is annoyed by ingrown hairs on the face. Why does he get them?

REPLY.

This is usually a shaving problem, especially in those who go over the area again and again. This causes irritation and, finally, infection in the tiny hair follicles.

⊸

MATZOTHS.

R. W. writes: Do matzoths have acid in them? Whenever I eat anything acid my face breaks out. The Passover will soon be here and I would like to know before then.

REPLY.

Yes, about the same amount as bread. I doubt if "acid" is responsible for your blemishes.

⊸

CATNAPS.

Mrs. E. A. writes: I am 64 years old and every time I go to a lecture, I fall asleep. Can you advise me?

REPLY.

⊸

YES AND NO.

H. B. T. writes. Is physical aging a disease or a normal process?

REPLY.

In the absence of a fountain of youth, aging is normal—if we live long enough. Any disorders resulting from this process may be considered a disease.

Two Wars and One Dancer.

If you knew what credence to place in war time reports emanating from Stockholm, many matters might be simpler. As things are, you sit and wonder in horror if it can be true that the Germans have put to death Vaslav Nijinsky. Stockholm says so. Stockholm says Nijinsky was a victim of the Nazi policy of executing all persons in Budapest suffering from mental or nervous disorders.

⊸

Nijinsky was the man of whom the birds were said to be jealous. Only those who attended the ballet before 1919 saw him dance, but none who saw him has ever forgotten it. Against their memories of this beautiful, catlike young man with the darkly brooding countenance and the dreaming slant eyes of the oriental, all other male dancers are nonexistent. Admire the feats of any modern, no matter how extraordinary they seem, and the remembering ones will say, softly, "O, but you should have seen Nijinsky!" Nijinsky was the only dancer who could perform entre-chats dix, crossing his feet in midair 10 times without touching the ground. Other men need airplanes to give them wings, but Nijinsky soared alone. His leap thru a window in "Le Spectre de la Rose," made from a standing position like the flight of a bird, is recorded as the most incredible leap in ballet, and four men, their arms intertwined in a resilient web, stood in the wings to catch him in descent. He moved in a cloud of idolatry, bowed to even by queens. Once when he neglected to appear at a luncheon given by Queen Mary of England in his honor, the queen merely sighed. "We can forgive him," she said, "he is not of this world." He soared to the pedestal of a god, and perhaps the gods then were jealous, or perhaps they were kind. They never allowed him to fall. Instead, they made him go mad.

His madness was said to have been caused by his experiences as a prisoner at the outset of World War I. He was arrested in Budapest in 1914 as a spy after figures and drawings thought to be code had been found in his rooms, and altho able to prove that these were the mechanics of his new dances, he was held in a concentration camp until 1916. Then he came to America for a magnificently triumphant tour. Soon after this he began to act strangely and in 1919 was pronounced insane.

He was placed in a sanitarium outside Paris where he reacted to nothing except pencil and paper. With these he made curious, involuted line drawings, as rhythmic as his most stirring ballet feats. All efforts to awaken his mind thru dancing failed, but none as miserably as the night Diaghilev, his former mentor, took him to the ballet at the Paris opera. Karsavina, the great ballerina who had been his co-star, was to dance "Petrouchka" with Serge Lifar as she had once danced it with Nijinsky. Nijinsky was to watch and remember suddenly that he was really a dancer and not, as he thought then, a horse.

But Nijinsky, handcuffed to the men on either side of him, did not watch. He sat with a stiff, terrible smile on his lips and a glazed emptiness in his eyes. When the audience arose, he sat and looked straight ahead. When Diaghilev touched his arm to go, he turned and whinnied.

Already, at that time, in 1929, his vibrant, evocative figure was wasted and his head bald. But suddenly, after being taken to Switzerland and given insulin, he began to improve. In 1936 he dressed again in ballet costume. He left the sanitarium to live with his wife, and in 1940 they went to Budapest hoping to come to the United States to continue the insulin treatments. He was barred because he was without visible means of support. . . . But those who saw him dance once long ago always thought he would emerge again, forgetting, perhaps, that one cannot recapture a dream, and forgetting, too, how pitiful and tragic the dance of a broken man of 55 might be. And so the people who first destroyed his mind now have destroyed his body.

AMERICA'S "RESPONSIBILITY."

Chicago, March 11.—President Roosevelt in his recent speech relative to the Yalta conference stated we would have to collaborate to preserve the peace or else face the responsibility of a third world war.

Since when have we become responsible for the stupidity or cupidity of foreign war mongers and internationalists in our midst who have thrown the world into chaos for the second time in 25 years?

It seems to me a third world war is inevitable, due to the policies being pursued by the holy three, or shall I say the unholy three. Any policy which is based on force and slavery is bound to result sooner or later in another war.

Whether we collaborate or not, a third war is already in the making and F. D. R. is using the danger of another war as a big stick to gain favor for his scheme for a world state. This world state will be used as a vehicle for economic dominance over all nations by the international bankers.

Only thru a peace based on justice for all nations and economic freedom in relation to their needs can we ever hope to attain our goal of permanent peace. GEORGE W. BUERGER.

PLENTY OF TRUMPERIES.

South Bend, Ind., March 12.—Luncheon cloths and draperies are beautiful home decorations, but they never will take the place of sheets, pillow cases, towels, and some of the other necessities which are unobtainable in the stores today.

A tour thru any department store will prove that we apparently have an over-abundance of luncheon cloths, draperies, women's play suits, and other textiles which cannot be termed necessities around a house.

Perhaps some Tribune reader, who happens to be connected with the WPB, can explain this over-abundance of flowered textiles and the shortage of plain, ordinary home necessities.

This reader believes that the situation may have been caused by a definite ceiling price on necessities, a lack of, or very little control over, flowered textile prices. TRIBUNE READER.

SPURRING HENRY'S JOB PROGRAM.

Chicago, March 8.—Returning to Chicago recently from the east, and after reading about the acute labor shortage in this area, which is emphasized in New York newspapers, I had occasion to ride the elevated thru Oak Park.

Imagine my amazement to see two strong, able-bodied men standing on each street crossing with a large stop sign, in addition a gate tender.

Talking to an Oak Parker, I discovered that the raving and ranting of the village editor had stirred up the commerce commission, and it was so ordered.

I wonder, are Oak Parkers such imbeciles that they cannot see where they are going? I suggest that we follow the same procedure on our streets, such as Madison, etc. This will take up surplus labor. A CHICAGOAN.

THEY'RE ALREADY LIBERATED.

Livingston, Mont., March 19.—Now that the big push is on in the west, where are the English, and how about the French?

We don't seem to think much of the lives of our boys. We take them over there with little training. Why not arm the French and let them do some of their own liberating?

C. W. GRANT.

WHY WORRY?

Park Ridge, Ill., March 18.—Why worry about the division of Poland? American Poles, at least, planned it that way—they voted for Roosevelt almost to a man.

Why worry about the shortage of meat? The majority of housewives planned it that way. They reelected a man who does not approve of providing for his own country first.

Why agonize about sending 18 year olds into battle after a bare 15 weeks of training? The American voters returned to office men who have broken their promises again and again, etc.

Why tear our hearts over the casualty lists? We elected an administration of Democrats, and Democrats have found no other way to arrive at prosperity but along the bloody path of war.

Why worry about Mr. Roosevelt becoming a dictator? He couldn't dictate to two men at Yalta, much less 130 million at home—or can he?

And why not have compulsory military training? Europe has always had it and Europe has always had wars and we have always had to win them sans compulsory military training. Compulsory military training makes youth amenable to commands and so easily led by any spellbinder. C. C. L.

BLOODY RUSSIA.

Walkerton, Ind., March 13.—In reply to Dr. Benjamin Chapman's protest against the "vicious attack upon the soviet government" I would like to ask him what right the soviet government has to transfer people of other nationality into its own country? Is it because they murdered millions of their own Christians and are now going to practice the same on another nation by kidnaping them and butchering them as they did the 10,000 Polish officers at Katyn? This is a pet sport of the blood dripping, godless Russian government. The chief aim of this godless government is to destroy Christianity and Poland, a Catholic country, is Russia's next victim. Is this treating the Poles "very good" as Dr. Benjamin Chapman claims? The Poles can do without such benefaction. CELIA BDZIEL.

TRAINS OF STREET CARS.

Chicago, March 4.—In order to save man power, why not hook up a string of four to six "muzzle loader" number 4 or 5 Cottage Grove or South Chicago cars in a train, thereby eliminating several motormen? We, the public, would get the same service, as they always run in bunches at 15 to 30 minute intervals. W.

NOT AT LAWYER'S MERCY.

Chicago, March 24.—In 1943 my husband and I retained an attorney to write our wills. In 1944 my husband died and the same lawyer handled my affairs, such as probating the will and all necessary matters pertaining thereto, for which I again paid him the sum asked for. Now he is closing the estate and settling my affairs. 1. Do I have to pay him the large sum he is now asking? 2. Am I at his mercy to pay an amount I consider unjust? F. A.

1. If in 1944 you paid only for services to date, then it is reasonable that you should now pay an additional sum for the closing of the estate.
2. No. If you are dissatisfied, you can submit the question to the probate judge.

WAR INVENTION STORY WILL BE TOLD OVER W-G-N

Loss of Lexington Leads to Vital Pump.

The story of two inventions which solved some of the major problems of modern warfare will be dramatized tonight over station W-G-N in the eighth broadcast of America Unlimited, the program dedicated to Chicago war workers and the part they play in allied victories.

The first of the two sequences to be dramatized tonight will tell the story of the sinking of the great aircraft carrier Lexington, and the second will tell how American engineers solved the problem of switching freight cars from the normal to the narrow gauge railways used in some European countries.

Stem All but One Fire.

When the Lexington was hit by Japanese bombs during the battle of the Coral sea, damage control parties were able to stem all the fires but one. That one, to her officers, posed no great problem until it was discovered that the ship's main propulsion engines, which also operated the water pumps, had failed.

Hand pumps became useless when high test aviation gasoline began leaking from sprung pipe joints.

From this lesson the navy learned that ships must be provided with small, powerful, and mobile pump units for use if the main engines were destroyed. The Buda company, Harvey, solved this problem and the pump engines produced in the company factories have been instrumental in saving crippled fighting ships thruout the world.

Railway Problem Solved.

When allied troops hit the beaches of France for the great invasion of Europe they took with them another product of the Buda company which solved the transportation problem of Europe's multiple gauge railroads. For the first time armies could depend on the railway shipment of supplies no matter what gauge tracks they might encounter. The Buda company had invented a railway car which could be converted from the standard four feet eight and a half inch track to fit any other track in a matter of minutes.

America Unlimited is heard from 9 to 9:30 each Monday night over W-G-N.

CARRIER MIDWAY GIVES THRILL TO CHICAGO WOMAN

When the new aircraft carrier Midway slid down the ways recently at Newport News, Va., an honor guest was Miss Dorothy Brooks, 1432 N. La Salle st.

Miss Dorothy Brooks.

Miss Brooks' father, Capt. Norman C. Brooks, discovered the Midway Islands, after which the carrier was named, and planted the American flag on them, in 1859. He named the three islands East Brooks, West Brooks, and Middle Brooks. Forty-four years later, American marines landed on the islands to convert them into a station of the trans-Pacific cable, and they later became a clipper plane stop.

Miss Brooks was born in San Francisco, but she has lived in Chicago since 1911, during all of which time she has been an employe of the Railway Express agency and its predecessor companies.

WAR PRODUCTION PARLEY TO BE HELD IN CHICAGO

The Chicago Technical Societies council will poin with the army, navy, and war production board in a war production conference in the Stevens hotel Thursday. The 42 societies making the council represent all forms of scientific and technical work, and 33 panel discussions of their fields will occupy most of the day.

In addition, exhibits of war material and production equipment will be displayed. Maj. Gen. Levin H. Campbell Jr., chief of ordnance will report on a recent survey of fire power in combat at the noon luncheon. Clarence G. Stohl, president of the Western Electric company, will present at dinner a report on American industrial production.

THE QUESTION.

In what way has spring fever affected you?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Lorraine Sullivan, student, 6022 S. Talman av.—I've been trying to concentrate on my home work and things I should do but to no avail. I can't drive myself to stay indoors. To give myself a legitimate excuse to be loafing I've been spending lots of time reading books outdoors that I should have read this winter.

Elizabeth Casper, student, 4041 Ellis av.—It's the same way every year. Springs gets the best of me and all I can do is let it take its course and enjoy it while it lasts. This year I've done a horrible thing. The warm days we had made me want to be outside and I quit my after school job. I'll get another soon.

Leonard Nakulski, student, 864 N. Wells st.—Spring makes me feel ambitious rather than lazy. I feel like going out and doing things. I've been planning all sorts of hikes and recreation. I'm going to take advantage of spring with the idea in mind that it comes but once a year. I'll enjoy it while it's here. It is a lot of fun.

Henry Ginsburg, student, 1327 Albion av.—There are a lot of things I should do—practice on the piano, my homework, and so forth. I could sit at the piano for hours but I wouldn't learn a thing because my mind wouldn't be on my work. There's no cure for spring fever except to imagine it's raining outside.

Norman Axelrad, student, 1122 E. 52d st.—I have a late class in school and when it's so perfectly warm outside all I do is sit and stare out the window of the classroom. I can't even sleep at night when I have spring fever. To counteract this I wear myself out during the day playing baseball. Then at night I can't stay awake.

SMALL LOAN RATES ARE OFTEN TWO TO THREE TIMES MORE!

Why, for a $100 loan, make 12 payments of about $10.07 each, totalling $120.84 (which is $20.84 more than you borrowed) when at Merchandise Bank a similar loan would cost you only $8—on your signature only. And only $5.50 if with one co-maker.

Here you save at least $12.84 (that you might as well have in your own pocket)—or as much as $15.34, if you choose to have a co-maker. In either case, you SAVE nearly as much as two payments on your loan.

Made Easy For You

If you need a loan—or want to reduce present borrowing costs —there's no need to take time off your job. Simply phone us at Whitehall 4500, or write, and everything can be quickly and confidentially arranged at your convenience.

For a 12 mo. $100 LOAN	At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay	$20.84
	At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only	8.00
	YOU SAVE	$12.84
For a 12 mo. $200 LOAN	At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay	$39.52
	At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only	16.00
	YOU SAVE	$23.52

Why Pay More THAN THIS LOW COST?

• Savings shown apply to "signature only" loans repaid in 12 monthly instalments, cost to be deducted in advance. You can save even more if you borrow with one co-maker. In either case, you save at least half of usual and lawful Small Loan Charges.

MEAT INDUSTRY DRAWS PLAN TO HALT SHORTAGE

New Deal Price Ceilings Under Attack.

A committee representing all branches of the meat industry, from the grower to the corner butcher, yesterday completed a plan here designed to make more meat available for the nation's tables by breaking the deadlock on grain and stock ceiling prices which, the committee said, has made it unprofitable for corn belt stock feeders to continue their business.

A. D. Brownfield of Deming, N. M., chairman of the general committee of 16 representing national organization of growers, feeders, slaughterers, and retailers meeting in Hotel Sherman, refused to divulge full details of the plan until it is presented early this week to the senate agriculture subcommittee, which has been directed by the senate to conduct a full inquiry into the food problem.

Losses Will Be Told.

Brownfield said, however, that newly correlated industry-wide figures show that government price ceilings on corn and stock have resulted in losses to growers, feeders, and packing houses and caused much meat to be diverted into black markets. These figures will be presented to the senate subcommittee.

Later in the week, the plan, "with its statistics showing the effects of government bungling on the meat industry," will be presented to the house agriculture committee, Price Administrator Bowles, and War Food Administrator Marvin Jones, Brownfield said.

The plan is expected to prove that government price control has resulted in the present meat shortage.

The plan will recommend, it was believed, an upward adjustment of 1 to 2 cents a pound on choice stock. Such a step, Brownfield said, would relieve the situation "by stimulating farmers to resume feeding, resulting in more and heavier cattle, as well as greater returns to packers."

Members of the subcommittee forming the plan include W. S. Clithero of Armour & Co., Albert K. Mitchell, Albert [N. M.] rancher, Paul Thompson, Clinton [Ind.] stock feeder, and Edwin Janssen, St. Paul, Minn., president of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers.

Janssen, who was directed by the board of directors of his organization in another meeting at the Palmer House to seek a crack in the price ceilings on a different basis, left immediately for Washington, D. C., to see war food administration and OPA officials.

Cite Reason for By-Pass.

J. A. Kotal, national secretary of the retail dealers, charged that they are receiving and passing on to the nation's table only 25 per cent of what they need because too large a percentage of meat is by-passing federally inspected slaughterhouses from which the retail dealers obtain a majority of their supplies.

The reason for the by-pass was given as the packers' inability, because of price ceilings, to meet prices obtained from country slaughtering, with its high returns from black market operators and frozen locker patrons.

In February, 1943, Janssen predicted the present meat chaos at an industry meeting here if OPA policies outlined by "classroom theorists" were continued. Janssen warned the OPA at that time that black markets combined with "amateurish control" would threaten the entire civilian meat market—a prediction which observers said yesterday had come true.

DANAHER NAMED AS AID TO G. O. P. NATIONAL GROUP

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—Appointment of former Sen. Danaher of Connecticut as congressional aid to the Republican national committee was announced tonight by Chairman Herbert Brownell Jr.

The position was authorized by the committee at its January meeting in Indianapolis.

"Our important objective is the 1946 congressional elections," Brownell said in a statement, "and we intend to offer to the members of the senate and the house every possible coöperation between now and the next election. We have created the post of congressional aid to the end that all efforts at the national level may be thoroly coördinated."

Brownell said plans for permanent and continuous national committee activities will be submitted to the executive committee here Tuesday.

"I THOUGHT I recognized your son yesterday! I said to my husband: 'Isn't that the little Perkins boy, home on furlough?'"

CIO HAILS DEWEY AFTER FIGHTING HIM IN ELECTION

Albany, N. Y., March 25 [Special].—The New York state CIO, which fought Gov. Dewey as a Presidential candidate, today warmly commended him and the Republican controled legislature, which adjourned Saturday night.

In a statement issued today Louis Hollander and Harold J. Garno, president and secretary-treasurer respectively of the state CIO, said that this year's legislative session was "the best since Gov. Dewey came into office."

They praised especially the passage of the Ives-Quinn bill forbidding discrimination in employment, the "harmonizing" bill of merit rating in unemployment insurance which also increased benefits of unemployed wage earners, and the New York City rent control bills.

"Gov. Dewey is to be commended for his open espousal of these important bills despite the fact that some sections of his party were bitterly opposed to all three bills," said Hollander.

R. P. Crane Jr. of Army Weds English Girl

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE marriage in England of a Chicagoan, Sgt. Robert P. Crane Jr., who is stationed overseas with the army, and the engagement of two north shore young people, Miss Betty Jane Pomeroy and Averill Baylies Tilden Jr., of the naval reserve, provide news of romantic interest today.

Sgt. Crane's Chicago friends are looking forward to meeting his English bride, the former Mary Jean Alexander, for the couple probably will live here after the war. Their marriage took place on March 3 in the Congregational church in Hoddeston, England. Sgt. Crane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Crane of Pasadena, Cal., formerly of Chicago, attended the Thacher school in Ojai valley, Cal., and was in business here after his graduation from Yale university in 1933. He has been overseas for two years and now is serving in France. He is a nephew of John Bellingham Adams and of Robert M. Adams of Chicago, and a brother of Mrs. Talcott Griswold of Winnetka, Mrs. David Williams of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. John J. Whitney of Pasadena, Cal.

The former Miss Alexander is the daughter of Mrs. William Robert Alexander of Hour Wood farm, Bayord near Hertford Herts, England.

Engagements Announced.

At a cocktail party yesterday in his home in Hubbard Woods George Strickland Pomeroy announced the engagement of his daughter, Betty Jane, to Averill Baylies Tilden Jr. of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tilden of Winnetka. Mr. Tilden, who is rated as a quartermaster, has been at home on leave following six months in the Pacific, but had to leave Saturday to report for duty. He attended Lawrenceville. Miss Pomeroy is a student at Barat college in Lake Forest.

Both of Mr. Tilden's sisters, Mrs. Robert English and Mrs. Robert Nelson, were present at the party. They are living with their parents while their navy husbands are overseas. Lt. English is stationed in South America, and his brother-in-law, Lt. Comdr. Nelson, is serving in the Pacific. Miss Pomeroy's sister, Janet, is living in New York.

At a tea on Saturday at home in Evanston, Mrs. Myral Weeghman Craighead announced the engagement of her daughter, Mary, to Lt. William S. Bradway Jr. of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradway of Gloucester, N. J. The wedding will take place as soon as Lt. Bradway returns from sea duty in the Pacific. Miss Craighead is the daughter of the late Walter Craighead of St. Petersburg, Fla. Her fiance, a graduate of Mercersburg academy and of the University of Pennsylvania, received his commission from the naval training school at Northwestern university.

Other Wedding News.

When Miss Catharine Hopkins and David Ruml of the army are married at 4 p. m. today in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lafayette Hopkins, the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey will be performing his third wedding ceremony in two and one-half years in the Hopkinses' living room. Here for the ceremony, which will be attended only by the two families, are the bride's cousin, Mrs. Dallas McClintic of Decatur, Ill.; Mr. Ruml's father, David Ruml of Baltimore, Md.; his grandfather, Dr. Wentzle Ruml of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur K. Jordan of Cambridge, Mass., former Chicagoans with whom he has made his home. Mr. Jordan is president of Radcliffe college.

A small reception at 4:30 p. m. will follow the ceremony. Mr. Ruml and his bride will live in Syracuse, N. Y., while he completes his studies in the college of medicine at Syracuse university.

Here and There.

Now that Lt. Nicholas Bodman of the naval reserve has obtained an apartment in Washington, D. C., he will go to California to help his wife and new daughter, Anne Sorrel, move east to live while he is stationed there. The baby, who was born on March 20 in Santa Barbara, Cal., is a granddaughter of the Harold C. Bodmans, former Chicagoans now living in Santa Barbara, and of Comdr. and Mrs. Richard Wainwright.

The blue spruce trees near the front door of Mrs. Henry Hixson's Highland Park home will be garbed for spring when the junior group of the Highland Park-Ravinia center of the Infant Welfare society gathers there today, for each member will leave a last year's bonnet on one of the branches as she arrives for the meeting. After the meeting Mrs. John Innes will deliver the hats to the Thrift shop supported by donations from the Infant Welfare, Northwestern settlement, and Highland Park Hospital auxiliary. Mrs. Innes is Thrift shop chairman for the Infant Welfare, and Mrs. Ralph C. Archer heads the junior group.

After the Key club's annual Easter hat parade at 1 p. m. today, a committee of judges made up of members of the press will select the best dressed woman in the audience. Among those with reservations for luncheon are Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. Eugene Ford, Mrs. Alfred O'Gara, Mrs. Ferre C. Watkins, Miss Margaret Goehst, Mrs. John Muldoon, Mrs. Kenneth Beall, and Mrs. Marcy Weeks.

The first performance of Burr Tillstrom's puppet show, "Sleeping Beauty," in its current tour thru 10 public schools will be given today under the auspices of the theater department of the Junior League.

Journey Underground

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.) —o— By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

SYNOPSIS: The author enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and became a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force. On his ninth combat mission his Flying Fortress was shot down over France, and the crew bailed out. A French family hid him in their attic until he was able to walk, then helped him go by railroad to Nevers, 135 miles south of Paris. In Nevers he got in touch with members of the underground movement who hid him in their homes. Eventually he was taken to Paris, and turned over to a blonde woman underground agent, who led him, after a long walk, into the apartment house of a friend.

INSTALMENT XXVI.

When we arrived at the friend's apartment house, madame rushed up the stairs, and by the time I had climbed to the top of the staircase, she was already on her way out again. As she went down the stairs, she told me to wait for her until she returned. A young woman showed me into the living room and left me in the company of a young man who looked typically French. I surmised he was her brother. He was sitting in an easy chair smoking a pipe and reading a book. When I came in he looked up, but did not say anything.

I was still feeling very bitter about the long, rapid walk and speaking French as quickly as I could, fully expressed my displeasure. The man seemed completely unimpressed, and made no reply. I noticed he was wearing United States army socks and asked him if he had known many Americans.

He mumbled "Oui" [yes].

I saw then he was reading "Goodbye Mr. Chips." Thinking that I might help him with his English, I said very slowly and precisely, "Do you like that book?"

"Yeah, it's pretty good," he replied in the most vernacular American.

I meekly asked if he were an American airman. "Sure I am," he said.

The thought of having gushed all my terrible French at this poor American put me into a state of uncontrolable laughter. When I regained control of myself two or three minutes later, and told him that I, too was an American airman, he completely failed to see any humor in the situation, and dryly asked me from what group I had come.

For the moment I couldn't remember the number of my group, so he took over the conversation and monopolized the remainder of the time we spent together by telling me how he had been shot down. He was returning from Stuttgart and had had his fuel tanks punctured by flak. Going back over France he had been attacked by fighters, and his plane was badly hit. Both he and his co-pilot were "streaming blood," so he thought his only choice was to order the crew to bail out.

When he landed, a girl took him to her house and treated his injuries, which he discovered were only superficial flak wounds.

A big, husky Frenchman, who said he was the mayor, came into the house and announced he would have to turn this airman over to the Germans. But the American said he did not want to be handed over to the Germans, whereupon he walked out of the house, bidding every one farewell, and the mayor made no further attempt to detain him.

After that he had been hidden north of Paris for the last month. He told me why he had been in the country so long. The Italians had just capitulated, and the Gestapo and French police were making a thoro search for Italian nationals in France. Papers were demanded at all the stations and many of the Metros, which made travel very dangerous.

When he finished his story another American entered the room. Both of these boys were in the same squadron, but not in the same crew. The newcomer asked me the number of my group and wanted to know if I knew some friends of his at a certain station. However, we had no mutual acquaintances.

The American pilot wanted me to ask her what he should do with $200 he had sewn in his collar. Madame said impulsively that he must give it to her, but when I asked her why, she could give me no reason, so I advised the young man to keep his money until he met some French friends with whom he thought he could safely entrust it.

The other airman wanted me to ask his guide why an official had stopped him in the Gare du Nord and torn open his package. The boy thought the official had been a Gestapo agent and wanted to know for sure, but Madame rushed us out to the street, so that I did not have an opportunity to question the other guide.

The pilot stayed behind, and the other American, whose name was Herkimer, and myself followed Madame to the Metro station. When we arrived there, we found the same two women who had talked to Madame as we had come out of the subway on the way to the zoo. This time they stopped us in the middle of the sidewalk and started an endless conversation with Madame.

Herk and I were told to go over and stand by a shop window about 6 feet away. This was my first opportunity to have a close look at my new companion. He was tall, gaunt, and stooped. His face was long and narrow, and his skin hung down from his eyes and jowls giving him a vague bloodhound expression. His straight blond hair fell over his forehead. He had tremendous hands, which he flopped around as a seal does its flippers.

In an endeavor to start a conversation, I told Herk that we were in the Latin quarter. He either did not know what that was or didn't care, and made no reply. Then I saw a Jew walking by with the Yellow Star of David sewn on the right side of his coat, and on this patch was written the word "Juif." It was the first I had seen, and the sight was a very sad one to me. I explained it to Herk, but he was uninterested.

After 15 minutes, he did say of his own accord that he was tired of standing, and thought it was dangerous to stay there so long. I felt myself that an observant person, seeing us impatiently waiting at a shop window for three long winded women, might have suspected there was something unusual about us.

At long last Madame called us over and said that she was leaving us in charge of these two women, who were to take us to the home at which we were to stay until we left Paris. She told me that neither Herk nor I was to say a word while we were on the subway, and then she left us. The two women started toward the Metro and we followed. This trip was a very long one, and

Flowers Give Added Touch to Easter Attire

BY REA SEEGER.

Flowers that parade with Easter fashions are just as important as a new suit, coat, or ensemble. They must be as much accessory to a flawlessly assembled costume as gloves, hat, or bag. Because of the war time demand, florists are urging early selection and asking civilians to understand that overseas orders take precedence. Nevertheless there are ample supplies of spring blossoms with which to add the final accent to a new spring costume for the big fashion parade.

Try the famous Chicago grown carnations for your navy blue suits or coats. They're huge and vivid in shades from deep, vibrant reds and spicy pinks to unusual pale yellows and very large whites. A mixture of varieties is especially effective for black, navy, or dark brown costumes. Have your florists arrange them in round compact masses for shoulder or belt corsage, in solid colors, or with three shades, deep on the outside with white or pale pink in the center.

Baby orchids are far more individual than the large single blooms, and while no woman in her right mind sniffs at the large blooms, discriminating women, particularly those who are petite, appreciate these precious baby orchids.

Some very unusual colors are available, such as a tawny russet, lime green, and the sensational all whites, three to five on a spray. These are the orchids that make the ideal shoulder corsages. Wear them with coats, tailored suits, and with costumes of faille and heavy satin. Gardenias and camellias, the latter in vivid pink, variegated, or waxy white contrasted with glossy green leaves are telling accents for the smartest Easter outfit. Violets with a single gardenia, and all white nosegays of such romantic blooms as freezia or stephanotis are other floral ideas for the Easter shopper.

Chicago Trio Makes Good Debut Showing

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Yesterday afternoon at Kimball hall the new Chicago string trio made its debut, listing as its members two Chicago Symphony orchestra musicians, Edward Gradman, violinist, and Alice Lawrence, cellist, with Max Sinzheimer as pianist.

The trio has mastered the fundamental principles of ensemble playing. Its members play together and with unanimity of opinion concerning interpretative details. The individual players, while rarely brilliant, perform adequately and with assurance. The group needs to develop greater freedom of style, a more cohesive and attractive tone quality, and the string players would do well to watch closely the P's and Q's of intonation.

Schubert's great B-flat trio opened the program, but it was possible to hear only the finale, which received a fluent and unforced performance. Emil Eck, Chicago Symphony flutist, joined the trio in a sonata in G minor by Bach, the original figured bass of which had been reconstructed by Mr. Sinzheimer to provide piano and cello parts. Both the piece and the playing leaned toward dryness, tho the second adagio, one of those flowers in the Bach garden, inspired the participants to a warm realization of its loveliness.

For a concluding number the trio revived one of the great Beethoven variations, in which a silly little tune called "I Am the Tailor of Kakudu," from an early 19th century opera, "The Sisters of Prague," receives the full impact of Beethoven's colossal mastery of thematic variation, ranging from the depths of the composer's last manner to his most uninhibited joviality. The interpretation was intelligent and in good Beethoven style.

Father William J. Finn, making his first public appearance here in many years, was warmly greeted at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon by a large audience which heard a program of religious music by the Sisters' choir of Chicago, assisted by 30 musicians of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Father Finn's theories of choral art were demonstrated by the gentle, persuasive singing of the sisters in music that ranged from Gregorian chant, thru the medieval polyphonic school to such more modern composers as Franck and Brahms.

—o—

Scarcely half the usual capacity audience attended the Saturday afternoon "Pop" concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the first part of which was broadcast under Désiré Defauw's direction. A young and pretty pianist, Louise Meiszner, played the Variations on a Nursery Tune, by her fellow Hungarian, Ernst von Dohnanyi. Miss Meiczner's supple wrists and flying fingers made light and graceful work of the piece's technical problems, but neither she nor Mr. Defauw were particularly interested in the humorous aspects which give the work a reason for being.

ON THE AISLE

By Claudia Cassidy

Pinza and Piatigorsky Recitals and Rimini's Cimarosa Spell Pleasure In Music.

No man who sings Mozart as Ezio Pinza does was cheated when the fairy godmothers were handing out intelligence and style, but those of us who had thought of him chefly as an opera singer had to revise that opinion yesterday when at the opera house, to end the History and Enjoyment of Music series, he sang a magnificent recital. A true basso cantante, Mr. Pinza has a voice so voluminous in texture, so superbly arched in projection, so luminous to the limits of an exceptional range that even if that voice were all he had, we would listen for the sheer pleasure of sound. Add intelligence, style, and acting ability, and the result is a singer whose audience didn't want to go home.

With an Italian voice like that there is just one place to begin a recital, and that is where Pinza started, with the great Handel arias from "Rinaldo" and "Berenice." After that, he could go anywhere. He sang Da Gagliano's lullaby to Cupid so that it melted in the ear. He had the sardonic wit for folk songs, the lyricism for Tosti's Serenade, the authority to restore full stature to the aria from Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra."

There was a group, too, in the purest French style, ending with full characterization of "Au pays," and encored with the famous "Hunting Horn." There was an English group of songs Pinza wanted to sing. High among them were Griffes' "The Lament of Ian the Proud," a kind of Russian "King Lear" in the vernacular, Carpenter's poignant love song, "To One Unknown," and the spiritual, "Thundering, Wondering," for which Pinza actually had the Negro idiom.

The only Mozart was the Catalog aria from "Don Giovanni," in which the most celebrated Don of the day sang Leporello for a lark. Here, as thruout the concert, Gibner King's accompaniment had an exceptional sense of drama.

—o—

It isn't fair to compare a man to a memory, but surely if Gregor Piatigorsky has a rival it is the memory of Pablo Casals, who may yet return to be a comparable fact. Mr. Piatigorsky's Orchestra hall recital Saturday night was a pleasure from the moment he strode out until he finished his Paganini variations and added encores. The Paganini was a vivid showpiece from the ubiquitous 24th caprice, and the other novelty was Hindemith's gravely witty variations on "A frog went a-courting." More accustomed fare included the Mozart Sonatina in A, with Ralph Berkowitz's good piano fluttering in the minuet, Brahm's Sonata in E minor, Schumann's lyrical "Fantasiestucke," and a group of shorter works, including a Debussy prelude muted to exquisite fragility.

The chief charms of Cimarosa's "Il Matrimonio Segreto" as Opera Theater revived it at the Eighth Street theater last night were the return to the stage of Giacomo Rimini, long an operatic favorite, and the skill with which his direction had spun the voices of his young singers into expert ensemble.

The 18th century opera buffa retained its Italian song, but relied on English adaptation and dialogue by Giovanni Cardelli to keep the audience informed about stage intrigue—a state of affairs which genuinely upset one customer when Marisha Data [still looking like a Hogarthian Mrs. Baccaloni, but inclined to force a natural comic style] announced in English that she was about to explain the facts of life, then proceeded to do so, in Italian. Altho it was Mr. Rimini's evening—how could it be otherwise with the man chosen by Toscanini for Falstaff?—the others were adequate, provided you jumped the gap from the skilled professional to the novice.

Dorothea Ullmann was a piquant heroine with a tiny voice, Shirley Sorrelle played the unwanted sister like a caricature of Raisa, Angelo Raffaeli suggested a possible comedy flair to go with his agreeable light tenor, and George Tozzi was a bass worth watching. William Fantozzi conducted as if he really cared how it sounded.

Duke Ellington and Band Swing It at Opera House

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

When you speak of jazz, you must, if you speak knowingly, get around soon to Duke Ellington. The reason was beautifully demonstrated last night in the Duke's concert at the Opera House. Jazz is a long way from having won its place in the music world, but it is much closer to that position because of the work of men like Ellington, for he has made contributions as a composer and as an interpreter of what is meaningful and important in jazz.

One of the most controversial of modern compositions is Ellington's "Black, Brown, and Beige," excerpts from which he played last night. One of these was "Work Song," an almost dirgelike interpretation of the Negro's first role in America. From its moments of elations stems the second movement, "The Blues," sung effectively by Marie. Then come the dance sequences, and finally the exultant spirituals. The selections were played with that impeccable unity and cohesion which marks all of the Duke's jazz. Brasses blend smoothly into reed interpolations. Percussions stab impetuously.

Of the individual numbers, "Creole Love Call," highlighted by a splendid clarinet trio and Ray Nance's trumpet; Albert Hibbler's singing of "Strange Feeling," and a two part medley featuring Joya Sherrill in "I Didn't Know About You" and "All of a Sudden My Heart Sings," were definitely of concert caliber.

Palm Sunday Throngs Open Holy Week

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Despite the showers that fell thruout Chicago yesterday as hundreds of thousands prepared to attend late Palm Sunday services, pastors reported extraordinarily large attendances. The day opened the most solemn week of Christianity's liturgical year. The atmosphere was regal as befitted the celebration of the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem, but behind the rites was the sense of the impending sacrifice of Good Friday.

Palms were blessed and distributed in Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches. New members were received by hundreds in Protestant churches. Classes of children were assembled before Lutheran altars for confirmation.

—o—

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch blessed the palms at the noon mass in Holy Name cathedral over which he presided. No special Holy week services are scheduled in Catholic churches today or tomorrow, but on Wednesday night Tenebrae will be sung in many churches. The archbishop will preside over the solemn beauty of Tenebrae Wednesday night in Holy Name. The service will be repeated on Holy Thursday and Good Friday nights.

The week's program developed by the Church Federation of Greater Chicago at Chicago temple, Washington and Clark sts., departs from the pattern of former years. This year, the Rev. Dr. Hampton Adams, of St. Louis, Mo., will preach each noon, with local pastors presiding over the services.

Dr. Adams' subject today will be "Good News," with the Rev. John E. Simpson of Oak Park First United Presbyterian church conducting the service. Tomorrow the subject will be "Sympathy." The Rev. Dr. F. W. Otterbein of North Austin Lutheran church, vice president of the federation, will preside.

The Episcopal Church club of Chicago, sponsor of the loop's pioneer noon-day lenten services in Kimball hall, has announced the Rev. Dr. G. Carlton Story, rector of the Church of the Mediator, Morgan Park, as the preacher this noon. Tomorrow, the Rev. H. Neville Tinker of St. Paul's church, will deliver the address.

The Rev. Dr. Robert T. Taylor, general secretary of the American Bible society, will be the Holy week preacher each noon thru Thursday in the Fourth Presbyterian church. Noonday services will be held thruout the week in the Evangelical Lutheran church of St. Luke, Belmont and Greenview avs., where the Rev. A. R. Kretzmann yesterday confirmed a class of 87 members.

Film of French Underground Misses Mark

"TILL WE MEET AGAIN."

By Mae Tinée.

Undoubtedly the cleverness and heroism of many members of the French underground may some day provide material for superb motion pictures, but "Till We Meet Again" is definitely not one of them.

As the film opens, the quiet of a French convent garden is broken by the harshness of German voices, tramping boots, and the crack of rifle fire. It soon develops that the doughty old mother superior, who is living thru her third war with the Boche, is doing her share to defeat the hated enemy by aiding the underground.

Lucile Watson is sage and forceful in her role, and it is too bad that she is killed so early in the story for with her goes much of the vigor and zest in the film.

Ray Milland, as a philosophical and loquacious American flyer, accompanied by a novice who poses as his wife because her own inadequacy resulted in the arrest of the member of the underground slated for the role, starts the perilous journey toward the coast and freedom. The Gestapo is hot on their heels, but there is plenty of time for a great deal of conversation between the two, including little discourses on marriage by Mr. Milland. I'm afraid some of them are going to strike audiences as funny, altho that is not the intention.

Barbara Britton is extremely pretty and does her best with a difficult role, and a man with the rather peculiar name of Konstantin Shayne does an excellent job as a courteously cruel German major.

Thruout the film, what was meant to be moving proves to be mawkish, and the ending is sheer melodrama.

it was necessary to change trains twice. I could not have felt more conspicuous than when being led around the Metro station by two women. They bought our tickets and presented them to the ticket collectors. I suggested to the more authoritative woman that Herk and I should at least pretend to look less helpless. We rode to the Porte de Vincennes, the last station on the line.

From here we had to take a bus. As the bus schedule had been greatly reduced, we had to queue for a quarter of an hour before the old dilapidated already crowded bus pulled up to our stop. At first it appeared that we would not be able to climb aboard, for we stood well toward the end of the queue, but by pushing and shouting as much as possible we managed to get standing room on the bus. I had also to stand in the crowded Metro, and that together with the other extensive walking and standing I did in the earlier part of the afternoon, had made my ankle agonizingly painful. The prospect of standing on the bus very much lowered my already sunken spirits.

I must have looked very glum and the authoritative woman in a whisper told me we were going to stay at a very pleasant home.

The other woman went only a short distance, and when she left, our remaining guide started talking to a short, fat man laden with new pots and pans. When we reached our stop, he stepped off the bus with us and led all of us a few hundred yards to his house. The front of it was a hardware store which we passed thru on the way to a back room. That served as a parlor and dining room. As we entered a very fat woman affably greeted us, saying that we must come in for a cup of tea.

There were three young men seated around the table.

I threw myself down in a chair and rubbed my ankle trying to relieve my misery, and paid little attention to the conversation. When we finished our tea a man entered the room. He was very tall and heavily built. He had lost one of his hands in the last war and on the stump he wore a heavy steel hook. This man's name was M. Pelerin. M. Pelerin had a winning smile that seldom left his face. He loved to joke and altho he tried to make his humor subtle, the twinkle of his merry and mischievous eyes gave him away to those who knew him.

He told the woman who had brought us, whom we learned was named Mme. Andre that he was ready to go, so Herk and I followed them back thru the store to his car. M. Pelerin's car was a small one and Herk and I had much difficulty in squeezing into the back seat. We drove about 10 blocks thru a very dreary suburb and came to a halt before a small typically suburban bungalow.

Both Mme. Andre and M. Pelerin went in to see if the people were ready to receive us. In a minute they returned. The people were ready, so we climbed out of the car and entered the house. This was Sept. 30.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 25.—Harry Cohn says David Selznick will not release his pictures thru Columbia, but Fred MacMurray's and Leslie Fenton's "Pardon My Past" will go thru Columbia. He not only likes the boys but their story. I do think Harry's missing a bet, tho, by not giving Nina Foch a star part. That girl's good. Her romantic interest in John Dahl is their mutual love for music. . . . "The Road to Utopia" with Bob Hope and Bing Crosby will get its first unveiling in the Aleutians. Bing's trying to cut in his program just before the picture goes on. . . . Charles Koerner is putting on a one man campaign to get Danny Kaye for "Sleepy Hollow." Charlie says it's one of the finest stories he's ever had, and a natural for Kaye. . . . Carmen Miranda and sister Aurora are signed for an appearance at Hollywood bowl with Xavier Cugat and his band behind them. . . . Georgia Gibbs was telling about the soldier awarded the D. S. C. She asked what his wife thought about it. "Oh, she doesn't know yet," replied the soldier. "You see, it's not my turn to write!"

It Must Be Important.

On the day "Picture of Dorian Gray" opened in New York, one of the Albright twins received word from Washington, D. C., that he had been awarded the W. A. Clark prize of $1,500 and the Corcoran silver medal for one of his pictures in the nineteenth biennial exhibition at the Corcoran gallery. "And," wrote Ivan [the other twin] "this reminded me of an incident which happened when we were painting Dorian at Metro last year. I received the top award at National Academy in New York, with the Altman prize of $500. Metro publicity boys heard about that and said, 'Say, fellows, can't we release that award as $5,000 instead of $500?'" . . . Michael Todd returns from San Francisco today to pick up some local talent for his overseas company of "Central Park." He's not going to send out a road company. He's afraid the profits might put him in hock to Uncle Sam for years to come. So the boys overseas get it instead.

Better Late than Never.

When Lillian Gish is seen in "Susie Slagle" she won't be able to do all the parts offered her. Lillian has quality. Don't forget John Houseman, of the theater, brought Lillian back to the screen. . . . Orson Welles had a letter from Marlene Dietrich which she wrote by flashlight somewhere in Germany, before crawling into her sleeping bag. She thanked him for teaching her the telepathy act she's doing over there. Remember when Rita Hayworth wasn't allowed to continue in Welles' tent show, and Marlene pinch-hit for her? Well, that's the act she's doing overseas.

Credit for All.

The crew on "Bells of St. Mary's" rose early the morning after the Academy show, stretched a red carpet from the set to the studio entrance, and arranged a rope beside it festooned with flowers from their gardens. Then the whole crew lined up on the other side of the rope and cheered Ingrid Bergman, Bing Crosby, and Leo McCarey as they came to work. . . . Civilians have been asked not to travel. Trains are needed for the soldiers, wives and babies. San Francisco, even before the war, was one of our most crowded cities. Since the war started, even a fly hasn't been able to find a place for its hind legs. Yet between four and five thousand people are expected there for the world security conference, which means a trip across the ocean, then completely across America, for delegates, wives, helpers, press, etc. The people up there who have had a bed at the present time will be lucky if they can find a park bench. . . . Harold Ramond, of the Lupe Velez tragedy, is now cooing with a pretty blonde. Name unknown. . . . Tony Romero tells about the G. I. who was wearing a Nazi helmet. Said he, "I had to shoot 60 Germans to get it." "Why?" asked his buddy. "Well, I had to get one that fits, didn't I?"

Weddings

The marriage of Miss Leila Ann Southard, daughter of Mrs. A. E. Southard of Washington, D. C., and of Mr. Southard of Los Angeles, Cal., to Lt. [j. g.] John A. Ronning of the naval reserve medical corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Magnus I. Ronning of Bernard av., took place on March 14 in Elim chapel of the school of nursing of the Lutheran Deaconess hospital. Dr. Ronning and his bride will live in Chicago while she completes her course as a senior cadet nurse at the hospital and while he completes his assignment on the faculty of the Northwestern university school of dentistry.

Miss Martha Rochefort Bailey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry McKee Bailey of Charleston, S. C., and Kenneth James Quinn of the coast guard, son of Capt. and Mrs. Lee A. Quinn of Hyde Park blvd., were married on March 15 in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church in Charleston, with a reception following in the bride's home. After a wedding trip to Florida, the bride will return to Charleston and Mr. Quinn to his post in Washington Island, Wis.

On March 18 in the Ashland Church of Christ, Miss Mary Lou Pulliam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Luther Pulliam of S. Trumbull av., and 1st Lt. Paul Fisher Jr. of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fisher of New York, were married. The bride, a graduate of the Columbia College of Pharmacy, is stationed with the SPARS in New York. Lt. Fisher, who attended Cornell university, recently returned from the European theater of war.

Announcement is made of the marriage on Feb. 17 of Miss Shirley Ellen Mongite, daughter of Mrs. Nathan Mongite of Gunnison st. and the late Mr. Mongite, to Ralph Oxhandler of the navy, of New York. Mr. Oxhandler is stationed at Navy pier.

Articles Made by Blind Go on Sale April 4

Countless household articles, novelties, and items of wearing apparel, all of them fashioned by persons unable to see their own artistry, will go on sale on Wednesday, April 4, on the ninth floor of Mandel Brothers. The bazar, which will continue thru Saturday, April 7, is sponsored by the Blind Service association to assist blind persons of Chicago in becoming self supporting. All merchandise has been made by sightless persons during the year, and all proceeds will be turned over to the blind whose work is sold.

Colorful aprons, potholders, handkerchiefs, leather goods, baskets, trays, brooms, and brushes are among the items to be offered for sale. Mrs. Milton Zukermann is bazar chairman, and her co-chairmen are Mrs. E. J. Hardesty and Mrs. Maurice Roth. Mrs. Gottfried D. Bernstein is founder-president of the sponsoring association.

Eggs will occupy a more prominent spot than ever in Easter menus this year, even tho they are not plentiful. Not only will they appear in traditional, decorated style for the children, but also as an important part of the day's meals. In salads and desserts, eggs will help the homemaker solve the problem of what to serve with whatever main course, meat or poultry, proves available at the last hour.

To make a lily salad, first flatten both ends of hard cooked eggs while still hot. Then cut each egg into halves by cutting around the middle in deep points to form petals. Remove the yolks, mash with mayonnaise and seasonings, and fill whites. Serve in lettuce cups or on shredded lettuce. Another attractive egg salad is this.

Stuffed Eggs in Gelatin Molds.
[Serves four.]

1½ tablespoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
4 hard-cooked eggs
1 tablespoon chopped stuffed olives
½ teaspoon onion juice
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
2½ cups chicken stock or bouillon

Soften gelatin in cold water. Cut eggs in lengthwise halves, remove yolks, and mash together with olives, onion juice, and mayonnaise. Refill whites with mixture, press halves together, and place each egg in individual round mold. Heat stock to boiling, season to taste, and add softened gelatin. Cool, and pour over eggs. Chill until firm. Serve in lettuce leaves, cupped to resemble nests.

Eggs are so much a part of the Easter tradition, that even imitation ones find their way to the table. A salad that will appeal to children is made by placing a canned pear half on each lettuce leaf, forming the body of a bunny. Use a red maraschino cherry at the wider end for the cottontail, tiny sticks of carrot for the ears sticking up at the other end. Color cream cheese with food coloring in several colors, roll into small egg shapes and place 3 or 4 eggs around each little rabbit!

If your Easter meat isn't all you wished for, complete the dinner with this sugar saving dessert, which uses eggs in hidden form.

Orange Custard.
[Serves six.]

3 eggs, separated
2 cups water
1 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon cornstarch
6 tablespoons sugar

Peel and slice oranges and arrange in baking dish. Put egg yolks, slightly beaten, water and all except 1 tablespoon of condensed milk in double boiler. Blend cornstarch with remaining tablespoon of milk and add. Cook over hot water until thickened. Pour over orange slices. Cool slightly. Make a meringue of egg whites and sugar and arrange on custard. Place in moderate oven until lightly browned. Chill before serving. Custard may be made with 2 whole eggs and meringue omitted, if desired.

If you're planning a two-crust pie for dessert, why not try your hand at cutting the top crust in the form of a chicken or bunny? Or make cream puffs, and put some of the batter thru a pastry tube [large plain tip] onto greased baking sheet, to form little heads. Bake large puffs at 450 degrees until double in size, then reduce temperature to 300 degrees and bake about 20 minutes longer. Bake smaller pieces half that time. Cut off top of puff and fill with vanilla ice cream. Cut top in half and press into filling on each side to form wings. Insert heads into filling—and you have baby chicks for dessert!

SAVE WASTE FATS FOR POINTS AND PENNIES!

Pineapple Doily

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted pineapple doilies still hold a favorite place in needlework circles. This 10 inch circular doily is fun to create, since it is made in a slightly different fashion from the usual 'round and 'round ones. Small glass doilies may be made with a No. 30 thread and No. 12 hook, while the original is crocheted with ivory mercerized crochet cotton.

For instructions in crocheting the pineapple doily, No. 1164, send 15 CENTS in coin [wrap coin securely] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Cruel Woman Fosters Boy's Fear of Dark

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Here is a letter that should be read by those who lack kindness and imagination:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I have a son who is 3½ years old. He is tall, strong, and intelligent for his age. However, he is afraid of the dark. It seems that some time ago, I left him to be taken care of during the evening by a woman friend of mine. This woman, in order to keep him in hand, frightened him by telling him that if he did not behave himself properly he would be put into a dark room where 'the mouse would get him.' As a result, he now refuses under any circumstances to go into a dark room unless either I or his father go along with him.

"I know that children eventually grow out of such fears. However, I would like for him to react normally now in the dark because I am afraid that such foolish fears may create unforgettable bad memories. I would appreciate any help you could give me in this matter."

What a pity that any grown woman should be so ill-advised, in fact, mentally cruel, as to arouse in a little boy at this tender age a fear of darkness, and of those tiny animals that ordinarily appeal to all children.

This mother is decidedly wise in not waiting for her little boy to outgrow this fear of darkness, especially as, more often than we adults realize, fears which seem to be "outgrown" simply go underground. The wholesome approach is to dissipate the fear at the time.

Several brief suggestions follow. They are: Leave a low light burning all night for the present, and the child's bedroom door ajar; work on the "mouse threat," by getting little picture books about mice, by buying a toy one, and by visiting them in pet shops. Later the idea of the "friendly dark" can be developed.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Washington Bulletin.

It rains and rains, your stockings slopping—

Your hair's a mess, you still are whining—

Glance up and note the season's billing! CULLIE.

Court of Office Relations.

One of my employers admired a handkerchief of one of our out of town buyers. This man, upon arrival home, sent the exact duplicate to my boss. I wrote the man a thank you letter and in closing said, "Again I would like to thank you and hope to favor you in some way soon." My boss says the phrase "and hope to favor you" is wrong and makes no sense. Will you please tell us who is right and whether the phrase can be used?

S. G.

The White Collar editor's adviser on business letter writing comments: "Not wrong, but one of those perfunctory sounding phrases which could be expressed better another way, or omitted. My advice would be to omit it as it implies the necessity of repayment for the gift."

Suggested Slogan.

As a suggested slogan for WCGs, how about "Be letter-perfect!"

Life is backward and make no mistake. Miss Filer is a typist. The file clerk in the same office is Miss Keys. ACME FURNACE FITTER.

Something to Remember.

It's so easy, when you clip around on two healthy, active feet, to forget that there are white collar girls who never leave their crutches, or their beds—who type on a table beside a chair or over a bed and do neat, accurate work.

There's a former school teacher in Chicago right now. As a result of paralysis she no longer teaches school, but is busy typing a book of poetry to be published shortly. There's a girl with a nerve paralysis, working steadily on a manuscript of a book for publication. . . . She went voluntarily into a hospital because her care, she felt, was too much on a household from which the man had gone to war. . . . There are any number of girls who do clerical work, cataloging and addressing, home-bound but not idle.

One problem of the Illinois Association for the Crippled is to help these business girls use the right amount of energy each day—not a flurry of overwork one day and resultant fatigue the next. It's not so different from the problem facing the rest of us, but one especially important in industrial placement of the crippled. Something to remember when you are asked to buy Easter seals to finance the association which places these plucky white collar girls.

Thru the Looking Glass

The lure of the outdoor is putting a faraway look into many a man's eye these days but few of them will be able to leave their city haunts in answer to the call of the wide open spaces. However, if you're going to buy your favorite fella an Easter present, consider some grooming preparations which are done up in containers decorated in outdoor motifs. He will like the quality of their contents and feast his eyes on the full color reproductions of sports paintings of wildlife bedecking the bottles.

The after shaving lotion and cologne in this line have special appeal for men in a refreshing kind of fragrance identified with woods and roaring mountain streams. Bracing and invigorating in effect, they'll pep him up and send him off to work in the morning satisfied with the world, content to go about his routine tasks. The after shaving lotion is soothing and comforting to his face and he won't feel inclined to sneer at the notion of using the cologne. In no time at all he'll discover that it is perfect for a rubdown after a shower and he'll like the cool, clean feeling it imparts to his skin.

There's an excellent shaving soap included among these preparations which has won a large following for itself. It lathers beautifully and makes for the kind of quick, smooth shave men enjoy. It too is scented in an outdoors fragrance, and while the armchair sportsman clears the stubble from his face he'll dream of the "big ones" he's going to hook on his line when he finally finds time for fishing.

4th Annual Series of Nature Walks to Begin on April 7

The Illinois Audubon society will sponsor its fourth annual series of nature walks in Thatcher woods near River Forest beginning Saturday morning, April 7, and continuing each Saturday thru April and May. All those interested in nature study are invited to join the group, which will gather at 9:30 a. m. at the Trailside museum, Chicago and Thatcher avs., River Forest, for a 30 minute talk preceding each field trip, which will end at 11:30 a. m. Boy Scout troops and others planning to attend in a group should notify Mrs. Theron Wasson, 600 Thatcher av., River Forest, under whose direction the walks are to be conducted.

Sally Requests Saxophone for a 14 Year Old

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

We hope from among our generous readers there is one who will respond to the plea of Mr. M., a man vitally interested in the care and guidance of boys in one of the very poor neighborhoods of our city. His letter, urging that one in particular be given the opportunity he seeks, is as follows:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a group worker in a near west side social agency and am writing to you because I think that you may be able to help one of our boys.

"Jimmie is a 14 year old who is learning to play the saxophone and is working very hard at it. He is exceedingly ambitious and hopes some day to play in an orchestra, but is greatly handicapped by the lack of his own instrument.

"You have to know our district to appreciate what a fine thing he is doing. Most of our boys become so involved in the courts that there is very little that can be done to interest them in working toward a career. When a boy is ambitious a little friendly help can make a great difference in his life."

Mr. M. will call anywhere in the city.

Goren on Bridge

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ 7 5 3 2 ♥ J 7 ♦ A Q J 9 ♣ K Q 10
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. If partner has a sound double you have enough to promise a game. If his double is merely of the light protective kind, he will not proceed and you should be able to fulfill your contract. A mere response of two diamonds, especially in view of your previous pass, is too apt to leave partner cold. There is grave danger that he will give up the ghost even with a sound double.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠ A K 9 7 5 ♥ 4 ♦ K 6 5 ♣ J 5 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You have done your full duty by this hand and it is plain to be seen that there could not possibly be a game in the combined holding. This is just about as good a place to park as any.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠ K J 3 ♥ A 7 4 ♦ 6 2 ♣ A J 10 9 5
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 club
Pass	1 spade	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Remember that partner failed to open the bidding so that chances for game are extremely remote. You have a compact game than your opening, but not sufficient to justify raising and offering partner an inducement to go on. If the opponents compete you may offer a raise later in an effort to buy the hand cheaply.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠ 6 3 2 ♥ A 10 7 6 5 3 ♦ Q 5 ♣ 7 4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. A free bid of two hearts would not only mislead partner as to the potentialities of your hand, but would actually be attended with danger to your financial condition. Remember that such a bid demands one more bid from partner and if that bid happens to be three clubs, not a remote contingency, you will not have added to your comfort. All free bids should show good hands, not long suits.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠ A J 4 ♥ 2 ♦ J 8 5 3 ♣ A Q J 7 5
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 spades	Pass	2 no trump	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three clubs. You don't particularly care for no trump and should not insist upon spades with only three trumps. The rebid of the clubs leaves numerous options open to partner. He may pass, he may go on with the no trump if he chooses to do so in the face of your warning, or he may return to spades, you have told your complete story. The rest is up to him.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠ K 10 6 4 ♥ 5 ♦ A K J 6 3 ♣ A K 2
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three clubs. The second choice is four spades, which while it denotes a very powerful hand, nevertheless is not sufficiently enthusiastic for this holding. The inexcusable bid is three spades. Remember your partner did not open the bidding and a jump in the same suit is not forcing on him. On hands of this type it is better to make the slam try early. The jump shift does it. Spades will be vigorously supported the next round.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠ Q 4 ♥ A J 3 ♦ A J 9 6 ♣ K 10 7 4
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Two no trump. You have more than a minimum. The queen of spades has become promoted by reason of partner's bid in that suit. You have a plus value for the possession of seven honor cards and another plus value for possession of a high card in every suit. Since partner was unwilling to give up at once no trump it may be presumed that he is making a mild effort to go places and he should be allowed one more chance.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠ A 10 5 2 ♥ K 10 4 ♦ 6 ♣ A Q 6 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 spade	Pass	2 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You have about described the strength of your hand and game is improbable. It would not be good strategy to try two no trump just to show you have a heart stopper. The diamond response has not improved your hand. Had partner responded with one heart you would have had reason to adopt a bullish attitude.

PASSEAU REPORTS; MAY PITCH CUB OPENER

COSTNER FACES TEST TONIGHT IN LAMOTTA BOUT

Ten Rounder Heads Stadium Card.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Costner, who scored 22 knockouts in 23 starts prior to being floored for the count by Ray [Sugar] Robinson in the Stadium last month, has been promised a chance against Freddy [Red] Cochrane, 147 pound champion, in the west side arena May 11 if he beats Lamotta.

It's a Tough Job.

That would seem to be a herculean task. The record shows the 22 year old Jack has registered 58 victories in 68 appearances. He fought a draw and lost nine decisions but never has been knocked out. Three of his defeats were suffered at the hands of Robinson. However, Lamotta holds the distinction of being the only boxer to conquer Ray, upsetting the latter in 10 rounds in Detroit in the second of four meetings.

In addition, Lamotta will have a weight advantage of approximately 11 pounds. Jack expects to weigh in at the Illinois Athletic commission offices this afternoon at 160. This is an edge he may need to withstand the blasts Costner is certain to unleash tonight.

Promoters Are Doing O. K.

The Costner-Lamotta encounter will head the third Stadium show presented under the auspices of Promoters Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun. Besides the Robinson-Costner event, which drew a capacity crowd of 20,193 and gross receipts of $94,120, they promoted a bout between Costner and Sheik Rangel, which attracted 7,294 and a $26,535 gate. George knocked out Rangel in the first round to register his 22d knockout and 23d straight victory.

It is estimated that 10,000 will pay $40,000 this evening. A section of seats has been set aside for coaches and members of the Chicago Golden Gloves team which will meet New York's best in the intercity bouts in the Stadium Wednesday, April 4.

Brother Joe Meets Jackson.

Joey Lamotta, Jack's welterweight brother, will be seeking his ninth consecutive triumph at the expense of Al Jackson in a six round preliminary.

An eight round semi-windup will bring together Patsy Spataro, New York lightweight, and Johnny Bratton, 1944 Chicagoland Golden Gloves 135 pound finalist. Spataro will be making his Chicago debut. Bratton defeated Jimmy Anest of New York in a preliminary bout on the Stadium's Feb. 14 card. It was his 10th victory in 12 professional fights.

Additional eight round events will pit O'Neil Bell, Detroit welterweight, against Jimmy Sherrer, Milwaukee, and Bill Parsons, Danville, Ill., 147 pounder, against Frankie Abrams, also of Detroit.

GEORGE HOPES ONLY ONE'S IN RING TONIGHT

THIS IS THE DAY GOLDEN GLOVERS TURN ON POWER

[News of New York Golden Gloves on next page.]

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Capt. John Behr, head coach of the 1945 Chicago Intercity Golden Gloves squad, wouldn't promise. Neither would his colleagues, Issy Klinie, Fred Caserio, Pop Howard, Eddie Nichols, and Dick Fitzpatrick. But there was a strong hunch yesterday among the impatient youngsters training for the big battle with New York in the Chicago Stadium on April 4 that today was the day, the day on which they would be allowed to go two full rounds of boxing. That would be doubling the single three minute diet on which they have been operating since Friday.

Citizens who witnessed yesterday's fifth day of preparation for the duel with what is regarded as the strongest New York ensemble in the 18 year record of Intercity strife went away convinced that if determination to win is sufficient, this Chicago team is ready.

Condition Comes First.

The newcomers to this Golden Gloves crew checked in at the Illinois Athletic club gymnasium last Wednesday, prepared to don gloves and whale the daylights out of each other to prove their right to one of the 16 fighting places a week from Wednesday. They soon were disillusioned by the coaches, who told them that top flight physical condition was the principal ingredient of Golden Gloves success.

The coaching staff made it plain that the ability to fire a left hook or to take one was highly admirable, but a talent to be reserved for the actual bouts against New York's best fighters. The young men and boys who constitute this 1945 team were warned, first of all, that the Intercity bouts, granting that they go the full route, call for nine minutes of punishing action. Those three three-minute rounds will call for boxing finesse, for punching power, but they also demand bodies sound in wind and limb.

The Boys Are Willing.

The coaches, rich in Golden Gloves experience which has proved itself in Intercity, International, and Olympic bouts, have been rewarded by the willingness of the present team. After the eager ones, irked by the omission of early boxing sessions, had buckled down to what seemed to be tedious gymnasium work, they realized the need for a full conditioning program. The rope skipping, the calisthenics, and shadow boxing have paid off, particularly among those boxers who had accumulated excess pounds.

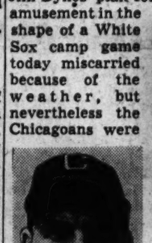
Rain Strikes Out Camp Game, So White Sox Shag Fly Balls

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Terre Haute, Ind., March 25.—Jim Dykes' plan for putting on local amusement in the shape of a White Sox camp game today miscarried because of the weather, but nevertheless the Chicagoans were not forced to neglect their routine work. Despite the sogginess in the outfield portion of their training premises the signed athletes, including additions made by train delivery last night, put in two hours of chasing fly balls as manipulated beyond reach by Coach Mule Haas, the eagle eyed Dykes meanwhile bellowing orders from a sheltered lookout.



Mike Tresh.

Guy Curtright.

Tresh, Curtright in Action.

Because of a sudden urge for squad games which in peace time he spurned, knowing in advance just who was who in his ivory collection—the manager is going to put on today's washout tomorrow. His real reason for this is quite simple. He needs a lot of fellows to round out a presentable ball team and he doesn't know much about some of his students, but in actual competition they might show something worthy of his judgment.

The newcomers in the actual practice today were Mike Tresh, the first string catcher, and Guy Curtright, the latter one of four who will be in the competition for the three fly chasing jobs.

With Oris Hockett, the ex-Indian, definitely assigned to center field and Wally Moses to right until he gets a possible call on his 1-A draft status, Curtright will be a candidate for the regular assignment in left, the rival for this sort of baseball work being Johnny Dickshot.

Tresh Is Reclassified 1-A.

Tresh revealed that he didn't know how long he would be around, at least as a baseball employe. He held a deferment because of employment in the Ford Rouge plant at Detroit but went into 1-A when he quit. He was similarly classified last year and expected to be called into the army immediately after the season ended, but after waiting two months for a call that never came he went to work.

Dykes' squad went to 28 members with the arrival today, too late for the workout, of Ogden Wise, who, after being rejected for service, went to work in a California plane factory. He's a 20 year old, right handed semi-pro pitcher with no known experience in organized ball. That makes 11 pitchers on hand, with five missing. Unfortunately, three of the five haven't signed, and they are the experienced Bill Dietrich, Orval Grove, and Johnny Humphries. Joe Haynes has signed and is trying to get here without walking. The other absentee is Earl Caldwell, on trial from the Brewers, who is training at McAllen, Tex. He'll report about April 1.

De Paul and Bowling Green Play Tonight

New York, March 25 (AP).—De Paul university of Chicago, with a season record of 22 games won and two lost, and Bowling Green of Ohio [24-2] will meet tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden in the final of the New York invitation basketball tournament.

Another standing room only crowd of more than 18,000 is expected to witness the contest, which opens the final week of the 1945 collegiate season.

On Tuesday, New York university [15-7] and the Oklahoma Aggies [25-4] will meet in the Garden for the National N. C. A. A. title and on Thursday the winners of the two tourneys are scheduled to battle it out for the mythical national title won last year by Utah.

Sparked by big George Mikan, who scored 53 points against Rhode Island State last Wednesday, the De Paul Blue Demons are favorites to gain the invitational meet title that eluded them a year ago when St. John's upset them in the final. This year, Bowling Green eliminated St. John's in the semi-finals.

The chances of the Ohioans received a boost yesterday when it was learned that Mikan was unable to practice because of a leg injury.

Fenwick Wins Catholic Prep Swim Title; Loyola Second

Fenwick High school's Friars yesterday won their 13th Catholic league swimming title in 14 attempts, scoring 49 points to beat Loyola in the finals of the Catholic league meet in Loyola pool.

Fenwick won four events and Loyola captured three first places, holding a monopoly on top honors, but Fenwick won both relay events and placed second in three individual events. The Friars amassed their winning total by winning five third places and four fourths. The Loyola team, which scored 33 points, placed second in four events, but failed to win a third or fourth in any event.

The De Paul entry finished third with nine points. Mount Carmel and St. George each scored two points by placing fourth in the 200 yard relay and the 50 yard free style, respectively. Leo and St. Mel, only other schools entered, failed to place.

Fenwick has won the title every year since 1932, with the exception of 1937, when Loyola finished first.

Summaries:

NELSON'S 271 CAPTURES OPEN IN GREENSBORO

Byrd Finishes 2d; Revolta Is 3d.

Greensboro, N. C., March 25 (AP).—Byron Nelson, Toledo, O., sharpshooter, won the $7,500 Greensboro Open golf tournament today with a 72 hole total of 271. It was his second victory in five days and his sixth of the winter.

Nelson defeated Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va., Wednesday in a play-off to win top money in the Charlotte Open. Nelson turned in rounds of 68 and 66 as the winter circuit's largest throng milled about the par 71 Starmount Country club course, to beat out Sam Byrd of Detroit, defending champion, by eight strokes and Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., the early leader, who was nine strikes off the pace.

Equals Snead's Pace.

Nelson's triumph today enabled him to equal Snead in victories, each having six, with two tournaments yet to go. Snead today was far down the list with 287.

Nelson put on one of his greatest hitting exhibitions today, to clip eight strokes from par. In the last 27 holes he dropped putts of 15, 20, 12, 16, 22, 12, and 11 feet, five of them for birdies and two for eagle threes.

Byrd Rallies to Score 279.

Byrd, making a strong bid with closing rounds of 68 and 69 to keep the title he won in 1942, the last time the tournament was played, came up with 279, which was a duplicate of his card when he won the title in 1942.

Revolta, the first round leader, closed with two 71s. Back of the leaders came Jimmy Hines of Chicago, at 285, on a morning round of 66 which was low for the tournament until Nelson's stretch drive.

First Place Worth $1,333.

Snead had 287, finishing with a 70, his first subpar round after taking a 74 in the morning when he knocked in an eagle three on the 18th hole. He had had five over par thru 17 holes.

First place was worth $1,333 in war bonds to Nelson.

The crowd was estimated at between 10,000 and 12,000. The leaders:

Wings Win 1st Play-Off Tilt; Top Bruins, 3-2

Boston, Mass., March 25 (AP).—Rebounding from two straight setbacks on their home ice, the Detroit Red Wings served notice that they had much to say about the National Hockey league playoffs by beating the Boston Bruins, 3 to 2, tonight before a sellout 13,500 crowd in Boston Garden. This series now stands two games to one in the Bruins' favor.

The Red Wings took advantage of two Boston lapses late in the first period to score twice in 61 seconds.

The fourth game of the series will be played here Tuesday night and, regardless of the outcome, the teams will return to Detroit for the fifth contest on Thursday. Lineup:

THREE HURLERS SHOW SKILL IN CAMP CONTEST

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 25.—Claude Passeau, who didn't join the 1944 Cubs until after they had perpetrated their well known 13 game losing streak, arrived today and took a spirited workout before the intraclub game, a contest which was won by the B team, 2 to 1. Then Claude watched the game and became baseball conscious to the extent he became an avowed candidate to pitch the National league opener April 17.

Claude Passeau.

Claude, who probably will be the opening day selection all right, will be 34 years and 8 days old when he goes out there against the Cards in Wrigley field three weeks from Tuesday.

Wins 15 Last Season.

Passeau thus has launched his 14th season in organized baseball, a career which he started with Decatur in the Three Eye league in 1932. The rawboned Mississippian played with the Pirates in 1935, was with the Phillies in 1936, 1937, and 1938 and with May 29 in 1939, when he was traded to the Cubs.

Last season Passeau won 15 and lost 9 for the Cubs. His major league totals show 134 victories and 127 losses, tho he never was up to the .500 mark with the discouraging Phillies.

Pitchers Please Grimm.

In today's game the B team, the held to four hits, eked out a 2 to 1 victory over the A team. The winners were held to one hit in the first four innings by Henry Wyse. They scored the first run of the game in the sixth inning and the A's tied it in their end of the sixth. Then the B's came back in the seventh to score an unearned run and victory.

Manager Charles Grimm said he was pleased by the pitching of all three of his signed pitchers who appeared in the contest—Wyse, Bob Chipman, who went four innings, and George Woodend. Woodend has been the only fat man in camp, and for this reason, Grimm said, he was especially gratified over the variety of stuff the former Syracuse right hander showed.

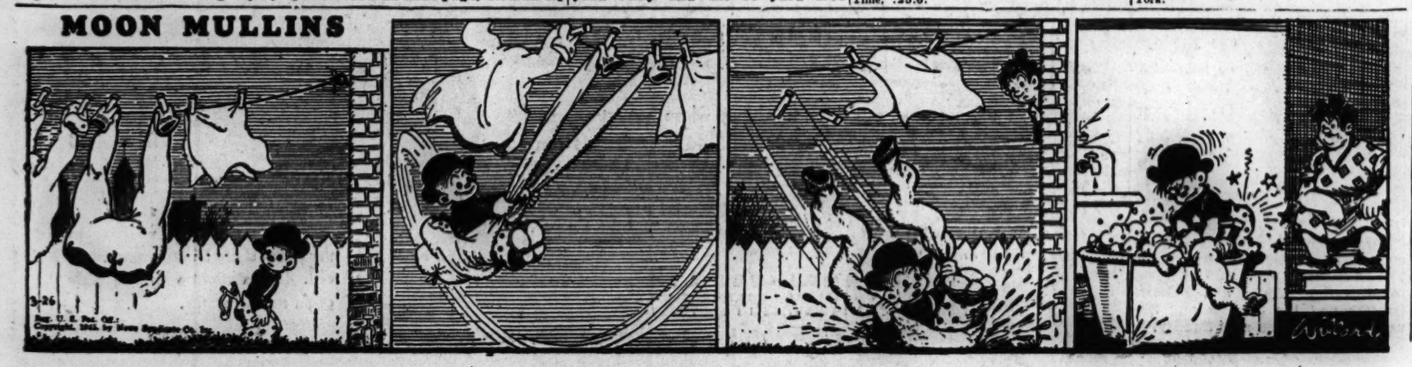
MOON MULLINS



BEAR MOUNTAIN VISITORS PRAISE EAST'S GLOVERS

Middleweight Alternate Floors Champion.

BY BILL MURTHA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 25.—A hot sun that brought several thousand visitors to this Catskill resort gave the New York Golden Gloves squad members a chance to show their stuff this afternoon. There was a counter-attraction on the adjoining field where the Brooklyn Dodgers were playing an intrasquad game, but the Glovers had no need to be ashamed of their crowd appeal.

Hundreds of the visitors paused to watch the boxers drilling for their meeting with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S western champions in the Chicago Stadium on April 4, and many of them stopped to pay their compliments as the boys finished their workouts and to wish them luck on their western hegira.

Anspach Shows Improvement.

The most impressive drill of all was that turned in by Howard Anspach, a marine, who is bidding for the alternate 160 pound spot behind his fellow leatherneck, Howard Brodt, the eastern champion. Anspach was something of an unkown quantity when he arrived in camp. He was a last minute substitute on the Charlotte, N. C., team, and his loss to Brodt in the finals was an unimpressive performance. His marine coach, Johnny Abodt, insisted, however, that Anspach would be a far different looking fighter if given apportunity to train.

Since the pickings were rather lean in the division and the eastern coaches are well aware that this is one of the Chicago team's best classes, they invited Anspach to make the trip to Bear Mountain with the other four marine nominees. Now they are congratulating themselves for this action. Anspach is a solidly built towhead with a powerful right hand and a grim earnestness about the business at hand that is very discouraging to an opponent, even in sparring drills with the 16 ounce gloves. When hit he brushes off the blow and wades right back in. He was tossed in today with Steve De Luca, rugged Orlando field soldier who had a 15 pound pull in the weights.

Modaferri Floors Champion.

At the end of three rounds, De Luca was gasping for breath and Anspach still was moving indomitebly forward, tho De Luca, no mean walloper himself, had caught him with a few booming right hands of his own.

Anspach is no certain nominee for the alternate middleweight spot, however, because Dominic Modafferi, a New York boy in the same class, apparently caught fire from the showing made by the marine. Clashing with Brodt, the champion, Modafferi floored the titleholder midway thru the first round with a right to the pit of the stomach. Brodt bounced right back up and for the next round and half, the spectators might have thought they were back in Madison Square Garden.

Both Wendell Wilson, New Yorker who may fight at either 147 or 160 and La Verne Roach, the welterweight champion, looked good in the day's drill against each other.

The team will be reenforced today by the arrival of two Texans who proved why the Lone Star state has been one of the most consistent contributors to Golden Gloves championship lists. They are Corp. Tom Attra and Gilbert Garcia. The latter fought his way thru the Fort Worth Star Telegram tourney and on to the welterweight title here. Corp. Attra was runner-up for the light heavyweight crown, the same honor which he himself had captured in the 1942 tournament. They will arrive at 10:30 o'clock this morning, giving them a couple of hours in which to renew acquaintances with other members of the team before going into their first workout at 2:30 p. m.

Adolfo Arrives.

Corp. Adolfo Quijano, the Los Angeles Times 175 pounder who displayed a terrific right hand in winning his division's championship, arrived yesterday. Col. R. T. Middleton, the corporal's commanding officer at the Muroc, Cal., air base, allows Quijano will be fit and ready for his anticipated Intercity battle with New York's talented Roland La Starza. Another arrival was Ray Spurlock, veteran Kansas City middleweight.

AN EX-SOLDIER AIDS BRAVES IN 2 TO 1 TRIUMPH

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—Jimmy Wallace, army dischargee and southpaw pitcher, today scored the winning run in the ninth inning as the Boston Braves defeated the Washington Senators, 2 to 1.

More than 5,000 attended the Red Cross benefit game which opened the exhibition season here on an ideal baseball day.

DODGERS WIN, 10-8.

Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 25 (AP). — The Brooklyn Dodgers spotted their Montreal International league farmhands a 5 run lead in the first inning of their exhibition game today, then came from behind to win, 10 to 8, before a crowd of 3,000. Rookies played virtually the whole game.

During the second inning Mrs. Robert Osborne, wife of a West Point sergeant, was struck on the head by a foul from the bat of Morris Aderholt of the Dodgers. She suffered a slight concussion.

REDS IN GOOD SHAPE.

This training camp continued a terminus for arrivals and departures. Harry Gumbert left for his home in Houston, Tex., to meet a draft board request for his presence. Bob Ferguson, a pitcher who was with Birmingham last year, reported for work.

ROCCO TEMPERS DEMANDS.

Lafayette, Ind., March 25 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians received a letter today from Mickey Rocco, one of the club's four holdouts, and reported the first baseman had eased his salary demands.

This heartened Manager Lou Boudreau, since yesterday Blas Monaco, in Baltimore, said he would stay on his war plant job this season. Monaco was considered the rookie most likely to succeed Ray Mack as regular second baseman.

A's BEAT SEMI-PROS.

Frederick, Md., March 25 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics defeated the semi-pro Frederick Hustlers today, 7 to 1 in a game which was close until the fifth inning, when the A's hit their stride. Doubles by Hal Peck, Frank Hayes, and Dick Siebert in the fifth sewed up the game for Philadelphia.

11 HORSES DIE IN CHURCHILL FIRE; VALUE $18,000

Louisville, Ky., March 25 (AP). — Eleven race horses perished late last night in a fire which destroyed a barn at Churchill Downs. The loss was estimated today at $18,000.

Another horse was shot when it ran wild after escaping from the blaze. Two ponies also were burned to death. Seven of the horses and one of the ponies were listed as the property of Henry Drew Sr., Louisville. They included Miss Orphan, Grand Bonny, Sun Squall, Puckety, Little Tet, Town Gallant, and Abe's Victory.

The other four horses were owned by Jack Goldstein of Louisville, who recently purchased them from C. C. Connors of Jeffersonville, Ind. They included Timid Greenock, Aerial Lad, Arab's Boy, and one other horse.

Johnny Mostil's Mother, 81, Dies at Whiting Home

Mrs. Barbara Mostil, 81, mother of Johnny Mostil, White Sox star center fielder of the '20s, died yesterday at her home, 1111 116th st., Whiting. She is survived by another son, Edward, and four daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Pearson, Mrs. Helen Siegel, Mrs. Mary Tree, and Mrs. Anna O'Connell. Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at Sacred Heart church in Whiting and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery in Chicago. The body is at the funeral establishment at 1225 119th st., Whiting.

WIN CATHOLIC LEAGUE SWIMMING HONORS

AnacondaFive Takes B.B.Y.O. Senior Title

The Anacondas quintet, made up of members of the Von Steuben High school team, defeated the Jewish Peoples institute, defending champions, 43 to 37, in the final game of the senior division of the B'nai B'rith Youth organization basketball tournament yesterday in the St. Philip High school gymnasium. Gene Schanbaum led the winning team with 16 points.

The junior division championship went to the Lawrence Restaurants, who gained a 32 to 26 victory over Mickey's Globetrotters. The Lawrence quintet thereby qualified to meet the St. Andrews Parish team, junior champion of the Catholic Youth organization, Tuesday night in Lane Tech gymnasium. The game will be a preliminary to the annual All-Star game between quintets from the B. B. Y. O. and C. Y. O.

The school division title went to the Jokers with a 23 to 18 victory over the Horwitz Drugs, and Rashi turned back Akiba, 19 to 15, for the A. Z. A. B division title. In an exhibition game, the New Orleans A. Z. A. champions beat Chicago's A. Z. A. titleholders, 34 to 30. Lineups of the senior, junior and school division championship games:

JOCKEY GUILD BACKS MEXICO BAN ON MEADE

Miami, Fla., March 25 (AP).—Jack Cleary, general manager of the Jockey guild, announced today he had suspended Jockey Don Meade from the guild. Cleary said he took the action after a telephone conversation with Judge Edwin J. Brown, steward at the Hippodromo de las Americas, Mexico City, which Saturday set down Meade for the remainder of the racing meet there.

"I learned that no question of racing integrity was involved in Meade's suspension at the Hipodrome, but that Meade had abused Mexicans as individuals and Mexico as a country," Cleary stated.

"No jockey who belongs to our organization can go into a friendly country and curse that country or its people," Cleary asserted. "Mexico is our friendly neighbor, cooperating with us in the war."

COOK GIRLS TAKE THREE; NEAR TOP IN S.E. TRAVELING

The Cook Restaurant team won three games from the Green Diamonds to approach within three games of the leading Pla-Mor Lanes in competition in the South End Ladies Traveling league in Dearborn-Jackson Recreation last night. The Pla-Mors dropped two to Schneider & Sons entry ,the latter now being five games behind the leaders.

In other matches the Du Bouchett Liqueurs swept their series from Watson's Pine Room and Crest recreation won a pair from Mrs. Grass' Noodle Soupers. Scores:

Rain Stops Soccer Games; Scheduled Next Sunday

Rain yesterday forced postponement of all scheduled soccer games. The National Open Cup matches between the Vikings and Hakoah-Centers and the Spartas and Slovaks will be played next Sunday.

TROUT OUTHURLS HAL NEWHOUSER IN TIGERS' GAME

Evansville, Ind., March 25 (AP).—Paul [Dizzy] Trout hurled four innings of one-hit ball today as the Detroit Tigers regulars blanked the Yannigans, 2 to 0, in a seven inning game.

Hal Newhouser, pitching for the Yannigans against Trout, yielded both runs and five of the seven hits the varsity collected. Zeb Eaton and Les Mueller each served a three inning stint and each yielded two hits.

Third Baseman Joe Hoover got three hits in four chances and Leftfielder Bobby Maier had two doubles in three times at bat.

ANOTHER GAME FOR PHILS.

Wilmington, Del., March 25 (AP).—General Manager Herb Pennock announced today the Philadelphia Phillies will meet Camp Lee, Va., April 6 in the seventh exhibition baseball game of the schedule.

The Phil's exhibition games get under way April 2 and 3 at the Bainbridge [Md.] naval training station.

The Jays defeated the Blues, 3 to 0, in a Phillies' intracamp game today, rallying for two runs in the sixth inning and another in the seventh.

Andy Seminick's fly ball sent Vince Dinges across the plate for the first Phils' run of the year. Granville Hamner then singled to right to score Rene Monteagudo. Ralph Caballero turned in the third run on Dinges' double.

CARDS RETURN HOME.

St. Louis, Mo., March 25 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals arrived today from their Cairo, Ill., water-logged spring training field, ready to meet Manager Billy Southworth tomorrow for workouts on their home grounds at Sportsman's Park.

Altho there was concern in Cairo over the condition of Red Schoendienst, who was favoring his arm during workouts, Trainer Harrison Weaver could find nothing wrong and said he expected the infielder to be in good shape at the season's opening.

PIRATE REGULARS WIN.

Muncie, Ind., March 25 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates played their first complete intra-squad game today and the regulars beat the Yannigans, 10 to 4. A crowd of 1,200 watched the contest.

Rip Sewell used his blooper delivery freely and gave up six of 10 Yannigan hits. The regulars collected 13 hits including a two run homer run inside the park by Johnny Barrett.

CRONIN HITS TWO HOMERS.

Pleasantville, N. J., March 25 (AP).—Two home runs by Manager Joe Cronin, both off Lefty Vic Johnson, failed to help his Boston Red Sox Yannigans who lost to the regulars, 5 to 4, today in a six inning game. Each side used two pitchers and none was especially effective.

STROHS BOUNCE; LEAD HEIL TEAM BY TWENTY PINS

Milwaukee, Wis., March 25 [Special].—The Stroh Bohemian Beers, national team match game bowling champions, tonight led the Heil Products of Milwaukee by 20 pins at the end of the first 12 games in their 24 game challenge series. The Strohs totaled 11,625 pins against 11,605 for the Heils.

The series will be completed in Detroit next week-end.

Three Blows Hurt Heils.

In tonight's final block on the Strachota Regent alleys the Heils totaled 2,953 on games of 926, 1,088, and 939, while the Strohs, who had games of 962, 1,008, 971, had 2,941. Despite the 12 pin advantage tonight the Heils failed to wipe out a 32 pin deficit the Strohs placed upon this afternoon.

The Heils' margin in the final block might have been greater had not Edgar Koch, Elmer Koch and Hank Marino missed spares in the tenth frame of the final game.

Top man in the scoring tonight against was personable Joe Norris, Stroh's captain, who totaled 630 on 233, 203, and 194. The veteran Johnny Crimmins helped along with a 606 series. Leading the Milwaukee squad again was Rudy Pugel with a 613 set.

Pugel Leads Efforts.

The Heils won the first block Saturday afternoon, 2,814 to 2,738, for a 76 pin lead. The Strohs won the second black last night, 3,021 to 2,972, cutting the Heals' lead to 27 pins. The Stroh's won the block this afternoon, 2,925 to 2,866, and took the lead by 32 pins.

The 1,088 second game total by the Heils tonight was the highest of the series. Pugel was the only consistent 600 bowler in the four blocks.

JOHNNY LINDELL TO TAKE DRAFT TEST IN CAMDEN

Atlantic City, N. J., March 25 (AP).—Outfielder Johnny Lindell has received instructions to take a draft physical in California, but as he had already requested transfer of his papers east, his examination likely will be in Camden, N. J., at a date later to be announced.

Infielder Oscar Grimes has had his draft papers forwarded to him from Lakewood, O., and his physical likewise will be in this state.

Twenty-six New York Yankee players were present, with Outfielders Russ Derry, Paul Waner, and Catcher Mike Garbark having their first 1945 workout.

Williams, Cocoa Kid Fight Tonight in New York Ring

New York, March 25, [Special]—Holman Williams, Chicago middleweight, will battle Cocoa Kid, New Haven, in the feature 10 round fight on tomorrow night's card in St. Nick's arena. Joe Louis will be in Williams' corner.

Hagg's Wedding Postponed Until War Is Finished

Oakland, Cal., March 25 (AP).—Pretty Dorothy Nortier disclosed tonight she and the Swedish runner, Gunder Hagg, will not marry until after the war because she would be unable to obtain a passport now to return as his wife.

Miss Nortier confirmed a statement made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nortier, who awaited Hagg's arrival at San Francisco airport. They told a reporter the marriage had been postponed.

Miss Nortier expressed disappointment that she could not sail to Sweden as Mrs. Hagg around the first of April when the track star returns. She and Hagg learned of the immigration ruling in Chicago.

The track star, flying here for a visit, was "bumped" off a transcontinental plane at Big Springs, Tex., last night since he did not have priority. He and his manager, S. Steinvall, traveled to El Paso by train and boarded another plane for Los Angeles.

GREEN TO TELL 2 YEAR BUDGET ON WEDNESDAY

Traction Plan Slated to Pass Same Day.

Gov. Green will submit his biennial budget to the legislature Wednesday, but his financial recommendations will take second place to the drive to get both houses to pass the Kelly-Green program for public ownership of Chicago's street car and elevated lines.

Indications are that for the two year period starting July 1 the budget will be balanced at slightly above the 600 million dollar mark for all funds. Expenditures for war veterans, school aid, wage increases to state workers, and pensions will add more than 41 million dollars to appropriations to be paid from the general revenue fund. The state now has a 117 million dollar general fund surplus.

Governor to Speak at Noon.

The governor will address a joint session of both houses Wednesday noon. Also to be presented in detail to the assembly this week will be the recommendations of the Illinois post-war planning commission, which wants 105 millions to be spent on permanent improvements, designed to furnish jobs, in the reconversion period during the first two years after the war. In all, post-war projects for five years aggregate 520 million dollars.

Unless unexpected opposition develops in Springfield, each house will be in a position to pass its own Chicago traction bill Wednesday. Should that be the case, one of the chambers would have to duplicate its roll call the following week, since the identical measure must be passed by both house and senate.

$160,000 Item Dropped.

Because of constitutional objections, a proposed $100,000 state appropriation to help the metropolitan transit authority get its work started has been dropped by spokesmen for Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green. That item wasn't in the budget, for it had been proposed after Finance Director McKibbin sent the detailed financial proposals to the printer.

Sen. Daley [D., Chicago], the mayor's legislative spokesman, said no formidable opposition was expected to the housing bills, also part of the Kelly-Green program. They envision a 10 million dollar state appropriation, which was also proposed too late to be mentioned in the budget to be revealed Wednesday. The state housing appropriation would be split between Chicago and downstate.

The senate is expected to give final passage to the revised airport authority bill under which some of the larger downstate cities expect to acquire landing fields.

VRACIU TO TALK AT TRIBUNE 7TH WAR LOAN RALLY

First Lt. Alex Vraciu, navy ace, will be the principal speaker at the Tribune-W-G-N seventh war loan bond rally dinner for 200 employes tomorrow at 6:30 o'clock in the boulevard room of the Hotel Continental. Tech. Sgt. Ward Walker, Tribune editorial department employe on leave, a marine combat correspondent, also will tell his war experiences. Allan E. Moulton and H. Kennedy Nickell will represent the treasury department.

Radio talent from W-G-N shows will present a half hour of entertainment. From "Words and Rhythm" will come Bill Anson, Jess Kirkpatrick, Holland Engle, Tom Cafferty, and Julane Pelletier and from "Citizens of Tomorrow" the two youthful comedians, Beryl Vaughan and Wayne Dickinson. Two-Ton Baker, another W-G-N star, will give several of his piano playing and singing numbers. A 23 minute navy movie showing the taking of Iwo Jima also will be presented. Philip Maxwell, general chairman of the bond drive for THE TRIBUNE and W-G-N, will preside.

LIGHTNING BOLT STRIKES TABLE; GIRL, 18, BURNED

The James Fitch family on the John F. Cuneo farm, Butterfield rd. and Milwaukee av., near Mundelein, were seated at the dinner table yesterday when a bolt of lightning shattered the window pane, leaped to the dinner table, hurled dishes to the floor, and burned the legs of Fitch's daughter, Carol, 18. The house then caught fire. Mundelein police took Carol to the Condell Memorial hospital, where the burns were described as serious. The fire department, aided by a driving rain, extinguished the fire. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

TAX BILLS SENT TO 400,000; FIVE RULES PROPOSED

Victor L. Schlaeger, county treasurer, said yesterday that half of the county's 800,000 real estate tax bills have been mailed and the balance will be delivered before next week. He asked taxpayers to coöperate in relieving confusion and delay in his office by observing five rules.

They are: [1] Examine legal description of the property to make certain payment is on the right property [payments in error cannot be refunded]; [2] correct name and address on the bill if it is in error; [3] mail the 1944 bill to the new owner if property has been sold, notifying the county treasurer; [4] pay now and avoid the May 1 rush; [5] payment by check or money order will save a trip to the county building.

Schlaeger said complaints about bills should be filed with the assessor or board of appeals. He has no control over valuations, rates, or the amount of bills, he said, but is only the collector.

ELECTRONS AT WORK—10.

[ZENITH RADIO.]

Included among the notable price advances in electronics shares during the war is the rise in Zenith Radio corporation's stock from a 1941 low of 8 to a 1944 high of 44½. The movement has paralleled the increase in the company's sales and average earnings. The company, which in normal times ranks as one of the largest manufacturers of receiving sets, has confined its operations since early in 1942 mainly to war contracts.

Production has included radio, radar, and other electronic apparatus. Late in 1943 Zenith placed on the market a radionic hearing aid. Since the swing to war production, sales and earnings have shown large annual gains. The volume rose to a record of $61,274,510 in the fiscal year ended last April 30, compared with $17,980,271 in the 1939 fiscal period.

A profit equal to $3.63 a share on the 492,464 no par shares was reported for 1944, subject to renegotiation of government contracts. In the four years thru 1944, the average profit was $3.13 a share. In the six months ended Oct. 31, 1944, the earnings increased to $2.92 a share from $2.64 in the same period of the preceding year.

In the earlier fiscal years, before the war inflated business, the profit per share was: 1940, $1.50; 1939, $2.18; 1938, $1.42; 1937, $3.87 [not equaled in any war time year]; 1936, $2.46; 1935, 2 cents; 1934, 10 cents. From 1930 thru 1933, net losses were shown each year.

The stock at its 1944 peak, a new record since 1929 and 2½ points above the 1945 top, represented a high capitalization of the earnings of most years of the pre-war decade. Whether the market is warranted in discounting larger profits after the war than before is a question to which there is no ready answer. A factor to be taken into account is that Zenith has retained in the business profits equal to $9 a share in the five fiscal years ended with April, 1944, after paying $1 a share in dividends each year. A dividend of this amount also was paid last May.

As to post-war prospects, E. F. McDonald Jr., president, has said that many new developments in the radionic field not only will enable the company to maintain its position in the production of household and auto radios, but also will provide for expansion in the commercial field of radio communications and radar control of planes, trains, ships, and trucks. The company operates a frequency modulation broadcasting station and a television station. The management expects more rapid development of FM than of television.

Altho Zenith's net working capital increased in each of the last six years, current liabilities totaling $29,308,156 as of last April 30 were large in comparison with current assets of $35,679,281. There is no long term debt.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

WORLD MONEY FUND OPPOSED, BANK INDORSED

Split Program, U.S. Chamber Advises.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 25.—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today recommended that the United States participate in the international bank proposed by the Bretton Woods, N. H., conference last July, but defer action on participating in the international monetary fund proposed by the same conference.

Robert M. Hanes.

The report, made by the finance department committee of the chamber and indorsed by the board of directors, said the "committee has serious doubts as to the advisability or necessity of immediate action by congress on the plan for an international monetary fund."

Termed Heart of Program.

The Bretton Woods twin proposals are before the house banking and currency committee. President Roosevelt has urged speedy action, as have the treasury and the state department. Dean Acheson, assistant secretary of state, told the committee the 8.8 billion dollar international fund is the "heart" of the proposals without which the proposed 9.1 billion bank would have difficulty in functioning.

The proposed United States share in the bank is 3 billion 175 million. Its share in the fund would be 2 billion 750 million. The proposal calls for the United Kingdom to put 1 billion 300 million into each fund and Russia 1 billion 200 million into each. The shares of the other nations are much smaller.

In Accord with Objectives.

The chamber of commerce committee said it was in complete agreement with the objectives of the Bretton Woods conference and favored collaboration with other nations in a program of monetary stabilization, but raised questions as to methods under the proposed monetary fund. It recommended that the board of governors of the international bank prepare a program for monetary stabilization upon which the nations can agree, meanwhile taking leadership in stabilization activities, including agreements and loans. Otherwise, it said, the bank and fund might operate at cross purposes at times.

"The committee is not impressed with the argument that any action other than approval of both the fund and the bank would require another world conference, with probable failure of the entire program," the report said. Establishment of the bank should be accomplished more speedily under this program than if immediate action by all nations on both institutions were needed, it contended.

Fund Widely Questioned.

"Sentiment with respect to the bank is favorable in other countries as well as in the United States," the report said. "Serious doubts as to the fund have been expressed elsewhere, as in this country. Such recommendations as might be made by the board of governors of the bank with respect to a permanent stabilization program would carry weight in all nations."

The finance committee is headed by Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem, N. C., a former president of the American Bankers' association. The A. B. A. made a report last month terming proposed lending methods under the stabilization fund "novel and contrary to accepted credit principles." The chamber of commerce report referred to "ultra-liberal conditions applying to credits."

ASSERTS WAR'S RESEARCH WILL AID TELEVISION

Improved post-war television will stem from the secret electronic work and research done for the government during the war, Paul W. Kesten, executive vice president of Columbia Broadcasting system, said yesterday in a report to stockholders.

"Post-war television, simply by following in the footsteps of military electronics, can emerge at a much higher level than its pre-war 'freeze' with pictures twice as clear, twice as sharp, and perhaps twice as large," Kesten said.

Columbia has contracted with the Federal Telephone and Radio corporation for the first experimental transmitter capable of broadcasting the improved picture in full color, he said.

NAVY USES X-RAY EXAMINATION IN FLYER SELECTION

Baltimore, Md., March 25 [Special].—X-ray equipment produced by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company is helping naval medical officers select flyers to pilot the navy's highest flying, fastest climbing, steepest diving airplanes, Walter Evans, vice president in charge of Westinghouse radio and X-ray activities, said today.

Battle experience has proved the need for new capacities for altitude, speed, and maneuverability in planes, he said. X-ray examinations, conducted under conditions which duplicate stratospheric pressures, help doctors improve aviators' performance under the physical strains imposed on them.

Simulate Altitude Conditions.

The X-ray equipment, including a special tube designed to insure maximum efficiency, is used in a low pressure chamber. The chamber is equipped with powerful pumps which reduce air pressure inside the "tank" to simulate conditions found at any altitude up to more than 60,000 feet.

Individual communications equipment keeps each participant in touch with the operator who observes experiments thru a glass port. Oxygen is supplied by modern aviation equipment.

X-ray examination is used to study the heart and lungs under conditions of acceleration which occur in power dives and during exposure to critical altitudes, said Lt. Barry G. King, head of the aviation facility of the naval medical research institute.

Various Sensations Recorded.

"Normal reaction first shows abdominal distress at about 20,000 feet," Lt. King said. "Above 30,000 feet sharp pains occur in the joints, there is a definite tingling in the skin, and a choking sensation in the chest.

"Each of these sensations is a variation of the 'bends,' long familiar to deep sea divers and 'sand hog' tunnel and cofferdam workers. X-ray now has enabled science to prove that they are caused by an embolism—that is, by tiny air bubbles formed within the blood and in body tissues."

Actual X-ray photographs of the bubbles within the body have confirmed medical theories, he said.

FROZEN FOREIGN FUNDS FREED FOR DEBT PAYMENTS

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The treasury opened the way today for American creditors to collect debts out of frozen funds in this country belonging to firms and individuals in France, Belgium, Greece, Finland, Poland, Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania. These areas no longer are classed as enemy territory and postal communication has been restored.

The treasury said it is prepared, "in appropriate cases," to grant licenses for payments to creditors from the blocked accounts.

Altho the treasury has permitted the French and Belgian governments to use their own blocked funds almost without restriction, very few licenses have been granted for use of the private funds. Those were in cases of extreme hardship. From now on, the United States is willing to consider claims for debt payment on their merits.

WPB Further Restricts Western Pine Lumber Use

Washington, D. C., March 25 (AP).—The WPB today ruled that western pine lumber may be used in millwork items only for windows, sash, and door frames, window and door screens, trim and molding, and "cut stock" for those items. Kitchen cabinets, medicine cabinets, corner cupboards, and furniture no longer may be made of western pine.

ILLINOIS ZINC COMPANY
The Board of Directors of Illinois Zinc Company, at a meeting held today, declared a dividend of twenty-five cents (25¢) per share on the outstanding shares of Capital Stock, payable May 21, 1945, to stockholders of record at the close of business on May 1, 1945. The stock transfer books will not be closed. Checks will be mailed by The New York Trust Company as Dividend Disbursing Agent of the Company.

NAVY X-RAY EXAMINATION IN FLYER SELECTION

Baltimore, Md., March 25 [Special].—X-ray equipment produced by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company is helping naval medical officers select flyers to pilot the navy's highest flying, fastest climbing, steepest diving airplanes, Walter Evans, vice president in charge of Westinghouse radio and X-ray activities, said today.

Battle experience has proved the need for new capacities for altitude, speed, and maneuverability in planes, he said. X-ray examinations, conducted under conditions which duplicate stratospheric pressures, help doctors improve aviators' performance under the physical strains imposed on them.

Simulate Altitude Conditions.

The X-ray equipment, including a special tube designed to insure maximum efficiency, is used in a low pressure chamber. The chamber is equipped with powerful pumps which reduce air pressure inside the "tank" to simulate conditions found at any altitude up to more than 60,000 feet.

Individual communications equipment keeps each participant in touch with the operator who observes experiments thru a glass port. Oxygen is supplied by modern aviation equipment.

X-ray examination is used to study the heart and lungs under conditions of acceleration which occur in power dives and during exposure to critical altitudes, said Lt. Barry G. King, head of the aviation facility of the naval medical research institute.

Various Sensations Recorded.

"Normal reaction first shows abdominal distress at about 20,000 feet," Lt. King said. "Above 30,000 feet sharp pains occur in the joints, there is a definite tingling in the skin, and a choking sensation in the chest.

Actual X-ray photographs of the bubbles within the body have confirmed medical theories, he said.

West. Electric Sales at Peak; Profit Larger

Western Electric company sales last year rose more than 212 million dollars to a new high, but a 22 million dollar increase in its tax load held the increase in profit to slightly more than a half million dollars, Clarence G. Stoll, president, said yesterday.
